'FIRED' WORKER IS ARRESTED IN HOLDUP KILLING

QUESTIONED BRIEFLY AND SPIRITED AWAY

When he walked into the Sixth Precinct Station last night to report that he had been robbed, Albert E. Cash, 22, a taxicab driver, who police say was recently discharged from a painting job on the new House Office Building, was arrested on open charges in connection with the murder of one man and the serious wounding of another in an attempted pay roll robbery near the House Office Building shortly after noon yesterday.

The arrest of Cash, who lives at 4530 Ninth street northwest, was immediately shrouded in secrecy by homicide squad detectives, headed by Capt. B. W. Thompson, who came to the station to question him. After a brief quiz, they left with him and early today neither he nor they could be located.

Brother Is Arrested

Early today Oscar Cash, 22, brother of the taxi driver, was arrested for investigation. He was taken into custody by Detective Sergts. Michael Mahaney and Thomas Sweeney, and detained in the Second Precinct Station.

The attempted robbery was committed by two colored men who shot and killed Edward Ecklund, 50, re-signed paymaster of the Browning Painting Co., subcontractors on the new [illegible] in Brooklyn, N. Y. His wounded companion was Harry Stumm, 48, also of Brooklyn, whom Ecklund was breaking in on the job.

When Cash appeared at the precinct station to report the robbery he was taken into custody by the desk clerk as a lookout had been previously sent for him from police headquarters.

Soon after the detectives had spirited him away from the station, Attorney James O'Shea, who said he had been retained by the young man's family, asked to see him. He was told he was not at the station.

Whereabouts a Mystery.

No one at police headquarters knew the whereabouts of Cash or his detective captors late last night. Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, said he had not heard from Capt. Thomson since he first went to the station where Cash was held.

Ecklund was pronounced dead upon arrival at Providence Hospital. He was shot through the heart. Stumm was wounded in the abdomen. Physicians at Providence Hospital performed an operation immediately and his condition was described as still serious last night.

The shooting occurred a few doors from the rooming house at 309 New Jersey avenue southeast, where the two victims lived. They had $2,000 in envelopes in their pockets, and had just left their rooms, when two col-

The House yesterday approved an amendment to the War Department supply bill, that would stop retirement pay to all former Army officers whose incomes are more than $3,000 a year.

Mail Flier Crashes As His Wife Waits

Marietta, Ga., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Flying low in a dense fog, Glenn T. Fields, 35-year-old pilot, was killed today when his plane crashed on the north side of Little Kenesaw mountain.

Fields' body, strapped in the cockpit of the St. Louis-Chicago-Atlanta air mail plane, was burned beyond possibility of recognition, but air officials identified the plane and said he was piloting it when the ship took the air at Chattanooga a few hours earlier.

While the young aviator was battling the fog, his wife, with their 6-months-old baby, awaited him at the Candler Field Airport, about 30 miles distant. She had often traveled the short distance from their home to the Atlanta field when he was late and anxiously scanned the skies for his plane.

Al Smith's Son Wins Auto-Death Damage Suit

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente, sitting without a jury, today decided in favor of Walter Smith, 22-year-old son of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, in a $30,000 suit brought against him by Mrs. Henry Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace sued for damages for the death of her husband, who was fatally injured early on the morning of January 14, 1932. Walter Smith testified that he did not see Wallace until the latter walked into the side of his automobile. This testimony was corroborated by Smith's companion in the car, Frank Smith, a coach at Manhattan College and unrelated to the former governor's family.

OFFICE OF CORONER MAY BE ABOLISHED

D. C. Heads Are Considering Substituting System of Medical Examiners.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The District Commissioners are considering abolishing the office of coroner, made vacant by the death of Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, and substituting a system of medical examiners, modeled after New York methods.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, former health commissioner of Manhattan, suggested the change. He is prepared to introduce legislation to bring it about. Meanwhile he is waiting on recommendations of the Commissioners.

Pending the decision, no successor will be appointed to Dr. Rogers' office. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, outstanding candidate for the job, and Dr. Christopher Murphy, will continue to function as deputy coroners. Another in the field for the office is Dr. James P. Coupal, personal physician to the late President Coolidge.

Dr. Copeland, who is chairman of the public health, hospitals and charities subcommittee of the Senate District Committee, said last night he

Houses Are Demolished and Much Property Damage Reported.

Paris, Tex., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Seventeen persons were known to have been injured by a tornado that struck south of Howland, then leveled most of the hamlet of Manchester, on the Red River 40 miles northeast of Paris, early tonight.

Houses were demolished and much property damage was done by the twister. First reports said five members of the family of E. A. Barham, living near Howland, were injured, as were nine members of the family of Calvin Richardson at Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ringwald, of Manchester, who were struck by falling timber, were believed the most seriously hurt. Mrs. Leon Jones, living near Howland, suffered a mangled hand, which was mashed when the twister smashed a door she was holding.

22 ARE RESCUED AFTER FOUR DIE ON SINKING SHIP

BRITISH FREIGHTER BATTERED BY GALE

New York, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Twenty-two men, hauled from the shattered decks of the sinking British freighter Exeter City were safe tonight aboard the S. S. American Merchant, after one of the most thrilling mid-Atlantic rescues of recent years.

Battered by a gale and torn by waves that washed away her bridge and drowned her captain, another officer and two men, the little British ship was sinking rapidly.

The rescue was effected in a dramatic battle against storm and time. Hardly had the rescued crew been brought, exhausted, to the decks of the rescue ship, than the hulk they had abandoned began slipping beneath the pounding waves.

Off Newfoundland Coast.

The scene of the grim fight was 650 miles off Newfoundland. Its progress was announced in terse messages from the master of the American Merchant, Capt. Giles C. Stedham, hero of a sea rescue eight years ago, to his company ashore.

Capt. E. D. Legge, in command of the freighter, which was bound for Portland, Me., from England, was one of the storm's victims, presumably washed away with his third officer, an apprentice, and a seaman when the waves tore his bridge from beneath him.

Proceeded Into Storm.

At 5:30 a. m. today, Legge had sighted an S O S signal, sweeping the seas for some nearby, friendly ship. The American Merchant responded. Bound for New York, Capt. Stedman—who was once first officer of the Leviathan—altered his course and proceeded into the furious storm to the side of the stricken vessel.

Over mountainous waves, a line was shot to the Exeter City. Her decks were awash, and she was wallowing helplessly, every lifeboat smashed.

Brought to Safety.

By means of the line, the American Merchant succeeded in sending over her No. 3 lifeboat to the side of the sinking ship, and after prodigious labor, the 22 remaining members of the crew were brought to safety.

Capt. Stedman's laconic message to his owners read:

"American Merchant. 943 GCT (4:43 E. S. S) Lat. 46.48 north; Long. 48.11 west. Twenty-two men composing crew Exeter City aboard. Rescue made in heavy sea. Expended our No. 3 lifeboat. Vessel abandoned in sinking condition. Settling rapidly. Advise Bristol Lines, Bristol, England."

Lame Duck Abolishment But Three States Away

Fox Box Office Girl Frustrates Holdup

An attempt to hold up the ticket office of Loew's Fox Theater yesterday afternoon was thwarted when the ticket girl refused to be intimidated, according to a report made to police by the theater.

About 4 o'clock a well-dressed young man stepped up to the window and handed Miss Martha Dean a card reading:

"Give me your money, and don't sound the alarm, or I'll shoot."

Alters Call

(Associated Press.)

Irwin H. (Ike) Hoover, chief usher of the White House, who has served under nine Presidents during his 43 years there, has changed his method of addressing Franklin D. Roosevelt and shortly will change again.

When Mr. Roosevelt came to the White House some months ago to confer with the President, Hoover ushered him into the red room with the announcement:

"The Governor of New York."

When Mr. Roosevelt came back again yesterday for a second conference, Hoover again showed him into the red room with the call:

"The President-elect."

And in a short while, of course, Hoover will be addressing Mr. Roosevelt as "Mister President."

LAST OF 3 AVIATION MUSKETEERS KILLED

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Death reached into the air lanes today for Lieut. Irvin A. Woodring—and thus passed the last of the Army's "Three Musketeers of Aviation."

Like his fellow musketeers, Lieut. Woodring died in harness trying to advance the standards of Army aviation. He fell 2,000 feet from the sky near Wright Field.

The daring flier's experimental attack-type ship flew to bits and his body was thrown clear. Apparently he had no chance to use his parachute, the device that twice before had saved his life, as it was found unopened on the body.

The accident was the second within the month that has claimed the life of a Wright Field flier engaging in the hazardous business of experimenting with unproved ideas in aviation. Capt. Hugh Elmendorf, of Washington, D. C., was killed in an experimental pursuit plane last Friday.

Two Youths Saved By Breeches Buoy

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Two South Richmond youths, marooned on a rock in the James River for three hours after their canoe overturned, were brought ashore in a breeches buoy tonight.

The youths, cold and wet when they were dragged ashore by police and firemen, were given dry clothing and carried to their homes. One of them, Percy Bolling, 19, hurt his hip in scrambling to the rock haven when the canoe overturned, but the other, Norman Robinson, 17, professed to be "all right."

Finding it impossible to penetrate the stiff current, the rescue squad at last succeeded in shooting a rope to the marooned youths. A few minutes later they were safely ashore.

Spain Protests Slaying Of National in Havana

Havana, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A note in the name of the Spanish government protesting "most energetically" the slaying here Sunday night of young Mariano Gonzales Gutierrez, a Spanish citizen, today was delivered to the Cuban Department of State by Rafael Porna, Spanish charge d'affaires.

The note demanded criminal prosecution of the policemen who allegedly killed the 20-year-old student, reserved the right to ask indemnification, asked unqualified guarantees for other Spaniads, and announced Spain's intention to "have the matter cleared up."

JAPANESE MOVE TO BOOST ARMY BY 50 PER CENT

UCHIDA WARNS CHINA AS DIET IS CONVENED

World Also Audience While Minister Hits Impending Anti-Tokyo Steps.

Tokyo, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Throughout Japan army recruits began reporting to their stations today in obedience to a war office decision which is expected to increase by 50 per cent Japan's man-power in Manchuria.

A spokesman for the war office announced that the army authorities had decided to dispatch a portion of the regular 1933 conscripts immediately to the command of Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, the supreme military official in Manchuria.

Competent military commentators said this meant that although the number of Japanese units under Gen. Muto would be unchanged, the total strength, at least for the next few months, would be increased by approximately 50 per cent, one-third of them raw recruits. The rest of the increase would be made up of auxiliaries.

Present Strength Is 40,000.

It was suggested that the rookies soon would be available to garrison quiet sectors, thereby releasing Manchurian veterans for real fighting. The present strength of Gen. Muto's command is estimated at 40,000 men.

The 1931 class of conscripts, now veterans of the Manchurian campaigns, will remain in service despite the fact that their two-year term has expired.

Last month the war office announced that the military forces of the nation were being readjusted in order to permit reinforcement of the Manchurian army by decreasing the domestic garrison.

Improved Equipment.

At the same time it was made known that Gen. Muto's command was to be provided with greatly improved equipment, notably additional airplanes, tanks, heavy guns and motorized units.

A war office spokesman in December said that under the readjustment plan the strength of the Manchurian army would be increased to 60,000 or 65,000 well-equipped men within two years. Funds for this purpose were included in the 1933-34 army budget.

Hitler, Closely Guarded, Attacks Defeatism Spirit

Berlin, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Behind the strongest police guard mobilized in Berlin in months, Adolf Hitler, in a fiery address at the crowded Sportpalast, tonight assailed the "system of defeatism enforced since 1918."

Rising at times to the heights of oratory of which he is capable, the National Socialist chief recounted the early struggle of the party and said that it had grown "to 12,000,000 from a handful."

$25,000,000 Spent By Chinese for Arms

Shanghai, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Japanese dispatches from Tientsin today said a shipment of German arms and ammunition purchased by the Chinese National government had arrived there and that a second shipment would reach Shanghai in the middle of February.

H. H. Kung, who recently visited the United States, negotiated the purchase which involved approximately $25,000,000, the reports said.

BRITONS INVITED HERE TO REOPEN DEBT ISSUE; CABINET LIST SWELLED

Morgenthau Put Forward for Agriculture.

TOBIN BACKED IN LABOR PLEA

Treasury Position Is Believed Open to Glass.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

A concerted effort to secure the appointment of Henry Morgenthau, jr., of New York, to be Secretary of Agriculture in the Roosevelt Cabinet was launched yesterday by representatives of the principal farm organizations united behind the domestic allotment plan.

After presenting their recommendation to the President-elect at his Mayflower headquarters, spokesmen for the farm groups said the appointment would be acceptable "to all the national farm organizations in the United States."

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who was the farmers' spokesman before Mr. Roosevelt, said after his conference that the President-elect had emphatically reassured him of his support of the allotment plan, and that on the whole matter of farm policy "the President-elect believes as I do."

Father Was Ambassador.

Mr. Morgenthau, whose father served for many years as President Wilson's Ambassador to Turkey, has been identified closely with Mr. Roosevelt in recent years as an adviser on agricultural problems. He generally is credited on Capitol Hill with having directed the writing of the allotment bill in the House and to have exercised considerable legislative influence in securing passage of the measure in that body.

Without venturing to speak for Mr. Roosevelt, several of the allotment advocates in the House confirmed reports last night that Mr. Morgenthau would be offered the Cabinet berth.

The farm problem was foremost among the many pressing domestic questions presented yesterday in Mr. Roosevelt's crowded conference program before and after his White House meeting with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson on foreign affairs.

Kvale Urges Inflation.

In addition to Senator McNary, Republican chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, Mr. Roosevelt discussed the urgent problem of farm rehabilitation with Representative Paul Kvale, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, and Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, a lame duck insurgent Republican from New York City.

Mr. Kvale said he recommended earnestly "some form of currency or commodity price inflation" as a means of helping the farmer's situation. He declined, however, to indicate the re-

Second Trial of Davis Will Begin on Feb. 27

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Attorney Charles Margiotti announced today that the second trial of Senator James J. Davis on charges resulting from alleged lotteries conducted by the Moose Lodge, will start in New York February 27.

Margiotti, counsel for the senator, said he had been informed of the trial date by the United States district attorney in New York. The first trial was a mistrial.

Sheriff Rushes Three to Prison When Crowd Gathers at Jail.

Brighton, Colo., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Three youths of Mexican parentage, convicted of slaying G. F. Arnold, elderly farmer, and sentenced to hang, were rushed to the State Penitentiary today when Sheriff Lee Templeton said he feared mob violence.

The youths, Roy Virgil, 19; Joe Saiz, 19, and Candelario Montoya, 18, were sentenced to death by Judge S. W. John.

Sheriff Templeton ordered armed deputies to take the prisoners to the State Penitentiary when a crowd collected in front of the courthouse. He said the youths confessed to slaying Arnold. They robbed Arnold's home of $1.

ROOSEVELT PLEASED AT PARLEY RESULTS

Silent on White House Conference; Gratified at Start on Debts Problems.

En Route With President-elect Roosevelt, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Ready to deal immediately with the troublesome war debts and world economic problems in his own way, President-elect Roosevelt traveled southward tonight well satisfied with arrangements made today with President Hoover.

He feels in going to work at once on the overture from Great Britain for discussion of these subjects a valuable month has been saved in getting into operation the machinery for molding a new world economic structure.

Mr. Roosevelt himself would make no formal comment on the results of today's meeting with the President, which put into movement the preliminary activity to bring adjustment with Great Britain. It is regarded as certain, however, that subsequent overtures from the other leading nations will follow the British move.

There is a feeling that the President-elect would not regard the French failure to pay her December 15 debt installment as a default, but rather as a deferment.

Mr. Roosevelt and his Secretary of State first will deal with the British in the March meeting in Washington on debts and the economic conference. They probably will go ahead alone on debts, with a separate group appointed to confer with the British delegation on the economic conference.

Five Facing Arrest In Cleveland Fire

Two Insurance Adjusters in Group Sought in Apartment Blaze.

Cleveland, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Warrants charging murder "in the perpetration of arson" were issued by Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan today against five men in connection with the Ellington Apartment fire here in which 13 persons burned to death last June 9.

Those named in the warrants which were asked by Safety Director Frank J. Merrick, were:

Ray I. Turk, of Cleveland, manager of a beauty and barber supply company, which was located on the ground floor of the downtown apartment building; L. J. Kamins, who is serving a sentence for arson in Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh; Ben Hirsch, of Aliquippa, suburb of Beaver Falls, Pa.; Paul Childs and Sam Nieman, both of Pittsburgh, fire insurance adjusters.

Sheppard Declares War On District's Beer Bill

Senate drys, headed by Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, yesterday promised Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, a run for his money on his 3.2 per cent District beer bill, introduced in the Senate Thursday. Senator Sheppard said yesterday he will use all his influence to defeat it. Meanwhile, Washington drys are planning a mass meeting to oppose both the Tydings measure and the Black beer bill, pending in the House, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Masonic Auditorium.

Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, author of the House bill, yesterday predicted that the House District Judiciary subcommittee will report the measure favorably next week.

STIMSON ACTS AFTER PARLEY

Would Weigh Other World Problems at Session.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Three hours after President-elect Roosevelt had left for his sojourn South yesterday, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson formally invited the British government in his name to send representatives to Washington to confer on the war debts and "ways and means for improving the world situation." The invitation was transmitted through the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, who called at the department last night to receive the invitation orally.

This step had been decided on at the White House conference between President Hoover and his successor yesterday morning, although preparations for it had been quietly going forward for some time. The initiative for the step was taken by the President-elect himself in the course of his informal talk with Col. Stimson a fortnight ago.

It was learned authoritatively that the British government has been making inquiries over a considerable period of time as to the most expedient way of opening the debt negotiations. In the note which the British government had transmitted on the occasion of the December 15 payment, reference had been made to the necessity of reopening the discussions in Washington "where the negotiations could best be held."

Far East Problems.

The White House conversations had been concerned chiefly with the debt problems although reference was made by the President-elect to the Far Eastern situation. It was learned from some of those present, that the President-elect is quite satisfied with the result of his recent statement in support of the "sanctity of treaties." This statement was interpreted as a liberal support of the Hoover-Stimson doctrine in the Far Eastern crisis.

The second White House meeting between the President and his successor had rubbed off some of the formality of the first get-together. The President was flanked by his Secretaries of State and Treasury, while Gov. Roosevelt had with him Prof. Raymond I. Moley and Norman H. Davis. Prof. Moley had been present at the first White House conference

HOOVER SAYS HOUSE RAISED HIS BUDGET

President Raps Scrapping of Merger Plans Without Adequate Study.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover took the Democratic House to task yesterday for blocking his Government reorganization program and to its leaders' claims that his budget estimates for supply bills had been reduced replied that they actually had been increased by $85,000,000.

Charging that the House apparently made no examination of the merits of his regrouping proposals before vetoing them yesterday, the Chief Executive said in a formal statement that great economies would have been made if his executive orders had been permitted to stand.

The statement was issued at the White House conference a few hours after Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee overrode efforts of Republicans to initiate revenue raising legislation at this session. It also was in answer to criticism Chairman Byrns of the House Appropriations Committee directed at his recent budget message.

Cut Hoover Program.

The Tennessee Democrat told the House then that his committee had reduced Mr. Hoover's budget estimates on five appropriation bills by $57,000,000.

"The estimates which I gave in my recent message to Congres as to the probable size of the deficit will depend, of course, upon how far the Congress adopts economies which I have recommended," Mr. Hoover said. "The budget calls for $850,000,000 reduction in appropriations for the next fiscal year, which would result in a reduction of about $530,000,000 of expenditures, the difference being due to old continuing appropriations and commitments in respect to them.

"I stated the other day that the five appropriation bills so far dealt with by the House or committees of the House showed an actual increase of about $35,000,000, instead of a decrease."

Analyses Submitted.

With his statement Mr. Hoover made public an analysis compiled by the Budget Bureau of the increases and decreases in the bills for the War, Treasury, Postoffice, Agriculture and Interior Departments and the first deficiency measure.

It showed that by failure to accept his economy recommendations, the appropriations were increased by $43,309,632 and placed other increases of $14,923,593. The analysis gave credit for $28,588,116 in "genuine reductions" and listed a total of $41,978,121 as postponements of outlays, to be made up in subsequent deficiency bills.

"I regret, of course," Mr. Hoover said, "that the consolidation of 58 bureaus and commissions into a few divisions, which I had directed by executive orders, has been nullified by the action of the House of Representatives.

"There was apparently no examination of the merits of the different executive orders by the House or the House committees and certainly no hearings of any consequence were undertaken."

Economy Is Pointed Out.

Mr. Hoover said he was convinced that if they had been investigated at all, a majority of them would have been approved. He added that the proposals were along the line of the fundamentals of the reorganization program sponsored in 1920 by the joint committee on reorganization.

"There is no question that the consolidations would have brought about great economies," he said. "It would have been a contribution to lessening taxation in the forthcoming fiscal year."

The Democrats blocked the Hoover program and paved the way for giving President-elect Roosevelt broader power to revamp the Government by abolishing Federal agencies and functions in addition to consolidating them.

Mr. Hoover was directed by Congress to submit a reorganization program under the terms of the economy act passed at the last session. It was subject to rejection by one branch of Congress.

Democrats Study Deficit Pay Quota

(Associated Press.)

A plan for assigning quotas of money for party members in each State to raise is being considered by the finance committee of the Democratic national committee, to erase its deficit of $769,055.

More than half of the deficit was a heritage from the 1928 campaign, with preliminary estimates yesterday indicating that the campaign last fall, in which $1,638,177 was spent, exceeded the budget by about $300,000.

Final action on methods of raising funds may be delayed for several weeks, it was indicated at national headquarters, with expectation that the task of wiping out the debt will be under way in the spring.

Senate Reconsideration Of Arms Ban Is Sought

(Associated Press.)

Reconsideration of the Senate action Thursday in approving a resolution authorizing the President to declare an embargo on the exportation of arms to troubled world areas was sought yesterday by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut.

The resolution, offered by Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, was adopted without debate or a roll call. Bingham said he had desired to amend it and, had asked Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, to object when the resolution came up, but that the Oregon senator was not present at the time.

Roberts and P.U.C. Pair At New York Conclave

The two full-time members of the Public Utilities Commission and their assistant counsel, William A. Roberts, yesterday were in New York attending a conference of the Institute of Public Engineering on the question of electrical distribution costs.

The trip came immediately after the trio had broken with People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and abruptly terminated prolonged negotiations with the Potomac Electric Co. on a proposal to end litigation over a new sliding scale for fixing electric rates.

Senate Like a Schoolroom, Pro and Con, Pegler Opines

Except That the Pupils Can Sneak Out Whenever They Want Without Getting Permission From Teacher (Vice President Curtis).

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The customers who have found football such a difficult game to understand, with all its obscure and apparently senseless rules, would be even more confused by the procedure of the United States Senate. Fundamentally, the idea of football is simple. You advance the ball or you oppose its advance. Fundamentally, the idea of a parliamentary body is to debate and vote on legislation. One statesman thinks it would be good for the country to pass a law and tells why. Another one thinks this idea is no good and gives his reasons. So they argue back and forth, sticking to the subject, and then they take a vote.

That is the fundamental idea, and the citizens in general probably still have some such simple notion of the function and procedure of the United States Senate, which is a great joke on the citizens. The citizens who come and sit in the galleries to hear the senators yell discover that they have not the slightest idea what it is all about and there are even some senators who haven't any idea what it is all about at a given time, either.

I am told that Senator George Moses of New Hampshire is undoubtedly the best rule-book lawyer in the Senate and that he can do tricks with the rules which will make some of the other senators talk the wrong way. This would not be as serious as it might sound off-hand, because much of the time it does not make any difference which way the brothers talk. Their arguments never have any effect anyway and the talk which has been going on for a week, vaguely relating to the Glass banking bill, has been downright mischief, intended only to kill time.

Quietly Steamed Along.

Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, did most of the talking, but it appears that Senator Moses, who is a Republican and pretty sore over losing his job in the last election, was quietly steaming Huey along with suggestions for the prolongation of his filibuster. Senator Jim Watson, of Indiana, another lame duck, also steamed Huey with ideas and Huey stood up there yelling day after day and the Democrats got the blame for the blockade which eventually will cause this session of the U. S. Senate to be acknowledged as the most useless, senseless and brutal gathering, the circumstances considered, in the history of the U. S. Congress. It will have been brutal in its mocking contempt for the hopes and agonies of the citizens who sent the boys down here to do something. You will have to think it over a little before you can bring yourself to believe that the senators, who are supposed to be the big men and the best minds of the country and who accept that distinction without any argument, could be cheap and evil enough to do this just to promote certain penny ante jealousies and spites of their own.

The Senate chamber looks something like a schoolroom in the sense that there are glorified school desks for the brothers and a teacher's chair for old Charlie Curtis, the champion poker player of the U. S. A., up at the head of the room. They meet at noon, and at that time there must be a quorum in the room. The clerk calls the roll, like a teacher's pet in school calling out "Willie Jones, Susie Smith, Abe Cohen" and so forth, and the senators answer "here" like little boys. That is not the only point wherein their conduct resembles that of little boys, either.

As soon as the quorum is found, however, they begin to ease out. They don't have to raise their hands and get permission. They just get up and go and there is a great deal of whispering in class and passing of notes and general inattention among those who stay. The boys have hideouts around the Capitol where they can sneak off and take a drink and there is no way for the teacher, that is, Mr. Curtis, to keep a statesman after school.

Began as Whittlers.

The brothers even are allowed to carve their initials and fraternity letters on their desks if they want to, and considering that so many of the statesmen began as whittlers down in front of the hay, grain and feed store at the county seat back home, it is strange that they do not do this.

The press gallery consists of three short rows up above the teacher's desk. The writing shelf, or ledge, is much more solid and wider than those which are provided at the ringsides and some of the football stadiums and is covered with billiard cloth, which would make good footing for typewriters and tends to smother the sound. But they do not permit the use of typewriters in the gallery so the journalists are always popping into the gallery to scoop up an earful of nonsense and then popping back into the pressroom, which opens off the gallery, to write it. There are not many fast fist-writers left in the business and this verboten on the typewriters tends to hamper the newspapermen. The reason for disallowing typewriters, even the new quiet ones, in the press-coop is that the clatter would be contrary to the dignity and decorum of the United States Senate, proving that the Senate still retains some sense of the ridiculous, anyway. Another reason may be that some day some reporter might accidentally shove a machine over the edge of the front shelf and drop it down on Mr. Curtis' head, ker-bloole or ker-pow!

Also a Place to Sleep.

Back in the press room there are two old marble fireplaces, one of them blocked off with an old desk, the other one in action for the burning of spoiled paragraphs and so forth. There are also two old mirrors in heavy gilt frames covered with cupids holding cornucopias from which parsnips, cabbages, apples and other farm produce are spilling forth. There are also some leather couches where a man may turn in and tear off a little sleep at such times as the yelling down on the floor becomes unbearable, and some phone booths and certain fenced-off places, like the coops which used to be maintained for the vice presidents of trust companies. These seem to be allotted to the press associations and they keep telegraph operators on the job to expedite the handling of flash and bulletin matter. The telegraph machines are not the old-fashioned Morse layouts but the modern printers or coffee-grinders which ring bells and flash on lights and otherwise promote excitement at the receiving end to denote that something very hot has just come over the wire and will some one please break away from the water cooler long enough to come and give a look.

The journalists all have political opinions and are pretty studious in American history and current affairs, but, aside from the normal expectable run of personal dislikes, they aren't indignant at anybody for blocking legislation or interfering with the Nation's destiny. This kind of thing was going on long before they came here and it will go on long after they are laid away and they realize that a man lasts longer if he takes it easy. Similarly, in the sport business, it is considered very foolish of a journalist to get sore at a champion just because the champion is no good or because he got his title by bribery. It is also considered very foolish to get that way over a new champion as they are almost all ingrates and conceited ignoramuses, anyway. This is called getting married to the champion.

Like Jack Dempsey.

A few of the Washington boys have got married to people like Borah and Huey, but very strangely the most popular man, personally, with the newspaper set is old Watson, who can tell a good story and keep friends even though they realize that as a statesman he is a pretty terrible liability. Watson is something like Jack Dempsey. He is a good fellow in the popular sense of the term and his professional actions are to be considered apart. He is a dry, politically, being out of Indiana, but whether he will take a drink in confidence I do not know. A dry does not always let his conscience or his constituents know all there is to know, and the Washington correspondents are not at all out of sorts with drunken drys.

"Old So-and-so got drunk as an earl on coronation day and fell flat on his face at the party last night," they will say and Old So-and-so may be a famous hell-roaring prohibitionist. The citizens might be surprised and resentful about this if they knew it but the Washington journalists take it easy. In the fight business, the commissioners talk about chivalry, nobility and sportsmanship and then issue licenses to gunmen and thieves of all descriptions. We do not get indignant about these things, either, in our set.

I think you will find the news in the papers that Huey Long finally gave up his filibuster. It seems that Mr. Moses and Jim Watson finally were scared off. The brothers knew they were steaming Huey up all along and keeping him going with suggestions, all for the purpose of making the Democrats look bad. When they were finally put in the middle they ran because they wanted the Democrats to get the blame for the disorder and naturally couldn't afford to be caught running the thing themselves, a couple of high-grade constructive Republican statesmen, who hope to come back some day.

LAST OF "THREE MUSKETEERS" OF ARMY AIR CORPS KILLED

W. L. Cornelius and J. J. Williams—won world-wide renown and their title of musketeers by their daring feats.

The first to die was Lieut. Williams, who crashed in the midst of an inverted formation at the national air races at Los Angeles in the same year. Col. Charles A. Lindberg took Williams' place and the remaining musketeers carried on.

Lieut. Cornelius met death a month later in a collision with Lieut. Roger V. Williams, who parachuted to safety.

Lieut. Woodring, a member of the flight-test branch at Wright Field, was 31 and a native of Oklahoma. He had been stationed here two years. The widow survives.

In 1927 Lieut. Woodring won the Mitchel-speed trophy race for Army pilots at Dayton. But his most widely known contribution to the history of aviation probably came in October, 1930, when he carried documents of the Japanese ratification of the London Naval Treaty from Vancouver, B. C., to Newark, N. J., in record time. Another pilot carrying duplicate documents on that trip—Lieut. William Caldwell—fell to his death in a Wyoming blizzard.

DEBT ADJUSTMENTS URGED FOR FARMERS

(Associated Press.)

The powerful Democratic leadership in Congress last night threw the full force of its support behind a mammoth plan for adjusting the debts of the Nation's farmers on a basis of their ability to pay.

After a conference with President-elect Roosevelt, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the party floor leader, presented in legislative form a momentous proposal worked out by farm organization leaders, under which the farmer could escape technical bankruptcy and avoid mortgage foreclosures while a rearrangement of his obligations is in progress.

Although numerous farm debt-relief measures are pending in the House, the Democratic leadership there has determined upon Robinson's measure as the one to be pushed. It is to be introduced there soon.

Passage Prospect Good.

Party spokesmen said they believed the proposal had a good prospect of passage at this session, but that if shortness of time prevented its enactment, it would undoubtedly go through at the special session to be called by Mr. Roosevelt in mid-April.

The measure forms a major point in the Democratic farm relief program, and its sponsors are anxious to obtain its enactment at the earliest possible time, so that it may apply to spring mortgage payments.

In his brief visit here, Mr. Roosevelt acted boldly to bring about an early Senate vote on the domestic allotment plan for restoring agricultural prices to approximate parity with those of commercial products.

He invited to his hotel room Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee which is working on the bill. The President-elect expressed his earnest desire that the measure be enacted this session, even if it is destined to be killed by a Hoover veto.

Confers With O'Neal.

In another of a series of conferences, in which the farm relief problem bulked large, the President-elect exchanged views with Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who is strongly opposed to the elimination of tobacco and hogs from the benefits of the allotment-plan bill.

To both O'Neal and McNary, Mr. Roosevelt recalled that during the campaign he advocated including wheat, cotton, hogs and tobacco, but the senator said he had added that while still of the same opinion he would "rather have fewer commodities than no bill at all." He has been described by Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, as favoring restriction of the bill to wheat and cotton.

The Senate committee meanwhile devoted itself to study of the complex bill, but hoped to tackle today the question of what commodities to include.

Adm. Woodward Sent To Panama for Duty

(Associated Press.)

Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, who has been on special naval duty in Washington since returning from Nicaragua, has been ordered to Panama to assume command of the Central American special service squadron which operates in those waters.

Admiral Woodward served on the electoral commission which had charge of the Nicaraguan election and came to Washington last fall, where he has since been on duty in the Navy Department. He relieves Rear Admiral St. Clair Smith, who has been ordered to Washington.

Yesterday in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:12 p. m. until noon Saturday.

Considered Glass banking bill.

Senator Smoot (Republican), of Utah, blocks a move to consider prohibition repeal resolution and Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, served notice he would force the question to an issue.

Senator Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, charged supporters of the Glass bill with obstructing Senate business by refusing to accept amendments along lines approved by President-elect Roosevelt.

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, denounced the agreement to limit debate on his bill as not worth the paper it was written on.

Senator Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, criticized France and other debt defaulters. Senator McNary (Republican), of Oregon, said President-elect Roosevelt wanted only wheat, cotton, hogs and tobacco in farm relief bill.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:50 p. m. until noon Saturday.

HOUSE.

Will resume consideration of War Department appropriation bill.

Appropriation subcommittee will meet in executive session at 10 a. m., in committee rooms, Capitol, west side, to consider State, Justice, Commerce and Labor appropriation bill.

Banking and Currency Committee will meet at 10:30 a. m., in committee room, Capitol, old library space, House floor, to consider farm mortgage and other bills.

Insular Affairs Committee will meet in open session at 10 a. m., in committee room 123, House Office Building, to consider Virgin Islands measure.

Hawes Intimates Plan To Resign From Senate

(Associated Press.)

Senator Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, who declined to run for reelection last November, said yesterday he would have a statement to make Monday on retiring from the Senate before March 4.

Hawes has been planning to leave the Senate soon in order to permit appointment of Senator-elect Champ Clark for the remainder of the short session.

Liquor Suspect, Fined $13, to Pay With Crops

Muskogee, Okla., Jan. 20 (A.P.). Bartering came to court today. George Crittenden, fined $13 on a liquor charge, said he had no money but plenty of oats, corn and smoked hams.

"Bring in $13 worth and you may go," said Justice D. Edmonds. "The produce will be sold and the proceeds given to charity."

COOLIDGE CEREMONY IN CONGRESS FEB. 6

(Associated Press.)

Solemn ceremonies at a joint session of the House and Senate on February 6 will commemorate the memory of Calvin Coolidge.

The services, it was announced yesterday by Representative Woodrum, of Virginia, will begin at noon with Vice President Curtis presiding.

The speaker at the joint session—to be held in the big House chamber—will be Arthur Prentice Rugg, chief justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court. Rugg was a warm personal friend of the former President; went to school with him at Amherst and later served with him on the board of that institution.

The Coolidge family has been invited. Other special guests outside of Congress will be President Hoover, members of the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and the Diplomatic Corps, chiefs of the Army, Navy and Marines and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Because of the large attendance expected, the arrangements committee announced that only one guest pass for a seat in the galleries will be given to each member of the House and Senate. The members, of course, will be on the floor.

The program, besides Justice Rugg's address, will include an invocation by the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, and the benediction by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House; music by the Marine Band Orchestra and songs by the Interstate Male Chorus.

West Coast Democrat Asks Protective Duties

Representative-elect Martin F. Smith (Democrat), of Hoquiam, Wash., who will succeed Albert Johnson, veteran Republican, in the next Congress, has arrived in Washington and has been attending hearings before the commissioner of customs.

"We must have an exchange toll or compensating surtax sufficient to equalize the difference between the American dollar and foreign moneys if the industries of the Pacific Northwest, as well as the entire Nation, are to survive," he said yesterday.

RANKIN HITS RAINEY PLAN FOR WET VOTE

(Associated Press.)

The prohibition question was injected last night into the hodgepodge contest for speakership of the next House.

Representative Rankin, of Mississippi, a candidate for Democratic nomination, in a statement said he was "talking to task" another of the Democratic candidates, Rainey, of Illinois, the present majority leader.

Rankin quoted Rainey as having said in a recent speech that "if he is elected Speaker he will recognize someone to move to suspend the rules and pass a resolution to resubmit the eighteenth amendment to conventions in the various States on the first day of the session."

That, Rankin asserted, would "expedite legalizing the liquor traffic, thereby denying reasonable time for debate or opportunity for amendments."

"To suspend the rules on the first day . . . and pass a resolution to legalize the liquor traffic would, in my opinion, mark the high point of legislative stupidity for all time," Rankin said. "The liquor question . . . does not compare in importance with the demand for currency expansion, unemployment relief, farm relief, and other similar measures that go to the very heart of our present troubles.

"If I am elected Speaker, I will not deny a hearing to either the wets or the drys. But I serve notice now that so long as I preside over the House of Representatives no liquor legislation will be passed under suspension of the rules!"

Georgia Postage Stamps To Mark Bicentennial

(Associated Press.)

After the Georgia delegation in the Senate and House visited Postmaster General Brown, it was announced yesterday that the department on February 13 would issue a new 3-cent stamp to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the establishment of the colony of Georgia and as a memorial to Gen. James Edward Oglethorpe, founder of the colony.

The new stamp will be purple in color. It will be issued in connection with the bicentennial celebration of the State of Georgia scheduled to begin on February 12 and continue until Thanksgiving Day.

Free Silver as Slump Cure Urged by Ashurst

(Associated Press.)

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, asserted in the Senate yesterday that "if there were free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1 the so-called depression would lift its ugly form from the Nation in 40 days."

"I profoundly believe," Ashurst said, "it is one of the things that would drive despair from the country."

NATIONAL FARM GROUPS URGE MORGENTHAU FOR CABINET

"I told Mr. Roosevelt," Kvale said, "that conditions are desperate in the farm regions and that I am afraid something might break before there is a special session of Congress. I also told him that we are anxious for the domestic allotment bill to get through and on the law books at this session. So far as I know, I am the first Farmer-Laborite to confer with a Democratic President-elect."

Thomas J. Walsh Is Boomed.

The prospective appointment of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, to be Attorney General in the new administration also was discussed with renewed enthusiasm last night by those who had conferred with the President-elect during the day. Questioned by newspapermen at the Roosevelt suite in the Mayflower after his conference yesterday afternoon, Senator Walsh stated emphatically he had not been offered the appointment as Secretary of State. Asked then about the Attorney Generalship, Mr. Walsh replied, "You will have to ask Mr. Roosevelt about that."

Renewed demands by the American Federation of Labor that Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Teamsters Union, be appointed Secretary of Labor also were presented to Mr. Roosevelt during the day. President William Green and Vice President Matthew Woll of the American Federation of Labor told the President-elect that 104 out of 105 international labor organizations had formally indorsed the Tobin candidacy, in opposition to that of Miss Frances Perkins, New York State industrial welfare commissioner, who is understood to be favored for the Labor post by many of Mr. Roosevelt's political intimates.

Experienced Labor Leader.

Mr. Tobin is one of the veteran leaders in the American labor movement and has been associated with the teamsters' organization since its founding some 30 years ago. He was long a trusted lieutenant of the late Samuel Gompers, founder and for 44 years president of the American Federation of Labor.

Although members of the Roosevelt entourage disclosed clearly before their departure for Muscle Shoals yesterday afternoon that no decision had been made regarding the Treasury post, there were many indications that the place is open to Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, if he will accept. If Senator Glass declines the appointment, it may go to Jesse H. Jones, of Houston, Tex., a director of the R. F. C.

Farther from a final decision is the ranking Cabinet office, that or Secretary of State, although some of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers acknowledge that Owen D. Young may have this coveted commission if he will accept.

Laffoon Is Mentioned.

Another prospective appointment widely discussed in the wake of Mr. Roosevelt's whirlwind visit placed Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky in the role of Secretary of the Interior, a post which also had been awarded many times by the political cabinet makers to Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana. Traditionally the Interior berth goes to a Westerner, but Mr. Roosevelt is represented as favoring a more equitable distribution of Cabinet places in the South.

Senator Robinson, who was the first caller at the Roosevelt suite yesterday morning, said he canvassed the entire legislative situation with the President-elect.

"Mr. Roosevelt is anxious to see as much legislation as possible disposed of at this session," Senator Robinson said. "It will be my purpose to carry out his desires."

A few hours after his conference at the Mayflower, Senator Robinson introduced a bill to stay farm foreclosures pending attempts at negotiated settlements between debtor and creditor. This measure will be offered as an amendment to the bankruptcy revision project now before the House Judiciary Committee.

Author of Inflation Bill.

Also among the Roosevelt callers yesterday were leaders in the unofficial "open forum," an extra-legal organization of House members which assembles periodically to discuss national problems. Representative Busby, of Mississippi, author of the $3,000,000,000 currency inflation bill recently approved by the "open forum," told newspapermen after the conference that, although the forum's program still was far from complete, the group felt confident their measures would be accorded consideration in the forthcoming special session.

Incidentally this was the first direct intimation during Mr. Roosevelt's two-day visit that callers had discussed the prospective legislative program in the special sessions.

Other callers in the "open forum" group were Representatives Sumners, of Texas, chairman of the House judiciary committee; Arnold, of Illinois, chairman of the Democratic caucus; Buchanan, of Texas, chairman of the agricultural appropriations subcommittee; McClintic, of Oklahoma and Sandlin, of Louisiana.

Inaugural Committee.

"We discussed economic conditions and means by which they might be improved," Representative McClintic said in summarizing the discussion.

Gen. John J. Pershing was another morning caller at the Mayflower. Accompanied by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee, the hero, who is to lead the inaugural parade on March 4, called only to pay his respects, he said.

Strict Party Vote.

Shortly before he left the hotel to board his special for Muscle Shoals, Mr. Roosevelt was informed of the action of the House Ways and Means Committee in voting formally against tax legislation in the short session. The action came on a motion by Representative Hawley (Republican), Oregon, to take up last year's sales tax measure as the basis for budget-balancing legislation before March 4. The motion was rejected by a strict party vote, 14 to 10.

Among those who accompanied Mr. Roosevelt en route to Muscle Shoals were Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York Port Authority; Frank R. McNinch, vice chairman of the Federal Power Commission; Senators Bankhead, Black, Dill, McKellar and Norris, and Representatives Allgood, Almon and Hill, of Alabama, and McReynolds, of Tennessee; Norman H. Davis and former Member of Congress Swagar Sherley, of Kentucky.

Roosevelt's Departure Ends Parade of Favor-Seekers

President-elect's Smiles and Pleasant Words Satisfy Leaders of Both Parties, in Spite of Widely Differing Governmental Theories.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The two-day long "big parade" which had passed in colorful and contrasting review before President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt ended yesterday when Mr. Roosevelt got on a train and left the National Capital for a visit to Warm Springs, Ga., which his presence will make another mecca for those who want to get in on the ground floor of the new administration.

Under the beneficence of the Roosevelt smile and dulcet words each of the visitors, apparently, left his presence filled with a conviction that their pleas had lodged close to the Roosevelt heart and would be given especial consideration if not entirely adopted by Mr. Roosevelt as his own.

They all professed pleasure at what they had said to him and what he had said to them, despite the almost unbridgeable gulf in the economic and governmental theories of many in the long list of visitors.

Long Sings Praises.

These ranged from Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, to Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, both Democrats, but at loggerheads over the banking reform bill sponsored by the former. Senator Long left his conference with Mr. Roosevelt on Thursday night declaring to newspaper reporters that Mr. Roosevelt was the same old Frank, all wool and a yard wide, and insistently inferring that Mr. Roosevelt had approved his filibuster against the Glass bill.

Perhaps that was why Senator Glass, who had conferred with Mr. Roosevelt the night before, conferred with him again yesterday. When the little ton of Virginia dynamite left the Roosevelt suite yesterday he was asked if the Long filibuster against his bill had been discussed, but he snapped out of the side of his mouth, that he never discussed trivialities.

Progressive Democrats and progressive Republicans were numbered among Mr. Roosevelt's visitors, as well as Democrats of such long standing and orthodoxy as Representative Edgar Howard, of Nebraska, who once was secretary to William Jennings Bryan and still is a Bryan Democrat.

Swanson Is Caller.

Senator Claude Swanson (Democrat), of Virginia, who has been considered such a conservative that even Republican administrations have felt safe in intrusting him with various commissions, brushed coat sleeves with Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, a silver advocate, who was lined up with Senator Long in his filibuster against the Glass bill.

Senator Robert M. La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin, who is one of the group whom the hot Republicans say should be written out of their party because of his various so-called liberal proposals, rubbed elbows with the aged and ultra-conservative Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (Democrat), of Florida. Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, another of the progressives, who has been mentioned as a possible Cabinet appointee, smiled at the gray, quiet, conservative Senator Cordell Hull (Democrat), of Tennessee, tariff and taxation expert, who is but biding his time in the Senate.

Speaker John N. Garner, the Texan who takes his party's platform seriously and insists that Congress shall pass a straight-out repeal of the prohibition amendment, seemed as pleased when he left the Roosevelt suite as did those dry senators over whom he will preside next session as Vice President.

Satisfied With Smiles.

In the meantime there were various other persons and officials who called on Mr. Roosevelt, or sought his attention through representatives and all were kissed off with the old Roosevelt smile and pleasant word.

Political observers agreed that President-elect Roosevelt is in an extremely difficult position. He has no actual authority, but it is significant that most of his callers, when they left and were questioned by newspaper reporters, fell into the error of referring to him as "the President."

Indicative of the pressure which is being brought to bear on Mr. Roosevelt was the talk heard around the Mayflower corridors about former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia, who has been conducting a most active publicity campaign to enhance his political prospects. Mr. Byrd was slated for the job of Secretary of the Navy. What he did just prior to the Democratic convention which nominated Mr. Roosevelt last summer definitely eliminated him. He is not considered by Mr. Roosevelt as deserving of any special recognition, according to some of those close to the President-elect. They predict that if anybody is selected from Virginia for special preferment it will be Gov. John Garland Pollard and not Mr. Byrd, who has been active in advancing the candidacy of Senator Glass for the job of Secretary of the Treasury in the expectation that he will take Mr. Glass' place in the Senate.

The aplomb with which Mr. Roosevelt has met representatives of all divisions of economic and governmental thought has led some to the conclusion that he is a wishy-washy person who agrees with everyone who talks to him. That conclusion is distinctly incorrect, those who know the governor say. Agreeable as he may be, as anxious as he may be to avoid trouble so long as he may, when the time comes he will stand put with all the stubbornness of his Dutch ancestors.

Meanwhile Washington is waiting, anticipating something of a circus when Mr. Roosevelt is forced to separate the sheep from the goats.

Mrs. Hoover and Eldest Son Drive to Baltimore

(Associated Press.)

While President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt yesterday discussed foreign affairs at the White House, Mrs. Hoover and Herbert Hoover, Jr., who had paid a brief visit to his parents, took an automobile ride together to Baltimore.

The eldest son of the President boarded an airplane at Baltimore, bound for Boston on a business trip, while Mrs. Hoover motored back alone to the White House.

SENATE FILIBUSTER REMAINS UNABATED

(Associated Press.)

The Senate thought it had crippled Huey Long's filibuster against the Glass bank bill, but last night the opponents of the measure were as strongly entrenched and determined as ever.

For Thomas, of Oklahoma, an ally of the self-styled Louisiana "Kingfish," let it be known that he would use every means at his command to prevent a vote on the bill. Only cloture can stop him, he said.

Untamed by Thursday's talk with President-elect Roosevelt, Long yesterday renewed his fight against the bill and his continued revolt against his party's leadership in the Senate.

He tried to gain time at the close of the day by asking that the Senate recess until Monday, omitting today's session. He appealed for the week-end holiday on the ground that "seven or eight senators have gone to Muscle Shoals" with Mr. Roosevelt and that he thought they should be in the Senate for the debate.

"I don't think they'll miss anything tomorrow," Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, author of the bill in dispute, grimly reported. A recess was taken until noon today and Glass announced he would insist on night sessions next week in an effort to hasten a final vote.

Thus the Senate slid back into the rut of inaction in which the filibuster had trapped it for eight days, and found the voluntary agreement for limitation of debate, reached Thursday, after a move for cloture had failed, was virtually meaningless.

House Members Reach Muscle Shoals in Plane

Florence, Ala., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Six members of the House Military Affairs Committee arrived here by plane from Washington late today, and tomorrow will join President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt in an examination of the Government's $150,000,000 war-time nitrate and hydroelectric plants at Muscle Shoals.

Proper Mating Called Vital to Race's Future

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Proper mating by the present generation, which, he said, "requires some control," was described tonight by Prof. Herbert S. Jennings, Johns Hopkins University geneticist, as essential for "raising the level of life."

"The importance of mating * * * has come to be instinctively recognized," he said, delivering the last of the Terry lectures at Yale University. "Connected with it, progressive evolution takes place, such evolution as has brought man from amoeba-like ancestors."

JOBLESS IN CHICAGO BATTLE WITH POLICE

Scores Injured and Crowd Is Finally Dispersed by Reserve Squads.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Police Capt. John Moran was severely clubbed, cut and trampled and scores of civilians and police suffered bruised heads today in a battle between the police and hundreds of jobless demonstrators.

For twenty minutes police clubs swung right and left among the crowd. Three large plate glass windows in a drug store were shattered and one man was cut in the neck and head when he was pushed through a window.

Seventy-five policemen had been detailed to patrol the streets around the emergency relief station after two pickets bearing banners, "We Want Cash, Not Rotten Food," were arrested.

The embattled crowd was finally dispersed by reserve squads.

Policy Split Revamps New Zealand Cabinet

Wellington, New Zealand, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Differences in the Cabinet over the government's inflationary policies led today to reorganization of the ministry. Prime Minister Forbes took over the office of attorney general in addition to portfolios he already held as minister of railways, external affairs, scientific and industrial research, public trust and head of the electoral and high commissioner's department.

J. G. Coates becomes minister of finance, giving up the ministries of transport, public works and unemployment. Adam Hamilton, postmaster general, also becomes minister of unemployment, and J. A. Young, minister of health and immigration, takes over the portfolio of internal affairs.

ROOSEVELT IS TOLD OF INFLATION BILLS

Silver and Other Programs Gain in Congress; Action This Session Unlikely.

(Associated Press.)

Fresh reports of a growing congressional sentiment for currency inflation were carried to President-elect Roosevelt yesterday, but he remained noncommittal and prospects of action at this session continued dim.

Senator Wheeler, Montana Democrat, said remonetization of silver was among subjects he discussed with Mr. Roosevelt, but reported the Democratic chieftain had not "committed himself."

From the House went leaders of the unofficial farm forum to acquaint Mr. Roosevelt with their objectives which give a first-row place to inflation. They were Sumners and Buchanan, of Texas; McClintic, of Oklahoma; Busby, of Mississippi; Sandlin, of Louisiana, and Arnold, of Illinois, all Democrats.

30 Indorse Busby's Bill.

Thirty members of the forum have indorsed Busby's bill for a $3,000,000,000 inflation through the issuance of Federal Reserve notes backed by Government bonds. But though they mentioned it both to Roosevelt and his economic advisor, Prof. Raymond Moley, this Democratic group brought back no definite word.

Meanwhile, the Busby bill seemed locked for the session in the ways and means committee, with Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, again affirming "there is no chance of inflation this session."

Busby had wanted his bill transferred to the banking committee, but the powerful revenue group refused.

Billion-Dollar Proposal.

"We decided that it was properly before our committee and should be considered in connection with tax legislation at the special session," Rainey said.

None the less, the dirve continued on Capitol Hill for obtaining quick action under the new administration.

Steagall, of Alabama, called his House banking committee to consider today, among other subjects, his bill for a billion-dollar issue of Treasury notes supported by Government bonds and the remonetization of silver. Kvale, of Minnesota, lone Farmer-Laborite, called on Roosevelt to urge inflation. Ashurst, of Arizona, and Logan, of Kentucky, Democrats, told the Senate demonetization of silver would raise commodity prices and lift the depression.

Snow Balks Hunt For Bert Hinkler

British Airmen Forced to Abandon Search for Missing Comrade.

Lausanne, Switzerland, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Capt. W. L. Hope and his companion, Lieut. Hinley, who have been searching for Bert Hinkler, missing on a solo flight from England to Australia, today gave up the quest because of snow and fog.

After flying over the Valais region this afternoon without finding any trace of Hinkler they said they would return to London.

Hinkler left Pelham, England, 13 days ago. No reports have been received from him since that time. Hope went to Switzerland last Sunday to search the Alps, in which he believed Hinkler came down while en route to Brindisi, Italy, which was to be his first stop.

INAUGURAL POSTER $100 PRIZE OFFERED

Several Persons Are Added to Various Committees for March 4 Event.

A cash award of $100 will be paid the winner of a national competition to select a poster for the coming inaugural ball, it was announced yesterday after a meeting of the ball poster committee.

The committee, headed by Frederick A. Whiting, met at its headquarters in the Hill Building. It also was announced that honorable mention would be given three other posters considered by the committee.

Designs should be submitted on cardboard 20 by 28 inches. Any colors may be used, but artists should not sign their work. The name and address of the designer must be attached in a sealed envelope.

Judges Are Named.

Judges are Mrs. Miguel Paz, Miss Mary Howry, Miss Rielly, Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson, Mrs. Hamilton Lamar, Frederic A. Delano, C. Powell Minnigerode and Duncan Phillips.

An appropriation of $25,000 for inaugural expenses was asked yesterday in a resolution introduced by Representative Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee.

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the inaugural ball committee, announced that cooperation of the Junior League had been obtained in preparation for the affair. Work of sending out invitations through the league has already begun and the sale and distribution of tickets will be launched soon.

Spottswood White has been added to the committee on distinguished visitors and Mrs. Frank West and Mrs. Henry Leonard have been named to the committee on patronesses.

To Continue Publication.

At its meeting yesterday, the inaugural committee on historic sites, headed by George Rothwell Brown, voted to continue publication of a booklet pertaining to historic sites in Washington.

It was first suggested by the program committee that contents of the booklet be included in the official inaugural program. It was decided, however, that as long as the document has been published for the last 32 years it should be continued as a separate entity.

A request that national headquarters of patriotic and fraternal organizations interested in the inaugural parade communicate with member bodies was made by the inaugural parade committee.

Headquarters Set Up.

Justice James M. Proctor, chairman of the committee on aids of the committee on distinguished guests, yesterday established headquarters in the Washington Building. Information may be obtained by telephoning District 4322.

The following additions were made to the committee on general entertainment: Carter T. Barron, J. Clifford Brooke, Edwin F. Hill, J. C. C. Patterson and L. P. Steuart.

The program committee voted to issue a program entirely free of advertising.

If the "lame duck" amendment, now lacking only the ratification of three States to become effective, is approved, the inaugural ceremonies in 1937 will be set forward, and instead of on March 4, the new President will take office four years from yesterday.

Highway Congress Votes Permanence

H. C. Whitehurst Chosen President of Road Builders Group.

Detroit, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Members of the 22 organizations making up the Highway and Building Congress, closed their 1933 meeting tonight with the appointment of T. H. Cutler, of New York City, as chairman of the general committee of arrangements. A resolution was adopted to make the congress a permanent organization.

A plan and scope committee composed of three members was also created. The committee is composed of Willard T. Chevalier, New York City, president of the manufacturing division of the congress; Robert D. Kohn, New York City, president of the Construction League of the United States, and A. C. Tozzer, Washington, D. C., president of the Associated General Contractors.

H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways in the District of Columbia, was elected president of the American Road Builders Association, largest group of the 22. James H. MacDonald, of New Haven, Conn., was reelected treasurer.

BONAPARTE MANSION BURNS IN MARYLAND

Little Furniture or Paintings Saved From Historic Old Home.

Baltimore, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The old Bonaparte mansion at Mount Vista, near here, was destroyed by fire early today as seven members of the family living there were forced to flee in their night clothing.

The 26-room mansion was formerly the home of the late Charles J. Bonaparte, Attorney General in the Cabinet of President McKinley and descendant of Jerome Bonaparte, King of Westphalia and brother of Napoleon I.

J. Fred Obecht, jr., who lived there, was awakened by the odor of smoke shortly before 3 a. m. and he aroused his wife and five children in time to escape.

Little furniture or valuable pictures were saved. Firemen from Long Green and Fullerton pumped water from the swimming pool, water tanks and nearby ponds, but a stiff wind hampered their work.

'Chute Flare Clew To Lost Mail Pilot

Flier Is Not Heard From Since He Reported on "Tough Weather."

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A parachute flare found in a tree north of Boerne, Tex., late today was the first clew uncovered in a hunt for Ray Fuller, 36-year-old airmail pilot, missing since he reported by radio this morning the weather was "getting tough."

With a heavy rain along his route between San Antonio and Fredericksburg, Tex., Fuller was last heard from at 2:07 a. m., when he notified the officers of the American Airways at Winburn Field that he was lost. Fuller had left Big Spring at 11 p. m. Thursday and was due here at 2 a. m.

Searchers believed he has thrown the flare in an effort to find a likely spot for a landing. Pilots aided ground parties in a vain search of the rough hill country northwest of San Antonio for the flier.

Farley Comes to Capital; To Visit Warm Springs

(Associated Press.)

James A. Farley, of New York, chairman of the Democratic national committee, arrived here yesterday for a brief stay.

Farley said he would join President-elect Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., and remain there until Mr. Roosevelt leaves. Afterward, Farley said, he and Frank C. Walker, of New York, treasurer of the National committee, and Robert S. Jackson, secretary, would go to Miami, Fla., for a week's rest.

12 Hurt in Bomb Blast At Seville; 2 Arrested

Seville, Spain, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Twelve persons, including a woman and four children, were injured tonight by the explosion of a bomb at Socialist headquarters. Police found another unexploded bomb weighing 25 pounds in the building.

Two persons were arrested and a round-up of all anarchists was ordered in connection with the explosion.

A. H. HUTCHISON DEAD.

Herndon, Va., Democratic Leader Will Be Buried This Afternoon.

Andrew H. Hutchison, 78-year-old farmer and Democratic leader of Herndon, Va., died yesterday at the home of his niece, Mrs. Robert Allen, in Washington. He had been ill for more than three months. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lucy G. Hutchison. He had made his home in Fairfax County all of his life.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon from the residence in Herndon by Elder H. L. Lefferts, of Leesburg Old School Baptist Church. Interment will be in Herndon Cemetery.

DR. H. R. ROBERTS, COLLEGE HEAD, DIES

Sudden Death Comes While Music Executive Was at School.

A sudden heart attack proved fatal yesterday to Dr. Hugh Rowland Roberts, 58 years od, president of the Washington College of Music. Death came at 9:15 a. m., in his quarters at the college, 2107 S street northwest.

Dr. Roberts had not been in good health since an attack of influenza several months ago. He had felt unusually well Thursday, however. This morning he suffered what he thought was an attack of indigestion and called his wife. He died before she could summon a physician.

Dr. Roberts came to Washington nine years ago. He has been president of the college for five years. He was a native of Lake Crystal, Minn. His college education was received at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind., and was teacher of voice and choral conductor there for eight years.

For four years he was a pupil of Dr. William Wade Henshaw, of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and also studied under James Savage in New York. Dr. Roberts later taught voice at Leland Stanford University and spent a year as director of music and associate secretary of entertainment with the American Expeditionary Forces.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fanny Amstutz Roberts, and his son, Rowland F. Roberts, 16, a student at Woodward School.

Final funeral arrangements are being held in abeyance pending the arrival of Mrs. Roberts' brother, Frank Amstutz, of Atlantic City, N. J., and father, Noah Amstutz, of Valparaiso, Ind.

Memorial services will be held for Dr. Roberts tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at All Souls Unitarian Church, Sixteenth street and Columbia road northwest. Place of interment has not been decided.

Dedication of the Washington College of Music auditorium, which was to have been held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, has been postponed because of Dr. Roberts' death, to the same hour January 29.

Leo M. Dunn Dies at 58; Graybar Vice President

Dunn, born in Ishpeming, Mich., began his business life as an office boy for the Central District Printing & Telegraph Co., in Pittsburgh. In 1910 he became chief storekeeper of the Western Electric Co., at Pittsburgh, and three years later was made manager. In 1918 he was transferred to Philadelphia where he became assistant Eastern district manager, and in 1921 came to New York as manager.

Autoists Trapped; Snowplows Used

50 Victims in California Include Mother and Baby, 2 Weeks Old.

Los Angeles, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Snowplows were being driven under full power tonight in an endeavor to cut into a region of the high Sierra in Mono County, where 50 motorists were trapped by high drifts under a raging blizzard.

The victims included a mother with a baby 2 weeks old, and other small children. They were being cared for in the cabins of the few winter residents of the section. Food supplies, however, were reported low.

Over the lowlands of southern California, weather violence which made this one of the stormiest weeks of recent history apparently was at an end. Rainfall dwindled, and the sun made a brief appearance over Los Angeles late today.

Flier on Way to Brother's Funeral Escapes in Crash

Flying to Washington to attend the funeral today of his brother, Lieut. Edwin F. Conway, U. S. Navy, who was killed when his airplane crashed in New York last Tuesday, Lieut. Harold J. Conway, U. S. Army, narrowly escaped death late Thursday when the motor of his plane failed 10 miles outside of Washington and the pilot was obliged to make a forced landing in a muddy field near La Plata, Md.

Accompanied by Lieut. John C. Covington, of Pope Field, N. C., who was acting as pilot, Lieut. Conway was on his way here from Fort Crockett, Tex., where he is stationed. When the motor stopped, Lieut. Covington displayed exceptional flying ability by dropping the fast ship into the little field without striking any obstacles, narrowly missing the lighthouse at Upper Cedar Point.

As the plane struck the ground with its motor dead it nosed over and was damaged. It did not burn and neither officer suffered severe injuries. Because of the small size of the field and the damaged condition of the plane it was found necessary to dismantle it and bring it to Bolling Field, where it will be repaired.

Funeral service for Lieut. Edwin Conway will be held at 11 a. m. today in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors. Chaplain Thomas J. Knox, U. S. N., will officiate.

A five-plane formation in which the second plane will be missing to indicate the loss of the dead officer will drop a wreath over the grave during the services. Classmates and shipmates of Lieut. Conway now stationed at Anacostia Naval Air Station will fly the formation.

Honorary pall bearers, all classmates of Lieut. Conway, will be Lieut. W. G. Tomlinson, Lieut. M. E. Browder, Lieut. George P. Kraker, Lieut. G. A. Seitz, Lieut. S. L. LaHache and Lieut. W. H. Buracker.

WINNIE JUDD'S DEED JUSTIFIED BY JUDGE

Court Says Slaying of Two Women Did Not Constitute Murder.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Winnie Ruth Judd, condemned "blonde tigress," committed justifiable homicide when she shot two women friends, Judge J. C. Niles declared today in a qualified ruling at the preliminary hearing of J. J. Halloran, charged as her accessory.

The unexpected statement of the court was made after the prosecution rested its case against Halloran, based almost entirely on four days of testimony by Mrs. Judd.

Judge Niles indicated this would be his attitude in making a final ruling on Halloran's motion to strike out all of Mrs. Judd's testimony on the grounds she is "mentally and physically incompetent."

The hearing was continued until tomorrow, when he said the county attorney will be heard in opposition to the motion, on which the whole case against Halloran rests.

Mrs. Judd, sentenced to hang February 17 on conviction of the murder of Agnes Ann Leroi, charged Halloran aided her in disposing of that body and the body of Miss Hedvig Samuelson. She said she shot in self-defense when the two women attacked her.

"Evidence presented to date in the hearing," Judge Niles said, "leads me to believe the killings apparently constituted justifiable homicide.

"So far no evidence has been introduced to show the crime of murder has been committed. The conviction of the accusing witness, Winnie Ruth Judd, of the crime of murder of Agnes Ann Leroi is not binding on the defendant in this case."

The judge's statement was taken to mean that unless County Attorney Renz L. Jenninga can show a stronger case, Halloran will be freed.

While the attitude of the Municipal Court will have no legal bearing on the State Board of Paroles, it was believed the decision would carry great weight with the members when they consider Mrs. Judd's application for a commutation of her sentence to life imprisonment.

OFFICE OF CORONER MAY BE ABOLISHED

regards the number of unsolved murders in the Nation's Capital as "pathetic."

With a medical examiner, trained not only in medicine but in criminal detection, and trained assistants, including an expert pathologist, he thinks the District can write a new and more satisfactory chapter in its history of crime apprehension.

He points out that the medical examiner's office, of the nature proposed, would not content itself with passing judgment on the mere manner of death, but would track down each medical clew available with an eye to solution of any mystery involved.

The Copeland proposal has strong support in the House, where Representative Loring M. Black, jr., New York, influential member of the House District Committee, is prepared to back it to the limit. Representative Anthony J. Griffin is another New York Democrat, who will support the reform.

Present System "Archaic."

It is understood Corporation Counsel William W. Bride will favor the change when called on for his legal advice by the District Commissioners. He is known to regard the present system of coroners here as "archaic" and outmoded.

As the coroner's office is provided for under the District code, special action of Congress will be necessary to bring about the change.

It is extremely doubtful a bill can be drafted and pushed through both houses at this late hour in the short session, though an attempt may be made. Should it be found altogether hopeless, a movement in this direction is anticipated early in the special session. Meanwhile it is expected the existing vacancy will not be filled.

Convinced of Efficiency.

The office of medical examiner was substituted for the old coroner system in New York before the war, and results have far surpassed expectations in the city's record of murders solved through cooperation of the office with police and district attorney. Shortly after its institution Senator Copeland was made health commissioner of the city. It was while serving in this capacity he became convinced of its efficiency as opposed to earlier unscientific methods.

It was pointed out the proposed office would infringe in no particular on the duties of the health officer, the one concerning itself only with the "quick," the other with the dead. Advocates, however, scouted the reform would amount to much more than a change in the name of the present coroner's office—it would call for a radical change in functions.

Rabbi Metz Describes Capture of Jerusalem

Telling of the siege of Jerusalem by the Roman legions and of the brave deeds of Jewish warriors who lost their lives in a futile attempt to save the Jewish nation from slavery, Rabbi Solomon Metz, leader of the Adas Israel Congregation at Sixth and I streets northwest, said at a service last night that rabbinical scholars of that era understood the inevitable fate of their people and saved the identity of the race by preserving their traditions and learnings.

An open discussion led by the Rev. Louis Novick, cantor of the congregation, followed the service.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

THE reactions a small boy gets from a visit to Commerce Aquarium is a source of constant pleasure to the older boy, his Dad.

RILEY

His first step into the darkened room seems to cause a hesitancy as to where to go, but it is generally right across to one of the 2,000-gallon tanks which the rainbow trout call "home."

There, among some tree roots, the trout gracefully dart about, chasing, playing and fighting, then to the left, where the boy's real thrill comes, in a tufa stone aquarium, where hiding places are left and pockets with plants make this location ideal.

This is the little "tobacco box," the little common sunfish that seems attracted to a bent pin with a wiggling worm or grasshopper in preference to fancy lures on silk lines. He is surely the gift of the gods to the future nature lover.

Then the ugly gars, the alligator gars, whose coats were used by the Indians to armor their war shields, and his large teeth as ornaments. And they even used the teeth as the tiny arrow barbs for birds, or to develop skill in the Indian youngster. At present the Mississippi mudcats, which also have space there, are sluggish and keep under a tree root by day, but go out at night to find food.

TUT, TUT.

THE following incident actually occurred in the P. and A. Section, Coast Guard Department, says Morris Fradin, Allowance Office, Navy Yard:

When a certain Coast Guard department clerk, with a vitriolic temper, ambled into his office after the Christmas holidays, he discovered his 3-day-old package of butter missing from its window-ledge "icebox."

Resulting "investigation" placed the entire office force under humorous suspicion. Everyone accused his fellow-worker of committing the "heinous crime." The unprintable remarks of the outraged owner peppered the air remainder of the day.

When the package reappeared the next day in its rightful place, wrapped in an old carbon copy letter from a wastebasket, tension ran high, suspicion ran rife. The section chief was prevailed upon to exercise his former skill as finger-print expert, in tracking down the repentant thief. He made elaborate preparations, dusting finger-print powder all over every smudge.

Suddenly, the office quarrelers, an elderly lady and her young man assistant went into a heated accusation contest. The e. l. accused the y. m. of spitefully wrapping the butter in an old letter from her waste-basket in order to throw suspicion on her. Fireworks shot hot and heavy—the match being finally brought to an undignified finish by the 4:30 bell.

They're making more mistakes in Germany, judging by export of erasers from the United States. Rubber products exports generally are picking up, E. G. Holt, chief, Commerce Rubber Division, reports.

Swarmi had seen Paris in a big way. He had seen those big black eyes of Madamoiselle. She had seen him, his note, his taxicab and his departure. There was not much else for either to see. It was back to the boat train for Fedd, then to board ship for his adopted land, this land of "It-could-have-been-worse."

Surely the captain of Maritime could decode Fedd's note. The captain presides at marry-time aboard ship. Anyway, we shall see.

A royal greeting awaited Thomas R. Brooks at the Weather Bureau today upon his return to his desk after a considerable absence on account of sickness. One of several placards of welcome which he found on his desk read: "Hip, hip, for Thomas. We can kill the old red rooster now." Glad to see you back, Tom.

ONE word leads to others, soon we have another good story:

"In today's (Thursday's) Federal Diary you have the following: 'Miss Emily Steele, Indices Section, I. C. C., probably is the only woman to jump from a plane and fly one in this city,' Jerry Runnion Wilson tells us."

"Of course, you put the 'probably' in so it doesn't mean a fact, but here 'tis:

"Miss Harriet Sackett, Visa Office, State Department, has had a private pilot's license three years and she was the first girl solo student to make a parachute jump—which she did at Hybla Valley shortly after she got her license, and made a beautiful landing.

"Miss Helen Frigo, of the Pathe News Service, has a private pilot's license, and she has made two parachute jumps—and likes it.

"The note about Miss Steele was slightly confused. She has never soloed an airplane, but she is probably the first girl who has piloted a glider, to make a parachute jump.

"I just wanted you to be fair to the Misses Harriet and Helen. Incidentally all three girls are members of the D. C. Air Legion.

"JERRY RUNNION WILSON.

"First girl from District of Columbia to make parachute jump, but have not soloed a plane; and 'ancient' member of the D. C. Air Legion. 4½ year ago.)"

"Far from the madding crowd" on 24-hour duty keeping the lights that protect the men who go down to the sea in ships on stormy nights, the above scene is that of Fowey Rock, Fla., Lighthouse, one of the most famous in operation, built in 1878, 12 miles from Miami. A model of this lighthouse is on display in Commerce lobby.

Having found, through its recent questionnaire, that Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces would prefer to compete in a tournament rather than a league, Federal News, National Federation of Federal Employes publication, is preparing to stage an event in the near future to decide the chess and checker championship of the local Federal service.

All arrangements and requirements will be announced as soon as possible, and Earle Moser, sports editor of the publication, invites workers to submit any suggestions at 10 B street southwest.

Youngsters have gone in for those dandy little bird boxes described in the current Diary Hobby series. Parents are ordering several at a time and the lads themselves are coming in and asking just how soon they can get their copies.

Washington, the city of "circles." Nine. Dupont, Scott, Thomas, Grant, Thompson, Observatory, Randle, Sheridan and Sherman.

Washington, with its many blue white street lights, is extraordinarily beautiful at night from the air, as viewed from one of Mr. Ludington's planes. The only city that might be compared with Washington by night is Dallas, but Washington still holds the ribbon. Which reminds us, many Government employes use this line for official business and speed.

Our big sundial, Washington Monument, casts a shadow at 4 p. m., almost to the Postoffice Department Building.

And if you haven't ever eaten any rattlesnake steak, suit yourself. Everyone to his own taste, but we have the word of E. G. Montgomery, foodstuffs division, Commerce, that the new delicacy is being sold, canned. And while Mr. Montgomery has not told us, we know the snakes must not be killed while angry. It's the old theory of "milk from contented cows."

Five new citizens in Washington. Dr. Thomas Barbour, head of Harvard University Museum, has just sent Dr. William M. Mann, Zoological Gardens director, five Cuban turtles, the first of that species to be seen here. The turtle tribe is on parade at the Zoo.

Patent Office boys at it again on the playgrounds opposite Commerce. Springlike and it won't be long before umpires will be dusting the old platters again. Maybe it'll be a short winter, after all.

Maybe members of Congress have a higher estimate of some of the work at Commerce, what with three senators last night attending the National Aquarium Society's guppy exhibit, thronged by nearly 500 persons.

Decision Advances Hopes of Germany

Nation Welcomes Anything Aimed at Debt Accord, Dieckhoff Says.

Berlin, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The assurance that America will discuss war debts with Great Britain is welcomed in Germany, Hans Dieckhoff, who is in charge of the American section of the foreign office, said tonight.

This is the German position, he explained, although Germany has a detached attitude toward the whole question of interallied debts.

"I can certainly tell you that the German government welcomes everything that will hasten a solution of the debts question," Herr Dieckhoff said. "We knew what a tremendous role America is destined to play in that issue."

Canadian Trapper Addresses Boys.

Shelton T. Cameron, dressed as a Canadian woods camper, gave a lecture illustrated by movies of his experiences as a trapper to members of the Boys Garden Club at an entertainment last night at the Y. M. C. A. sponsored by the Washington Civitan Club.

White Collars

WHAT does the "white collar" worker think of a labor union?

As one talks to Government service men and women, he finds some having a professional status who look askance on such association with ideals that appear foreign to the scientist, lawyer or research worker, but others readily admit that when persons who work for a living resort to group effort they begin to "get somewhere."

It is of particular interest to find this flat and unqualified indorsement of trade union principles which appeared in the current issue of A. F. G. E. Progress, published by the organization committee of the American Federation of Government Employes:

"It has been demonstrated without a question of doubt that nothing can be gained without organization." The writer is Michael D. Schaefer, president of the District Department of the A. F. G. E., an engineer with the Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department, and former chief clerk of the Bureau of Construction and Repair.

SCHAEFER goes on to explain: "This was forcibly brought to my attention back in 1890 when, after leaving college, I served my apprenticeship in one of the leading shipyards of this country. When a few boys employed as 'rivet heaters' felt that their pay was not sufficient, they appealed to their superiors for an increase in pay. This was refused. A few days later the trades organized under the A. F. of L. laid off work and informed the company that they would not resume operations until those boys got their raise, and the union men returned to work."

Schaefer states further that as far back as 1896 he joined the American Draftsmen's Association, organized to prevent the employment of foreigners in the Government service. In 1916 he was president of the Federal Employes Union, No. 14632, directly affiliated to the A. F. of L. He points out that the reason retirement legislation was delayed "was due to the tardiness of Government employes to support this movement or any other movement to better conditions of the Federal worker. This in a sense might have been attributed to fear on account of the fact that Government employes felt a great hesitancy to voice their protests to Congress without jeopardizing their positions."

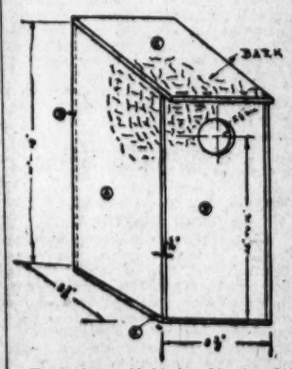
Diary Hobby List

What's Your Hobby?

(This is the seventh of a series of articles prepared by the National Committee on Wood Utilization in its effort to bring about utilization of second-hand wooden containers such as boxes, crates and barrels, now thrown away or burned.)

MAKE A CHICKADEE HOUSE.

ANY chickadee, titmouse or nuthatch will welcome a house like this covered with bark and located in an old orchard. Suet and nut meats placed on trays in trees nearby always will help to attract these birds. This house may be easily constructed from pieces of old wooden boxes cut to the following dimensions:



Two pieces 11-16 by 5½ by 8½ inches for sides (A). One piece 11-16 by 5⅜ by 6⅜ inches for (B). One piece 11-16 by 5⅜ by 7½ inches for (C). One piece 11-16 by 5⅜ by 5⅜ inches for floor (D). One piece 11-16 by 5⅜ by 8 3-16 inches for (E). Two butts (hinges). One hook and eye.

Lay out and cut sides (A) as shown Bore 1⅛ inch diameter hole through one side. Nail (B), (C) and (E) to sides (A). Hinge floor (D) to (E). Cover the house with bark. Houses for chickadees and titmice should be placed 6 to 15 feet above the ground. Nuthatch houses should be placed 12 to 20 feet above ground.

Dimensions and proper location of homes for 27 different species of birds will be found in the booklet, "You Can Make It for Camp and Cottage," published by the National Committee on Wood Utilization.

Tomorrow: A flicker house.

Booklets, illustrated, can be had from the Hobby Editor, Washington Post, on "You Can Make It for Camp and Cottage," "You Can Make It" and "You Can Make It for Profit" (for unemployed), any or all, 5 cents each, stamps or coin, postpaid.

Young Professor Found Fatally Shot in His Home

CURT DEMAND MADE ON JAPAN BY LEAGUE

Tells Tokyo Reply to Compromise Plan Must Be Presented Today.

Geneva, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Dissatisfied that Japan failed to reply to its compromise proposal on conciliation, the committee of nineteen of the League of Nations today presented the Japanese with a virtual ultimatum that the response should be ready when the committee reconvenes tomorrow afternoon.

Thus another 24 hours were given for realization of the last possibility of a conciliatory settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute.

The committee's proposal is in the form of a question: Will Japan withdraw other objections to the plan of settlement suggested by league leaders if the league assembly agrees with Japan that the United States and Russia shall not be invited to participate in a conciliation commission?

These other objections which Japan advances and which the committee is unwilling to accept, are that the resolution embodying the conciliation formula shall not mention the question of recognition of the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo; that it shall provide for a small conciliation body of five or seven members instead of a larger one and that this body shall have advisory and not directive functions in direct negotiations between Japan and China.

Yosuke Matsuoka's own suggestions for compromise were presented to the committee, but the committee declined to consider them. They were understood to be approximately the same as the unacceptable suggestions advanced by the Japanese several days ago through Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league.

Members of the committee expressed the conviction Japan should have ample time to reply by tomorrow to the question asked on Wednesday.

One member of the committee said the decision was an ultimatum to Japan suggesting that if Japan's position tomorrow is unsatisfactory the committee will porceed to draft a report as authorized by paragraph 4, article 15, of the covenant of the league. This paragraph provides for recommendations for league action.

session of the Diet after the New Year holiday, sternly warned the "government and people of China against unfortunate eventualities" which may arise and invited them to "think seriously before proceeding further" in the direction of military and economic movements against Japan.

Although the foreign minister spoke in the House of Peers, he equally addressed the audience of world statesmen who are anxiously watching the war clouds over north China, since his speech was telegraphed to every major capital for dissemination.

Count Uchida declared that Japan believed the Kuomintang (Chinese Nationalist) Congress has backed a positive campaign against Japan.

He clearly indicated that Japan will join in "the task of maintaining peace and order" in the Province of Jehol and concluded by making a bid for "recognition that the constructive force of Japan is the mainstay of tranquillity in this part of the world."

Government's Muscle Shoals (Ala.) power and nitrate plant tomorrow, en route to Warm Springs, Ga., Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied by members of Congress closely interested in the legislative dispute over future control of this gigantic property. In the party was the veteran Senator Norris, of Nebraska, Republican Independent leader, who has fought the deadlocked contest for Government operation and control.

The President-elect seemed happy and relaxed after the busy 24 hours in Washington, which also brought him into intimate contact with the Democratic leaders of Congress. Apparently convinced that an extra session of the new Congress must be called early in April, he now obviously is driving to get farm relief out of the way before then and have the foreign situation adjusted.

There is reason to believe, also, that the Washington visit afforded a big opportunity to talk over Cabinet selections with some of those under consideration as members of his official family, including Senators Glass, of Virginia, and Walsh, of Montana.

There was hardly a free minute at the Capital, and Mr. Roosevelt was late in getting started from the city on his special train. Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall, daughter of the President-elect, joined him at Washington for the trip.

It is expected by Mr. Roosevelt that the British debt and economic envoys will be in Washington by the time he takes office at noon on March 4.

He also left the door open at today's White House discussion for another conference with President Hoover on his return from the South in February, telling the President if anything new developed before then he would be glad to talk things over again.

This was regarded as another indication that overtures from other nations on debts and economics are expected.

A Step Forward, Comment in Rome

News From Washington on Plans for Debt Parley Advances Hopes.

Rome, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The American decision to discuss the debts with Great Britain aroused the comment in circles close to the Government that it was a step in the right way. It was welcomed especially as indicating the treatment Italy may expect.

When the Italian government decided to pay the debt interest due December 15 it announced it would solicit reexamination of the matter prior to June, when a principal payment is due.

Premier Mussolini's policy has been consistently in favor of cancellation of both debts and reparations, but failing this he has indicated he will insist on reconsideration of Italy's debt in the light of the nation's capacity to pay. The news from Washington concerning the decision to discuss the question with Great Britain came too late for an official statement.

Montagu Norman to Take Young Divorcee as Bride

Head of Bank of England Will Wed Political Orator Who Is 33.

London, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Unexpected romance in the life of Montagu Norman, secretive governor of the Bank of England, was revealed in announcement today of his engagement to marry a young divorcee.

London was startled to read of his engagement to Mrs. Priscilla Worsthorne, slim, blonde and 33. The private life of the "sphinx of Threadneedle street" always has been as mysterious as his financial dealings. He is 61.

His fiancee is a relative of the Earl of Abingdon. She takes an active interest in public affairs rather than live the life of an idle society woman. Her chief interests are education and public health, particularly concerning women and children.

She makes political speeches in a quiet, well-modulated voice with convincing effect. Mrs. Worthorne is a member of the London County Council and a resident of fashionable Cadogan Square, in Chelsea. She formerly was one of the borough councilors in that district of London and an old friend of the Norman family.

Norman has been governor of the Bank of England for 12 terms, an unprecedented length of service. One of the most powerful men in the world of finance, he is quiet, almost shy, with the manner of an artist.

Norman was once described as a man "who spoke in monosyllables and thought in millions." He has never been interviewed and broke a silence of years once only to remark, "Don't believe all you hear."

He visited the United States via Canada last year, traveling incognito as "Prof. Skinner." He customarily goes about his financial missions under assumed names and in semidisguise.

MONTAGUE NORMAN.

His identity was learned when he was in America, and his mission was one of the most talked of financial "secrets" of last year.

Mrs. Worsthorne presented notification of intended marriage at a London registry office late yesterday. The marriage certificate will be issued tomorrow and the wedding may take place any time thereafter.

BRITISH INVITED TO PARLEY ON WAR DEBTS BY STIMSON

It is expected that the British government can use the intervening time between now and the 4th of March for the selection of the British delegation. Greater facilities can be brought to the preliminary negotiations by the announcement from the President-elect of his Secretary of State and Secretary of the Treasury, although in the interim complete assurance had been given him that these Cabinet officers and the President himself had placed themselves at his disposition for the successful carrying out of the negotiations.

It was indicated in sources close to the British Embassy last night that the probable British delegation will comprise Stanley Baldwin, who negotiated the original Mellon-Baldwin agreement; Neville Chamberlain and Sir Walter Runciman, the chairman of the board of trade. They will be prepared to come to Washington immediately after the inauguration and will in all probability plunge into discussion of the terms of settlement without delay.

Two Phases of Problem.

It was definitely stated last night that the present state of the negotiations has not gone beyond the question of method. The problem as it is seen here presents two phases, the preliminary, which will be confined to questions of procedure, and the definitive, or that stage of negotiation which will be inaugurated with the arrival in Washington of the British delegation.

It was stated that no proposal has been put forward for the consideration of any "lump sum" settlement at the present time. The very inadequacy of the machinery as it at present exists would prevent any but the elementary details from cropping up now. However, it was emphasized that the future negotiations would be considerably enhanced if the President-elect would be able to decide on his Secretary of State at an early date. The advantage that would be derived from this knowledge would enable both parties to work more swiftly to the definite stage of discussion, which would then be immeasurably shortened. Such a proceeding would contribute unquestionably to the stabilization of world conditions and the general economic improvement.

White House Statement.

The formal statement from the White House follows:

The conference between the President and the President-elect this morning was attended by Secretaries Stimson and Mills and Messrs. Norman Davis and Moley. The discussions were devoted mainly to a canvass of the foreign situation and the following statement covering the procedure to be followed was agreed upon:

"The British government has asked for a discussion of the debts. The incoming administration will be glad to receive their representative early in March for this purpose. It is, of course, necessary to discuss at the same time the world economic problems in which the United States and Great Britain are mutually interested, and therefore that representatives should also be sent to discuss ways and means for improving the world situation."

It was settled that these arrangements will be taken up by the Secretary of State with the British government.

Due First Consideration.

It was felt by Mr. Roosevelt that since Great Britain had been the first nation to ask for reconsideration of the debt revision, and since this demand had been accompanied by British payment of the December 15 annuity, first consideration should be given the British demands. This formula foreshadowed the same procedure with regard to the Italian debt which was also paid on the due date.

The arrival here of the new Italian Ambassador, Augusto Rosso, is believed to presage a similar demarche by the Italian government in favor of revision of the Italian war-debt agreements likewise. Ambassador Rosso is perhaps the most brilliant of the modern diplomats in Italy and Premier Mussolini is known to repose great confidence in him. A similar step by the Italian government is therefore anticipated.

France and Belgium, two of the countries which defaulted on their December 15 payment, remain in a decidedly unfavorable situation, which was echoed in the Senate yesterday when Senator Arthur R. Robinson led a chorus of criticism of the French default. Senators Fess, Smoot, Copeland and Howell joined in.

Debts Main Topic.

France and other defaulting countries will be barred from further debt revision until they have first paid their war debts to the United States.

It was indicated from yesterday's action.

The White House discussions dwelt chiefly on the war debt and its interrelated problems, although the close connection between the problem of intergovernmental debts and the World Economic Conference, brought these two problems together at several stages of the talks. No mention was made of the Lytton report since the President-elect deemed his corroborative statement on the Hoover-Stimson doctrine sufficient for the necessary energentic action on the report at the League of Nations.

The project of opening the British war debt discussions will inevitably bring up the existing limitations which the Ottowa Conference put upon the hitherto intensive Anglo-American trade relations. The restrictive methods which were evolved at the conference for the benefit of the British Empire has served materially to check the flow of trade between not only the United States and Great Britain, but also between the United States and Canada.

Trade Restrictions Angle.

Out of the forthcoming conference between the representatives of the English speaking nations, will come in all probability some agreement limiting the purview of the trade restrictions which have worked to the economic distress of both the United States and Great Britain. Observers here last night professed to see in the Anglo-American negotiations the possibility of still closer cooperation between the two nations, especially in view of recent developments in the Far East. British and American interests are allied in the maintenance of the open door as an international concept in China and the necessity of continuing this policy in the face of Japanese aggression in Manchuria will probably be borne out in the forthcoming Washington discussions.

The treaty between Great Britain and Japan which had been the source of much of the misunderstanding between London and Washington was only ended at the Washington conference of 1922 and it was believed possible last night that some understanding in a different direction for future Far Eastern problems would come out of the new negotiations.

Difference in Methods.

Out of the Washington discussions will come considerable optimism for the eventual success of the world economic conference also since President-elect Roosevelt is one with the the President in the belief of the necessity of first settling the intergovernmental debts before embarking on any further discussion of international cooperation. The difference between the two Executives is in the choice of method.

President Hoover had proposed a plan for dealing with the debts, which would have included a commission or some other continuant agency, appointed by the President-elect himself, but which could have begun its labors immediately in order to forestall the loss of time that inevitably will occur with the difference in administrations.

The plan which was worked out at yesterday's meetings both in the White House as well as in the State Department afterward conserves the best features of both the Hoover plan and the Roosevelt plan. Direct diplomacy will be initiated by Secretary Stimson acting ad interim as the first officer of the Cabinet of the incoming President while the commission form will be evolved after President-elect Roosevelt has had an opportunity of reviewing the preliminary findings of the diplomats of both countries. Then the personnel of the American debt commission will be announced and the date for the conference fixed.

Geneva Welcomes Debt Parley News

Washington Decision May Affect Committee on Economic Sessions.

Geneva, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Hoover-Roosevelt agreement on British debt discussions was welcomed in Geneva today as greatly increasing the prospects for success of the world economic conference, especially if examination of the question with other debtors follows.

Only yesterday the preparatory committee of experts of the conference emphasized the necessity of settlement of the debt problem.

The Washington decision encouraged those who favor early convocation of the conference and it may affect the views of the organizing committee which will meet here January 26 to fix the date of the parley. Some authorities still favor holding the conference early in May, although most of the sentiment here is that June is the earliest probability.

DEBT PARLEY PLANS PLEASING TO FRANCE

Anglo-American Progress Will Aid Entire Situation, Is Attitude.

Paris, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Official quarters expressed no dissatisfaction today because there was no mention of France in the statement issued in Washington that President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt had agreed on war debt discussions with Great Britain shortly after the change in administration.

The attitude expressed here was that in the long run the entire debt situation would be clarified by the progress made in the Anglo-American negotiations.

Before the Washington statement was issued a foreign office spokesman said France was ready to negotiate with the United States in the event Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt chose to reopen the question before March 4.

Government officials and French newspapers displayed closest interest in the Hoover-Roosevelt meeting. As soon as news of the statement issued by the two men had been received, it was hurriedly communicated to Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, who at the time was discussing financial matters in his office with Finance Minister Cheron.

At the foreign office a spokesman expressed satisfaction over the fact that the American President and President-elect had agreed on debt discussions with Britain.

CABMAN ARRESTED IN HOLDUP SLAYING

Laughed at Men.

When they were told to hand over the money, Stumm said he laughed. Then both men opened fire. Ecklund fell to the ground, fatally wounded, and Stumm was struck in the body.

The two Negroes then ran south on New Jersey avenue and about a block away hailed a taxicab and got in.

Edward Roderick witnessed the shooting. He said the two colored men opened fire on the pair with the money and fled as they dropped to the sidewalk.

Cash, who, police said, began driving a cab after he lost his job with the Browning Painting Co., told the desk clerk he had been robbed by two colored men when he came into the Sixth Precinct Station House. He disclaimed any knowledge of the shooting.

Lookout Sent for Him.

Soon after the shooting, police sent a lookout for him, but refused to give a reason. After his arrest, homicide squad detectives disappeared with him, and at a late hour last night his whereabouts could not be learned.

Near the scene of the shooting was a Capitol policeman, Folmer M. Menne. He heard the shots and hurried there, arriving just as the two men got in the cab and drove away.

He, although unarmed, commandeered another cab and followed, but lost the trail after a short chase.

On Way to Building.

Police were told that the painting company employes had just finished preparing the pay roll and were on their way to the building to distribute it when the bandits approached them.

It was thought at first that the gunmen had obtained the money, but later, at the hospital, it was found in the pockets of the men.

Detectives declared that the holdup must have been engineered by some one familiar with the habits of the two men, and believe that the job was "fingered" by some one who worked with or knew them.

Ecklund, according to J. F. Aylor, proprietor of the rooming house where the two men lived, said he has a wife and daughter in Brooklyn. Stumm also has a wife there, Aylor said.

Drove Off at High Speed.

Another witness, L. L. Barber, of 406 Sixth street northwest, who was polishing a car nearby, saw the attackers flee from the scene. He said:

"I heard shots and looked around to see two men on the ground and two colored men running away. They jumped out into the street and stopped a taxicab. I think they pulled guns on the driver, for he drove away at high speed."

William McQueeney, of Takoma Park, Md., saw the bandits get into the taxicab. He was able to give police a good description of them, but did not get the license number of the cab.

Cartridges Are Found.

Several discharged cartridges were found on the sidewalk. Lieut. John Fowler, police ballistics investigator, said they were from a .35-caliber automatic pistol.

Ecklund had resigned his job, effective yesterday, and planned to return to New York to accept another position. Stumm, who had succeeded to his duties, took over the pay roll and Ecklund was assisting him in its preparation and delivery.

News of the shooting soon reached the Capitol, just across the street, and many members of Congress viewed the murder scene from the balcony of the Speaker's lobby.

Gambrill Hits Discharge Of Annapolis Instructors

(Associated Press.)

Representative Gambrill (Democrat), Maryland, yesterday said he planned to oppose the discharge of thirteen civilian instructors at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The instructors have already received notice their services will be terminated next June. Mr. Gambrill hopes to have provision for retaining them put in the Navy appropriation bill. A group of Annapolis business men called on Mr. Gambrill and on Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, yesterday to urge retention of the instructors.

SENATORS DENOUNCE DEFAULT BY FRANCE

Several Members Join Sharp Attack on Paris Refusal to Pay Just Debt.

(Associated Press.)

A concentrated attack on France's default on her war debt to America was loosed in the Senate yesterday after Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, had termed that country a "thorough ingrate," and urged prompt passage of the Johnson bill to bar financial dealings with nations failing to pay.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, expressed resentment at statements "by the great metropolitan newspapers that this was to be a gift, and not a loan to be repaid." He said France has assumed a "childish" attitude toward America, who helped her in time of need with "money and men."

Senators Smoot (Republican), Utah; Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Howell (Republican), Nebraska, joined in the criticism of France and other defaulting countries.

Senator Smoot, a member of the defunct debt funding commission, said the nations' debt representatives knew when they negotiated the settlements that the loans were "just as sacred as any obligation that could be made between man and man and nation and nation."

Copeland said it was "amazing to me how much resentment is felt by the American people over the failure of France to meet her obligations." He told of an unnamed American Legion of Honor man—an "outstanding journalist" of New York City—who had returned his award to the French government because of her default.

Howell said the French default was "almost unbelievable, when this country has been as generous as it has." Part of the French debt, he said, was $400,000,000 which France agreed to pay for surplus war supplies valued at $2,000,000,000.

"France began to sell those supplies and accounted publicly what she received until it reached $236,000,000 and then no longer made public the returns," he said.

"All France has paid to us is not equivalent to what she has received from the sale of those supplies."

D. C. Heads Oppose Tax Refund Plea

Declare Paying of Woman's Claim Would Not Be Fair.

The District Commissioners yesterday reported adversely to the Senate Committee on Claims against the relief of Ida W. Farley, who owns property at 1102 B street northeast, and who sought a refund of taxes paid under the Borland law more than three years before a claim was filed.

Pointing out that perhaps $5,000,000 was paid to the District government under the two Borland laws, and that many refunds were made under an act of February 11, 1929, the Commissioners pointed out that many claims were denied because of failure to file within the periods specified or on account of the statute of limitations.

To make exception in the case in question would be unfair, the Commissioners stated, and to pay all such claims would require increased taxation to raise the funds.

Aquarium Will Become Hatchery for Whitefish

A portion of the huge aquarium in the Department of Commerce will be transformed into a hatchery for the purpose of cultivating 10,000 whitefish eggs, it was announced yesterday by the Bureau of Fisheries.

The bureau is perfecting plans for the hatching of these eggs in order to satisfy demands of schools throughout this section. Carpenters have started the erection of a hatchery in the aquarium and the eggs will be brought here from one of the bureau's stations on the Great Lakes.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

London, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Four thousand men who operate buses on 27 suburban routes went on strike today in protest against the speeding up of the schedule on one route by seven-tenth of a mile per hour.

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A critical session of the South African Parliament which may result in the defeat of Premier Hertzog's government opened today. There has been considerable opposition to the government's economic policies.

Wiener Neustadt, Austria, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A lawsuit of Princess Alice del Prete, nee Bourbon, against her sister, Princess Beautrix, over the possession of the preserved heart of Ludwig the XIV and other valuables is causing a sensation in aristocratic circles here.

Buenos Aires, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Fires in the southern part of Buenos Aires Province were reported today to have caused heavy damage to crops and live stock. The flames, which had burned over 200 square miles, were fanned by a strong north wind toward the hills, where it was hoped they would burn out. The railroad between Bahia Blanca and Wisdma was threatened.

London, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Criticism of America's three newest battleships, the Colorado, the Maryland and the West Virginia, is expressed by Sir George Thurston, writing in the 1933 edition of Brassey's Naval and Shipping Annual.

Calgary, Alberta, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Directing a farm strike proposal, the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta today urged a national wheat board to control production and marketing and guarantee production costs to the farmer. Operation of the board for the 1933 crop was included in the request.

Ford Is Subpenaed In Old Lincoln Suit

Case Against Sweeten Car Agency Has Been in Courts Six Years.

Detroit, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Wilfrid G. Leland, son of the founder of the Lincoln Motor Co., today revealed that he has served a subpena on Henry Ford to appear before a notary Monday to give testimony in a suit started originally by the Ford Co. against the Sweeten Automobile Co., of Philadelphia.

The suit, attorneys said, is an outgrowth of a six-year-old case, which began shortly before the Lincoln Motor Co., formed by the late Henry M. Leland, was taken over by Ford. The Sweeten Co. at the time alleged it had lost several hundred thousand dollars when the Lincoln Co. failed to furnish cars to it as an agency.

The Ford Co. filed suit against the Sweeten Co. several years ago to collect $6,800 in notes, which it declared had been given the old Lincoln Co. on the purchase of cars, and the Sweeten Co. then filed a counter-claim for $250,000. The case has been six years in the courts.

FILIPINOS AGITATING FOR SEAT IN LEAGUE

U. S. and Manila Both Consulted in Move Called "Unofficial."

Geneva, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Agitation to get the Philippine Islands membership in the League of Nations following independence was revealed here today.

The move was described here as "unofficial," but it was learned that responsible officials already have started negotiations with both the Philippine government and the United States.

The action follows on the heels of the vote in Congress at Washington to grant the Philippines independence within the next ten years.

Members of the league pointed out that entry of the islands into the organization would provide the United States with the necessary safeguard on maintenance of their territorial integrity when complete liberation is effected.

Officials were uncertain whether membership could be voted the Philippines before the ten-year period elapses, but it was emphasized that America would be freed of considerable anxiety if the islands were protected under the league covenant.

Certain prominent Filipinos and members of Congress already have approached the league regarding the proposed membership, it was learned.

It was asserted that if the United States fears Japan's intentions in the Philippines, the best solution would be for the islands to have membership in the league.

Efficiency Bureau's Abolition Fought

Edwards Post of V. F. W. Contends Its Work Is Necessary.

Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards Post, No. 2135, Veterans of Foreign Wars, adopted a resolution urging Congress to eliminate the section abolishing the Bureau of Efficiency as proposed in the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill.

In their objections the members of the post stated that an independent coordinating agency such as the Bureau of Efficiency is necessary to an effective and economical system in the business of the departments, and that the abolishment of the bureau would be an injustice to the persons now working in it.

They stated that if Congress saw fit to discontinue the department that the employes should be transferred to some other Government agency.

Lawyer Supports Lecturer Charge

Alleged Fugitive Declares He Knew Dr. Normano in Germany.

Boston, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The contention of the German government that Dr. Joao F. Normano, visiting lecturer at Harvard University, was a fugitive former German banker today found unsuspected support in the testimony of a Brooklyn, N. Y., lawyer, also an alleged fugitive from justice, who was taken off a ship here last night.

The German government alleged that Dr. Normano, now in jail here, is in reality Dr. Isaak Lewin, former head of a Berlin banking house, wanted for a $750,000 swindle. The authorities have been waiting for witnesses from Germany to come here to assist in his identification. Meanwhile, he has been held without bail by order of United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney.

Today the Brooklyn lawyer, Fred Wiehl, 31, was being questioned regarding his own case by Federal officials, when he remarked that he had engaged in banking in Berlin. His questioner asked if he knew Isaak Lewin. "Certainly," was the reply. "His office was next to mine."

SANDWICHES STILL PARTY FAVORITE

Tidbit Traced to Earl Too Fond of Cards to Leave Them for Meals.

By MARTHA LOGAN.

The Earl of Sandwich loved a good game of cards so well he loathed to leave the table for even a bit to eat. He ordered his food served to him at the table and, probably, because a plate would interfere with the cards on the table, had his food served between two pieces of bread. At least that is the story that is told as the cause for the origin of the sandwich. Today card parties, and tea parties, and chatting parties, and ever so many other parties still feature some variation of the Earl of Sandwich's idea.

Canapes are, of course, the ultra-aristocratic of the party sandwich family. A canape really belongs to the hors d'oeuvre or appetizer family.

How to Make Canapes.

In making canapes, cut thin slices of bread in fancy shapes or neat slices and toast—preferably on one side only. Then spread them with butter or butter and a highly seasoned paste and arrange on this bits of dried beef, chopped hard-cooked egg, or a highly seasoned food morsel. Be careful not to have colors or flavors that clash. Use simple garnishes so that the appearance of the canapes will make your mouth water. Sliced stuffed olives, grated hard-cooked egg yolks, strips of pimento or cream cheese and jam or marmalade are ideas for this purpose.

One of the latest styles in sandwich plates is one of assorted canapes in the center surrounded with pin wheel, ribbon, and rolled party sandwiches.

These other fancy party sandwiches are also easy to make and really are life-savers because so many can be made at one time.

Cut all the crusts from the loaf before slicing. Dipping a sharp knife in very hot water sometimes makes the cutting easier. Also, if you are serving paper-thin sandwiches, spread with a paste of some kind, spread it on the slice of bread before cutting the slice from the loaf and you will find you have fewer torn slices.

Unsalted Butter Is Best.

The butter should always be soft and creamy for spreading. A sweet cream or unsalted butter is best for use in sweet sandwiches although the regular butter can be used nicely.

The filling should generally be very fine and smooth. You may cut it with a mincer, put it through a food chopper, press it through a sieve, or pound it to a paste with a wooden masher.

Rolled sandwiches are always pretty and very easy to make. The crusts are cut from a loaf of fresh white bread. Slice quite thin and spread with a filling. Some people like a snappy cheese or jam filling. Cinnamon, softened butter and sugar are also good. Then starting at one corner, roll the slice up. Fasten with a toothpick and toast in broiler. Remove toothpick and serve hot. Untoasted rolled sandwiches can be made by rolling mayonnaise and butter spread slices around a spear of canned asparagus; or, tomato paste and butter spread bread rolled around well cooked pork sausage links.

Ribbon sandwiches are always intriguing. Cut all the crusts off of a loaf of bread and slice lengthwise in five slices. Spread with the fine pasty fillings. Put a weight of some kind on top and set in ice box to shape.

The fillings and bread combinations may be innumerable for ribbon sandwiches. For instance if you are using all white bread, spread the first layer with either finely grated American cheese or a commercially prepared cheese spread. The second layer can be spread with finely chopped cooked tongue mixed with a little mayonnaise. The third layer might be spread with finely minced chicken and green pepper. The fourth and last layer spread with a tomato paste to which has been added a dash of Worcestershire sauce.

Pin-Wheel Sandwiches.

White bread and whole wheat bread with the following layers makes a pretty as well as tasty ribbon sandwich. Spread layers one and three with a dried beef (finely cut up) and pimiento (mashed) paste layer. Spread layers two and four with a cream cheese softened with a bit of cream. Allow the loaf to stand and slice with a sharp knife.

Perhaps there are to be men in the party to be served. They like ribbon sandwiches, but they like them sliced thicker and with more substantial fillings. Slice the loaf of white bread and spread layers one and three with finely chopped ham and pickle and layers two and four with finely chopped egg and mayonnaise. It is a colorful sandwich, too, you'll find.

Pin-wheel sandwiches and very small sandwiches for fashionable bridge or tea can be spread with any of the suggested fillings. The variation comes in the cutting of the bread. In making the pin wheels, cut the crust from a loaf of fresh bread and slice it lengthwise. Spread with one of the finer pasty fillings and roll the slices widthwise. Set in ice box until shaped and slice into wheels.

Martha Logan Says - - "Try Pan-broiled Bacon and Tomatoes"

A tasty and appealing breakfast or light luncheon dish can be made with pan-broiled bacon and tomatoes. Place a single layer of bacon in a cool frying pan.

Place over a low flame and cook slowly, ever so slowly, turning frequently. Pour off the excess fat as it accumulates. It is only necessary that the bottom of the pan be well greased.

Remove the sizzling bacon to a hot platter when it is a light golden brown color. Place the platter in a warm spot and proceed then as follows:

Take firm, bright red tomatoes and slice in fairly thick slices. Dip them in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Fry them in the bacon drippings to a golden brown.

Surround bacon slices on the hot platter with tomato slices and serve very hot. Whipped potatoes, rolls and cranberry roly-poly are suggested to complete the meal.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

The 18-year-old Italian-American boy who so capably serves customers in his imported food stand in one of our big high-class markets told the Meanderer when first she called that he probably didn't have anything that would interest her. The Meanderer knew better. Unless she was greatly mistaken there were many things on those long shelves of choice imported foods that Washingtonians might like to know about.

The lingering interview with this boy, born in Italy but Americanized in American educational institutions since he was 8 years old and now a student at George Washington University, resulted in a list of highly interesting, high seasoned edibles from Italy easily available to food shoppers who want adventures into foods of all kinds. Moreover, the Meanderer extracted a promise from the young marketer of exotic foods to furnish some of the cookery secrets connected therewith.

The method of preparing real Italian spaghetti is one of the recipes the Italian boy will furnish, a recipe used by women of his family, and the proportions of crisp hors d'oeuvres needed for making antipasto at home in larger quantities than many customers want to buy in the prepared glasses and tins in food shops, was another helpful service offered by this enterprising young food merchant. Readers of Market Meanderings may have the recipes for the spaghetti and home-made antipasto within a few days, if they will address the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for their mailing.

"Prodotti alimentari"—meaning, the Italian boy said, the same as "first class" in American food labeling—was stamped on many of the foods offered in the imported specialties shop. Mixed vegetables preserved in choice vinegar were so labeled. Genuine Italian salami, copicola, pepperoni, prosciuto (spiced ham) and the famed mortadelle from Bologna, Italy, are among the meats one finds in this shop. The cheese fancier may choose there from Parmesan, Roquefort, Roman, Gorgonzola, goat cheese and the incomparably smooth Bel Paeso.

The proper proportions of salami, olives, peppers, anchovies, pimientos, pickles, artichokes, onions, cauliflower, capers and what-have-you necessary for antipasto are to be furnished in the recipe the young Italian is to offer Washington housewives. The recipe will be sufficient for serving eight or ten persons and should not be prohibitive in its cost, according to the youthful marketer.

A meat marketer in a big food-selling place on K street, with a long list of important, regular customers, including recognition in the matter of White House orders, is well known for his ability to supply the best of meats for dinner parties and other entertainments. Saddles of lamb are frequently ordered for guest meals at this season. Crown roasts of lamb are popular also, the meat dealer said, as are the choicest fillets of beef at 75 cents a pound. The Meanderer will be glad to furnish the name of this marketer so practiced in supplying proper quantity and quality of meats for entertainment purposes.

Twenty-one pounds of raw vegetables went into the making of each pound of concentrated vegetable tablets offered for sale in two health food shops in Washington. The tablets, ten grains each, are described as raw, powdered vegetables, and contain the food properties from spinach, beet leaves, lettuce, asparagus, alfalfa, cabbage and celery.

Mauve tulips, deep pink tulips, yellow and white freesias, Japanese lilies and the fragrant white sprays of budlea are among the refreshing new offerings in Washington's flower shops.

Frequently the Meanderer is asked where to find varieties of smoked fish. So she asked one of the principal fish dealers of Washington, located in a high-class market on K street, for a list a list of the smoked fish he could supply. Here is his list which includes smoked fish from many faraway places: Smoked salmon, smoked white fish, imperial English kitties or smoked herrings; Labrador herrings, smoked, salted and smoked roe herring, finnan haddie, salt cod and salt mackerel. In another corner where smoked and canned fish are sold, a dealer has agreed to order promptly any kind of smoked or salted fish for customers if he can not supply them from his stand in this market on K street.

Fresh shad leads in interest on the list of fresh fish. Shad has just started running off the Florida coast, according to the fish shop marketer on K street. Buck shad sells for 30 cents a pound, while roe shad brings 40 cents. Speckled trout at 20 cents a pound is a popular buy, while other much-wanted fish are rock fish at 30 cents; red snappers, large, fine-flavored fish from the gulf, 25 cents a pound; the all-season filet of haddock from Boston, sea bass, bluefish and pompano. The last-named aristocratic fish costs about 50 cents a pound.

Fennel, of the celery family, found in a leading vegetable and fruit stand, may be used in salads or as a relish, or may be cooked. When it is cooked the lacy green tops are cooked with the thick, celery-like lower portion.

Lima beans from Cuba probably have the aristocratic rating among vegetables, with their price of 60 cents a quart, though the luscious, perfect hot house tomatoes that please the epicures are 35 cents a pound. And in the hard-to-believe column should go the peaches from Chile, selling 10 cents each. Nectarines, elegant cousins of the peach, sell for 50 cents a dozen. Belgian hothouse grapes sell for $1 a pound, as they sold at Christmas time. Jerusalem artichokes are priced 25 cents a quart, which means about fifteen to eighteen artichokes; hothouse rhubarb has descended to 25 cents a pound; romaine at 10 cents a head and watercress 5 cents a bunch would give variety to winter salads, and also on the list of vegetables and fruits in this stand are celery, cabbage, excellent stringless beans, California peas, Brussels sprouts, leeks, fresh pineapples, hothouse radishes, French endive and an unusual abundance of juicy oranges at low prices. The marketers in this particular food stand just mentioned are among the best authorities on their wares in Washington, for their business has been established for 42 years.

Oranges selling today at 10 cents a dozen or three dozen for 25 cents at a Seventh street fruit stand probably are the lowest priced oranges Washington has seen for years.

Swedish timbale cases of the flat type are a feature on Saturdays in this farm-to-home market mentioned just above. They sell two for 5 cents.

Fresh apple pies that usually sell for 35 cents are to be but 29 cents today in a popular bakery on busy lower Fourteenth street. A rich devil's food cake will sell there for 59 cents today, and pecan rolls, so much liked by many Washingtonians for their Sunday breakfasts, are offered in this shop today for 29 cents a dozen.

Strawberries at 25 cents a quart were an outstanding value in one place in a big centrally located downtown market. The dealer in these strawberries declared that fresh strawberries are arriving rapidly in Washington, considering the season, and that the large supply makes possible the low price.

CLARENDON WOMAN TAKES RECIPE PRIZE

Mrs. B. F. Montgomery's Soft Ginger Cake Formula Wins Post's $5.

To Mrs. B. F. Montgomery, of 157 Rucker avenue, Clarendon, Va., will go The Post's weekly $5 prize for her recipe, "Grandma's soft ginger cake."

Mrs. Montgomery's entry was judged the winner of this week's recipe contest. Housewives should be interested in trying their luck with her formula. Gingerbread is a time-tested confection, and a new mode of preparation should be pleasing.

1 quart New Orleans black molasses
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup lard
1 heaping tablespoon of soda, dissolved in 1½ cups cold water
2 tablespoons ground ginger
1 teaspoon salt

Flour enough to make a stiff dough. Roll out and cut about one-half inch thick with large cookie cutter. (Ingredients can be bought at Sanitary or A. & P. Groceries.)

U. S.-BRITISH DISCUSSIONS.

President-elect Roosevelt will welcome British representatives early in March, to begin consideration of economic problems precedent to possible revision of the British debt to the United States. The White House statement announcing that agreement had been reached between the two administrations as to procedure in this matter lays emphasis upon the fact that it is necessary to discuss world economic problems in which the United States and Great Britain are mutually interested.

The revision of the British debt is a question of minor importance to the United States, and is dependent upon the settlement of larger problems. While it is taken for granted in London that the discussions will result in debt reduction, American opinion will insist that offsetting concessions must be forthcoming. British capacity to pay is of course a factor to be considered, but the discussions doubtless will develop many devices by which Great Britain can contribute to the betterment of world economic conditions in return for debt concessions.

The discussions must take a wide range. World economic problems are interconnected with political problems, such as reduction of armaments, the Far Eastern question, and national policies relating to currencies and tariffs. Apparently reperesentatives of the two leading nations of the world are to grapple with the world's ills, in the hope of devising a program which will enable them to work together and which would meet the approval of other nations. If this is what is coming, the projected world economic conference goes into the background, to await the outcome of the Anglo-American discussions.

International jealousy is always aroused when two nations put their heads together, even if the object of their conferences is to benefit all nations. What will France think of the Anglo-American discussions? Is she to be left out when world economic proposals are under consideration? What will Japan think of a closed conference at Washington, involving questions of a political character having a bearing upon economic rehabilitation? It would not be worth while to readjust the British debt to the United States if the nations are to be drawn into a world controversy vitally affecting their economic welfare.

Cooperation in the economic field for world betterment is dependent upon an agreement whereby the nations can shake off the load that is crushing them—the load of unnecessary armaments. Great Britain can help greatly in blazing a path toward disarmament by increasing the world's sense of security. A bold disarmament proposal supported by the United States and Britain might be the first step toward world economic recovery. Cooperation between Great Britain and the United States in insisting upon the sanctity of treaties would help to compose the quarrel in the Far East which threatens to dislocate all national economies.

Currency and tariff questions are subordinate to the overshadowing problems arising from the squandering of billions for provocative armaments and the trampling upon treaties by an imperial power engaged in aggressions against the protest of all nations. If the United States and Great Britain can not agree upon a common policy in the Far East it is idle to expect peace and happiness to flow from a possible reduction of Britain's debt to this country.

When debtors come to the United States asking for relief they will be asked to cooperate in great matters for world relief. This request will be very pointed, and will be reinforced by American public opinion. The outgoing and incoming administrations would be working in vain if they should confine their efforts solely to the revision of the British debt, without requiring cooperation in larger affairs. Congress, which has the last word in this business, has made it very plain that some tangible and substantial compensation must be forthcoming in return for debt concession.

QUASH THE BONUS NOW.

Any reasonable preview of the extra session of Congress which President-elect Roosevelt will call soon after his inauguration must take the bonus drive into consideration. Not much has been heard about the bonus this winter. Members of Congress are inclined to forget it and to plan legislative programs as if the bonus issue had died. Unfortunately, that optimistic view is an illusion.

The bonus forces are not pressing their claims forward at this time because of the defeat they suffered at the hands of the Senate last summer. It would be folly to waste their energy in a new drive when the membership of the Senate remains virtually the same and President Hoover stands ready with his veto ax to smash any bonus measure that might be sent from Capitol Hill. The lobbyists who are directing the bonus fight have no stomach for a charge in the face of certain defeat.

Nevertheless, the bonus fight is on. The country is being deluged with propaganda favorable to a raid on the Treasury as soon as the new administration comes into power. Members of Congress who are seeking to debase the currency to pay a dole to ex-service men are preparing for a new attack. The bonus issue will be one of the most grave problems confronting the extra session.

The Government can not borrow $2,400,000,000 to pay bonus certificates without putting a dangerous strain upon its credit. President-elect Roosevelt has intimated that the bonus should not be paid until the conditions of the Treasury warrant. This means that it can not be paid at any time in the near future. If the proposed raid upon the Treasury were permitted to succeed it would be impossible to balance the budget in 1934.

If immediate steps are taken the bonus raid might be headed off at the extra session. A pronouncement by Mr. Roosevelt, with the backing of congressional leaders, might be sufficient to discourage the bonus drive before it gets well under way. Now is the time for the new leaders to make known to the whole country that bonus legislation at the extra session will not be considered. A courageous stand of this kind would save both the President-elect and the leaders in the next Congress untold difficulty.

FUTILE COMMISSIONS.

Undaunted by the overproduction of plans for economic recovery, the voluminous reports of learned commissions, and ignoring party complaints against these very futilities, Senator Pat Harrison proposes a new commission to begin all over again a study of the industrial and financial woes of the Nation. He is anticipated by President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, who, unmindful of the number of members of his faculty already on investigating commissions that have just reported, or which are about ready to do so, has appointed seventeen distinguished citizens to tell the country what ails it and presumably to write a prescription.

A clearing house for the manifold plans and mountains of data already at hand is a greater need than the accumulation of more information and more plans. No more distinguished body of investigators could be assembled than those who for nearly two years have been preparing exhaustive studies on Recent Economic Changes. Their mere foreword is a bulky volume, while the threatened tomes of specific details are staggering to contemplate. The Columbia-Stevens economic conference in 1931 perfected plans for nonpolitical control boards. The World Industrial Council on Social and Economic Planning proffered panaceas from the experts of various nations.

Two years ago a joint legislative committee in New York made a lengthy investigation of economic conditions, and its findings are still available for utilization. The Advertising Club of New York proposed a seven-point program that received the commendation of the American Federation of Labor. The Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration has a new series on credit and the defects of consumption and distribution. The Columbia School of Engineering was in the field, even before the university head, with a call for plans to prevent future depressions. The widely circulated proposals drawn up by the United States Chamber of Commerce are supplemented by others prepared by noted authors.

Many of these projects contain excellent ideas, but they all lack means for putting them into practical operation. It is seldom that the authorities adopt ready-made schemes for national rehabilitation, and so, no matter how meritorious the findings of independent investigating commissions may be, or how practical their plans might be in actual operation, their work is waste effort, since there is no authority behind them to put them into effect.

President-elect Roosevelt is coming into power after expounding his programs in the various fields of business and finance. He will be in a position, with a friendly Congress, to propose definite plans looking to economic recovery, with every assurance that his ideas will receive sympathetic legislative treatment and a fair trial by the entire country. Only a program so sponsored has any chance of being put to the test of practical operation. Cartloads of additional data from additional commissions will only be added to the mountains of evidence already accumulated.

FRIENDLY ENEMIES.

Since France declined to pay her December debt installment to the United States the nation has made a loan to Austria of $14,000,000 and now has completed a new and more favorable commercial treaty with Germany. Following a single month of harmonious negotiation the trade pact with Berlin was consummated, while the proposed commercial treaty between the United States and France has dragged along for months in futile fashion. It has now been abandoned until after the change in administrations at Washington, with the unconcealed hope in Paris that more favorable terms may be secured.

Under the revised Franco-German treaty, which goes into effect February 1, there is to be no general revision of the duties by either country on imports from the other. If, upon due notice, one of the contracting countries increases any schedule, the other is authorized to increase its tariff on other articles to offset the raise. The new treaty also is aimed at the favored nation principle. Instead of stipulating that it covers all articles without exception or conditions, the favored nation clause is limited to articles specifically enumerated.

Coupled with the commercial treaty is a tourist accord to facilitate travel between the two countries and even more important is an agreement that will make international payments easier. The parties agree to establish a Franco-German Office of Payments in Paris. In case Germans buy more French goods than they sell to France the balance will be covered by the deposit of marks in the Reichsbank to the account of the Paris institution, which will also act in reverse fashion. This new treaty with Germany is looked upon as the kind of agreements which France will negotiate with other European nations. There have not been lacking comments to the effect that in treaty negotiations former enemies get better treatment from France than she accords to former allies.

John Bull sympathizes with France, and all that, but in this matter of grabbing off concessions from Uncle Shylock it's every man for himself.

This country is loaded down with debt; so the inflationists propose to remedy the situation by incurring $3,000,000,000 more debt.

Who says the 72d is a failure? It is handing over to the 73d the biggest deficit in the world.

DECLINE OF THE NAVY

From the Houston Post.

Of President Hoover it may be truly said that as an advocate of disarmament, he practices what he preaches as far as the Navy is concerned. During his four years as President there has not been authorized by our Government the building of a single ship for the American Navy. Chairman Vinson, of the House naval affairs committee, says there is no hope of getting any action out of the present Congress looking toward strengthening of the Navy. Nothing will be done in the way of naval improvement until after Mr. Roosevelt enters the White House.

The group that believes the United States should build its Navy to treaty strength is looking to Mr. Roosevelt to lend a hand to increase our naval strength. They recall that he served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy during the World War and that he has for many years entertained a lively interest in naval affairs. The "big navy" folks are, therefore, pinning their hopes on Mr. Roosevelt.

What the incoming President will do about naval expansion remains to be determined. He is known to be in favor of adequate naval defense, but if the disarmament conference scheduled to meet this year accomplishes something it may be possible for the United States to reduce its Navy and still have adequate defense. The adequacy of defense depends, of course, a good deal on the strength of the navies of other nations. Mr. Roosevelt is also pledged to economy in Government expenditures. He wants to cut $1,000,000,000 a year off the Federal budget. In that process the Navy Department can hardly hope to escape having its budget also shorn somewhat.

If the disarmament conference fails and the United States Government is compelled to go ahead with navy building in self-defense the Roosevelt administration will have an extra amount of work to do in naval improvement, because of the little attention given to the Navy during the Hoover administration.

Since the naval limitation treaty was signed in 1922 the United States has provided for only 40 ships, while in the same period Great Britain has provided for 148, Japan for 164, France for 196 and Italy 144. The other nations have been steadily building toward treaty strength, while the United States has lagged.

Our Navy has declined actually and relatively under President Hoover. Whether we shall need to reverse that policy and go to expanding the establishment depends no little on events to occur this year.

A Routine Day in the Senate.

POST HASTE

The Senate had its filibuster and the Nation has its fill of bluster.

Since cloture discipline was lost by one vote, each one of thirty senators can be thoroughly dissatisfied with himself for a long time to come.

American charity is sometimes misplaced, but we can't believe that national generosity will long delay a collection to supplement that insulting pittance of $50,000 offered to Babe Ruth.

Uncle Jasper says: "I see where Congress has deeded the Philippines to Japan."

Those Western secessioners whose farm income has decreased 57 per cent should come East and see the country where factory pay rolls are off over 60 per cent and stock values down more than 80 per cent.

A limp may be inconvenient, but a lame duck Congress can be thankful that the electorate doesn't get another shot at it.

If the farmer was once the forgotten man he has now traded places with about fifty millions in other lines.

When Japan chucks Jehol on the scales with other frozen assets in Manchuria it still isn't going to balance the Tokyo budget.

Lump sum debt offers from Europe will mean 10 per cent settlements—take it or lump it.

The President-elect says the sanctity of treaties is the corner stone of international relations, so Japan will also accuse him of throwing rocks.

The press is panning Congress, but so far has found no golden nuggets of silence.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE STRANGER.

There passed a man along the street
I thought that never I should meet
So poor his clothes appeared;
So far aloof he seemed from me
I thought it safe to let him see
My scorn and so I sneered.

He asked of me the time of day.
I looked at him and turned away
And never answer made.
Thought I, why should I condescend
To such a man to play the friend?
He's of a lower grade.

That night invited out to dine
With influential friends of mine
Across the table gay
There sat the self-same man, who said:
(And oh my cheeks went flaming red)
"I think we met today!

"We'd had a rather nasty flood.
I was besmeared with grime and mud
And ill to see, I'll vow."
And then he smiled and whispered low:
"I wonder if by chance you know

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise: When you see an embarrassed and unschooled maiden coyly resisting the advances of an ardent wooer you probably say to yourself, "The little hussy is putting on."

But she isn't. She is obeying an instinct. And her coyness is a form of self-defense prompted by another's aggression.

When and how the instinct developed doesn't matter. Perhaps primitive man, surrounded by enemies who sought to trick or entrap him, learned the wisdom of going east when anything tried to drive him west. Every effort to influence him was an effort to do him harm, and only those survived who were wise enough to resist.

However it happened, automatic resistance to all wiles and all aggression became a race habit. And now the habit of mulishness attends us from the cradle to the grave, and as we desire most the thing that is forbidden, so we are least willing to give the thing that others most desire. The thing we are ready to throw away becomes a treasure when some one else seems to covet it.

If you will remember that, it will save you a lot of trouble and loss.

The quality that makes a great actress is the same one that enables a young lady to avoid disappointments, protects a wife from humiliation and wins the hearts of the local four hundred. It is called restraint.

If you wished to buy a certain piece of property, could you get it cheaper by affecting indifference or by yelping with delight and admiration?

If you desire a thing very much and frankly reveal your eagerness to obtain it—whether a house or an invitation or a man's affection—human nature raises the price or instinctively sets up obstacles to thwart you.

Many a wife loses her husband and many a maid her beau by revealing a love that no abuse or neglect can lessen.

The value of a championship lies in the fear of losing it.

I wouldn't have you affect the world-weary boredom of modern young cynics, my dear. That's silly. But don't coo with delight when you meet the he-belle of the town. Let your attitude be that of a friendly critic willing to be shown. Love, DAD.

POLITICAL COMMENT

The Dream of Inflation.
Minneapolis Journal.

The case for inflation rests upon the quantitative theory of money. Those who hold to this theory believe that price levels are determined by the amount of currency in circulation. If this amount is increased, prices go up, business is stimulated and prosperity returns. If it is decreased, prices go down and depression sets in.

But alas, finance is not such a simple science as that. It is not the quantity of money in circulation that determines the flow of business, but the rapidity with which it circulates.

Now it happens that today there are some $800,000,000 more in circulation than there were in 1929. This increase has not cured the depression, nor in fact made much of a dent in it. If the quantitative theory were sound, the pouring into the circulation of nearly a billion of additional dollars ought to have had some price-raising effect.

The predictions of the present inflationists about what would happen, if some one of their numerous schemes were adopted, are nothing but rosy dreams without substance.

Senator Tydings' Threat.
Kansas City Times.

Senator Tydings is plainly disgusted at the way in which things have been going in the honorable body of which he is a member. That position is greatly to the senator's credit. He says if the filibuster isn't halted, he is going to resign in protest against the tactics of certain members of his party—mentioning no names, but obviously having in mind Huey Long, Thomas of Oklahoma, and probably others.

That threat is a poser for the upper house of Congress, and should bring it to its senses. To have a senator resign in protest against members of his own party is actually a menace to party harmony, something that is absolutely without precedent in the senator's party.

Helpless Go Unhelped.
Toledo Blade.

There is a current suspicion that home loan banks help only those who can help themselves.

Metallurgy.
Boston Globe.

A new "X-metal," harder than any alloy known, has been discovered in California and it is suggested that Uncle Sam line his heart with it next time Europe tries to borrow money from him.

Too Many New Yorkers.
Topeka Capital.

The next President appears to be having difficulty in getting a Cabinet that suits him. Not one choice has been announced, though Chairman Farley is believed to be the next Postmaster General. He is from New York. So is Al Smith and so is Owen D. Young. There are apparently too many eligible New Yorkers, or not enough from the other 47 States.

No Miracles.
Kansas City Star.

It would be a pretty large order for the Government to undertake a guarantee against private losses in a general movement to restore industrial activity to the level of five or six years ago. That is the heart of a plan offered by the president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as the most promising solution of existing economic problems in this country. Any expansion movement by the individual concern or by industry as a whole is primarily a matter of confidence, a belief that markets may be found for the enlarged output of goods. It is so evident, however, that progress must be slow until the farmers' buying power is restored that efforts to restore confidence of an immediate return to the 1927 level of trade will be futile.

In spite of assertions by the president of the R. F. C. most persons are still skeptical of the Government's power to perform miracles.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Citizen Shows Bad Example of Uncle Sam Running on Debt Basis While Urging Business to Avoid Deficit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It certainly is a great game, this subsidising business. I have a number of retail grocer friends who have been trying for years to figure out how to subsidize their customers who have no money with which to buy food to live on. The retailers have been putting their savings from better times into their business and have pared down their own standard of living a lot trying to hang on to their business and survive. Tightening their belts another few notches, they face 1933 with some more of their customers out of funds with which to pay for food.

Now comes Uncle Sam and, through his omniscient Department of Commerce and its countless bureaus and commissions, is showing these grocers with tons and carloads of literature, investigations, &c., how wrong it is for a business to show a loss or operate without a profit.

This same Uncle Sam is conducting his postal business in a manner which would put the little grocer in jail on forty-eleven different counts of something or other. We are told of a national deficit, which is accumulating at the rate of about a quarter of a million dollars an hour, and that the Government will have to tax "everything from Bibles to pigs' knuckles" to maintain such a "business-like" enterprise. FRANK WEISHAUPT.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been wondering why The Post has not printed a farewell editorial to the weather kiosk, which for years has stood as an ornamental landmark just outside your front door, now that it has been put out of commission by official weather experts with a grudge against it. I myself am sorry to see it go.

I don't think the fact that the street temperature it recorded in the summer time was higher than that of the sequestered Weather Bureau thermometer is a good reason for removal of the kiosk. I doubt whether perspiring pedestrians got hotter still when they consulted it. I don't pretend to know anything about the psychology of it, but it actually made me feel less wilted when I saw the kiosk climbing up out of the nineties on a hot day. Maybe it was because it furnished something to be talked about without unseasonable mental exertion. W. F. C.

Migratory Homeless Boys Should Be Put in the Army.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The problem of the United States Government handling migratory, homeless boys presents great possibilities for constructive development. Since discipline is the first requisite they could be recruited into the Army for one year. At some Army post in the Southwest, where the climate is favorable to winter work, they could be given employment, part of the time should be used in teaching some useful trade, and part of the time in raising enough food for themselves for a year. There are many projects under the United States Engineer Corps that could use many of these boys. Habits of idleness are as dangerous as habits of thrift are beneficial. In this machine age every citizen who has no profession should have a useful trade. It will be cheaper to train these boys now than to try to reform them later in institutions of correction.

DILWORTH POWELL.

Farmer Uses Old Stuff in New Fight Against Fate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American farmer proves himself a resourceful fellow, after all. Each week he invents new uses for his wornout implements and low-priced livestock. Mention the word "foreclosure." Then watch the result. He "mows down" laws not to his taste; "harrows" the foreclosure lawyers; "steers" the auctioneer out the front gate; "cows" the sheriff, and himself goes "hay wire." H. J. S.

PRECIOUS METALS.

The lettering on pencils, the title on the cover of a book and even the wall decoration in many public rooms are of solid gold. The gold leaf used for such purposes is so thin that an ounce of gold makes an enormous sheet suited to these uses. The making of gold leaf, even in these modern times, is done by hand, the craft being followed by expert gold beaters who first work the metal into a sheet thinner than paper. So precise and delicate is the job of beating out the metal that it can be done only under proper atmospheric conditions.

Silver, because of its cheaper price, has even wider industrial use. Some 40,000,000 ounces of silver are annually distributed by Government agencies and private refiners to manufacturers. The present low price has given it a decided impetus in this field.

Much silver is reclaimed today which formerly was lost in scrap heaps. It is estimated that $5,000,000 worth is saved annually by extracting particles from the sweepings of factories where it is used, by filtering the water used in cleaning where silver compounds are manipulated, and most of all from the discarded film which comes from the motion picture industry.

This reclaimed silver, as well as the new product, goes back to industry. Because silver resists the action of acetic acid it is used to line food containers and stills, condensers, taps and faucets in dairies, fruit juice and brewing trades. It also resists caustic alkalis and, therefore, is used to line great vats in their manufacture. The uses of silver today are so varied that the list might be extended almost indefinitely.

The pastor, Dr. Forney Hutchinson, will occupy the pulpit at Mount Vernon Place Church at both services tomorrow. His sermon at the morning worship, 11 o'clock, will deal with "The Power of the Gospel." The evening theme will be an exposition of "The Gospel of Another Chance."

There will be special music by the choir, under the direction of R. Deane Shure. Christiansen's anthem, "O Sacred Head," will be sung at the morning service and in the evening there will be rendered "The Enchanting Word," by Bohn.

Beginning tomorrow, the pastor will deliver a series of evening sermons on the first ten verses of the sixth chapter of Galatians. The Woman's Missionary Society will hold its group meeting at Epworth M. E. Church, South, Tuesday at 11 a. m.

The music department of the church is sponsor of a program to be given by Miss Delphine Desio, blind cellist, Wednesday evening, at 8:15, in the church school auditorium. Miss Desio is a member of the Mu Phi Epsilon National Musical Sorority and is very widely known as an accomplished musician. She will be accompanied by Sara Becker, a member of the faculty of the Washington College of Music.

"Is Christ Valid?" Dr. Sizoo's Topic

Mission Discourse Tomorrow at New York Avenue Presbyterian.

Tomorrow morning at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo will have for his subject, "What Is a Christian?" Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock Dr. Sizoo will preach the third in a series of discourses on the right and place of the foreign missionary enterprise in the light of much criticism in present-day literature. His subject will be, "Is Christ Valid?"

At 6 o'clock tomorrow evening the young people of the Christian Endeavor Society will hold a tea in the Parish Hall, with Miss Bernice Coate as hostess. At 6:45 o'clock the young people will observe their worship service, when Maynard Whitney will lead the discussion of "How Unselfish Should We Be?"

2 Super Mind Science Lectures Tomorrow

The Super Mind Science Church announces two lectures for tomorrow by Prof. William Estep, founder. At 3 p. m. a lecture, "The Lost Atlantis," will deal with a theory held by scientists that a continent once existed where the Atlantic Ocean is now located.

At 8 p. m. the subject is "The Revelations of St. John." In this lecture Prof. Estep will elaborate on the quotations from the Bible, "Behold He cometh with clouds and every eye shall see Him," Rev. I.7; and from the text book of Super Mind Science, "Eternal Wisdom and Health."

Congregation to Hear From French Pastor

At the French services tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church a letter from the Rev. Dr. Florian Vurpillot, pastor of the French congregation, who, with Mme. Vurpillot, is spending the winter in Europe, will be read. A message of fraternal greetings from the committee on French Protestant churches abroad to the Washington congregation will also be presented. The subject of the sermon by Frank Liotard will be "Le Bon Samaritain."

Pastors to Exchange Pulpits Tomorrow

The Baptist pastors of Washington and vicinity will exchange pulpits tomorrow at the morning service. Dr. John E. Briggs, of the Fifth Baptist Church, will exchange with the Rev. William E. La Rue, of Takoma Park Church.

The Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. Dr. James Edward Freeman, and the Rev. Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, in Baltimore, will be the special preachers at Washington Cathedral tomorrow. Bishop Freeman will deliver his sermon at choral evensong in the great choir at 4 o'clock and the Rev. Dr. Oliver will occupy the pulpit at the 10:30 service of morning prayer and holy communion.

In residence at the College of Preachers to lead a conference on "Ministry in Institutions and on City Mission Staffs," Dr. Oliver brings to his work the combined talents of medical doctor, priest of the church, psychiatrist and author of widely read novels. He is a graduate of Harvard University and the General Theological Seminary in New York City and took his degree as doctor of medicine at the University of Innsbruck, in Austria. Since 1930 he has been associate in the history of medicine at Johns Hopkins Hospital, warden of Alumni Memorial Hall and in private practice as a psychiatrist. Dr. Oliver is also connected with the clergy staff of Mount Calvary Church in Baltimore. Dr. Oliver has a wide following in the Diocese of Washington, having conducted a mission at St. Thomas' Church two years ago and often coming to this city to preach in the leading parishes.

There will be the usual celebration of the holy communion in the Bethlehem Chapel of the cathedral at 7:30 o'clock and pilgrimages for out-of-town visitors conducted by Canon John W. Gummere, following the two services in the great choir.

RELIGIOUS MESSAGE OF HERETICS, TOPIC

Rev. Mr. Clinchy Tomorrow to Preach on Spinoza at Mount Pleasant.

Based on the belief that orthodox Christians and people unattached to the church can find helpful life principles in the philosophy of dissenters, a series of five sermons developing "The Religious Message of the Heretics" will be preached by Rev. Russell J. Clinchy in the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, beginning tomorrow morning. Each Sunday Mr. Clinchy will develop the religious significance of the philosophic principles expressed by one of the five most prominent nonconformists and indicate how he believes they may be successfully applied to Christian living in present-day conditions.

In the first of the series tomorrow, he will speak on "Spinoza—Reason, Reality and Religion." The subjects for the four succeeding Sundays are January 29, "Rousseau—The New Freedom;" February 5, "Hume—The Liberty of Religion;" February 12, "Huxley—A Scientific Religion," and February 19, "Jefferson—The Belief in Man."

In a continuation of their social service study course, the members of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Young People's Forum will be addressed tomorrow evening by Miss Marion Conover, head worker of the Southeast House Settlement. Miss Conover is a member of the visiting staff of the emergency relief division of the Board of Public Welfare and will speak of some of her experiences in investigating applications for relief.

Church to Observe Feast of St. Paul

Services at Rock Creek Include Celebration of Conversion.

Services tomorrow at Rock Creek Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Church road and Webster street, include celebration of holy communion at 8:30 a. m. and morning prayer at 11 o'clock, with sermon by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, who will also deliver a special address to the Young People's Society at 7 p. m. Wednesday will be observed as the day of the conversion of St. Paul, with celebration of holy communion at 9 a. m. and meeting of the Women's Auxiliary at noon. The Rock Creek Chapter of the Daughters of the King will participate in the meeting of the diocesan local council at Ascension Church at 8 p. m. Thursday. The play by the Young People's Society will be presented in the parish auditorium at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

Invariable God and Pain Sermon at St. Andrew's

"The Invariable God and Pain" will be the subject of the sermon that the Rev. A. J. Wilder will preach at the 11 a. m. service at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

The Young People's Fellowship will meet at 7:30 p. m. Holy Communion will be administered at 8 a. m. The Sunday School is held at 9:30 a. m.

Foreign Mission Week At Church of Pilgrims

Tomorrow evening's worship at the Church of the Pilgrims will be conducted by the young people of the church. This is one of the services that will begin a week of self-denial and prayer for foreign missions (January 22-29), the theme being "Stepping Out on the Promises of God."

"Unconquerable Soul," Sermon by Dr. Pierce

"The Unconquerable Soul of Man," the fourth in a series of sermons on "Things That Cannot Fail," is the subject upon which Ulysses G. B Pierce, minister of All Souls' Church (Unitarian), Sixteenth and Harvard streets, will preach at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow.

Christian Science Churches

"Truth" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Psalms 87:9, 10: "I will praise Thee, O Lord, among the people: I will sing unto Thee among the nations. For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O praise the Lord, all ye nations: praise Him, all ye people. For his merciful kindness is great toward us: and the truth of the Lord endureth forever. Praise ye the Lord." (Psalms 117:1, 2.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "In science, truth is divine, and the infinite God can have no unlikeness. Did God, Truth, create error? No! 'Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?' God being everywhere and all-inclusive, how can He be absent or suggest the absence of omnipresence and omnipotence? How can there be more than all?"

Services Tomorrow

The Rev. W. F. Peirce, president of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio, will be the guest preacher at the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation at the 11 a. m. service. At the evening service, the rector, Dr. George F. Dudley, will preach.

Dr. W. L. Darby, of the Federation of Churches, will preach at the morning service at Ingram Congregational Church.

At the Metropolitan Baptist Church the pastor, Dr. John Compton Ball, will preach at both services.

Dr. H. H. Harmon will preach on "The Christian Fundamental" at the National City Christian Church.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr of the faculty of Union Theological Seminary, New York City, will speak at Howard University at 11 a. m., at Andrew Rankin Chapel, and at 4 p. m. in the Clark Hall forum.

At Calvary Methodist Church the pastor, Dr. Vernon N. Ridgely, will speak at both services.

Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church will bring its centenary jubilee celebration to an end with a rendition of Haendel's "Messiah," at 8 p. m. The pastor, the Rev. Charles Enders, will preach at the German service at 10 a. m. and the English service at 11:15 a. m.

Dr. Bernard Braskamp will preach at 11 a. m. service at Gunton Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church.

At the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, the rector, the Rev. J. J. Queally, will preach at the 11 a. m. service.

Dr. F. F. Holsopple, the pastor, will preach at the morning service at the Washington City Church of the Brethren.

Senator M. M. Logan, of Kentucky, will speak at the 8 p. m. service at Centennial Baptist Church. The Rev. C. B. Austin, pastor of West Washington Baptist Church, will preach at the morning service.

At Luther Place Memorial Church, the pastor, the Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen, will preach at both services.

At West Washington Baptist Church the Rev. E. Hez Swem, pastor of Centennial Baptist Church, will preach at the morning services.

Dr. William E. LaRue, of Takoma Park Baptist Church and Dr. John E. Briggs, of the Fifth Baptist Church, will exchange pulpits at the 11 a. m. service.

At St. Columba's Episcopal Church, the rector, the Rev. E. A. LeMoine, will preach at both services.

Covenant-First Pastor to Base Sermon on Report by Commission.

"Rethinking Missions" will be the subject of the sermon to be given at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning by Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney. This subject is the title of a book which is the report of the Commission of the Layman's Foreign Mission Inquiry, to make a study of missions in the Far East—India, China and Japan. Not in a long time, it is said, has a book dealing with the program of the Christian Church so gripped the public interest, and it is fast becoming the storm center for the reappraisal of the validity of missions.

At the Thursday evening service at 8 o'clock, Dr. McCartney will continue with his series of Bible studies from the Book of Acts, under the general caption, "How the Christian Church Got Its Start." The special study for Thursday evening will be the eleventh chapter of the Acts.

The Covenant Fellowship for young people over the age of 20 years, which meets each Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, will be under the leadership of Mrs. P. R. Kosting and Raymond Stanley. The subject tomorrow evening will be "How Effective Is This Church?"

The All-Comers' Men's Class, which meets each Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock, will be addressed Sunday morning by their leader, Judge Hugh M. Tate, on the subject, "Jesus' First Forgiveness of Man's Sin."

Eternal Life Subject Of Copenhaver Sermon

Dr. John C. Copenhaver, pastor of Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Thirteenth street and North Carolina avenue northeast, will take as his 11 o'clock sermon subject tomorrow morning, "What Must I Do to Gain Eternal Life?" For his 8 o'clock sermon tomorrow evening he will preach on "Abundant and Satisfying Life." His sermons are leading up to the two weeks of evangelistic meetings which will be conducted by Dr. J. C. Massee, famous as an evangelist and pastor, who will be remembered as former pastor of Tremont Street Baptist Church in Boston. The meetings will be held the first two weeks in April.

Dr. Perkins to Speak On Mission Preaching

"Echoes of a Missioner" is the sermon theme of Dr. Frederic W. Perkins tomorrow at the Universalist National Memorial Church. Dr. Perkins is basing his sermon on some interesting experiences which he has had during the past week of mission preaching in Durham, N. C. The church school will meet at 10:15, except the adult class, which will follow the church service at 12:15.

On Tuesday sewing for the Red Cross will be done by the women of the parish, starting at 10 o'clock. At 1:30 there will be a business meeting of the Ladies' Aid Association, followed by a card party and social afternoon. At 4 o'clock tea will be served in the Romaine-Van Schaick room.

First Congregational Services Tomorrow

At the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, Dr. Stockdale will preach at 11 o'clock on "When Religion Functions" and at 8 p. m. on "The Nobility of Courage." The vested choir of 60 voices, under the direction of Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing at both services. The morning service will be broadcast over Station WOL.

THE PARADINE CASE

By ROBERT HICHENS

SYNOPSIS.

Sir Malcolm Keane, one of England's most celebrated advocates, has been briefed by Sir Simon Flaquer, solicitor, to defend his client, Mrs. Paradine, against a charge of murdering her husband, Col. Paradine.

While Mrs. Paradine is in Halloway jail awaiting trial, Lord Horfield is appointed Judge of the case.

Sir Malcolm and his pretty wife, Gay, who bears a subtle resemblance to Mrs. Paradine, have been happily married for ten years, but the husband's obsession with the Paradine case is beginning to cast a dark shadow over their happiness. Sir Malcolm finds himself fascinated by the mysterious blonde, whom he passionately desires to save. Subconsciously he is not wholly convinced of her innocence, but he declares emphatically to Sir Simon that he believes her innocent. Sir Simon is skeptical about the defense Sir Malcolm has prepared, which is to suggest that the colonel's servant, William Marsh, who had been Paradine's batman in the war, might have had a hand in the murder. Sir Malcolm is afraid of Lord Horfield, who seems to have a streak of cruelty that manifests itself toward women who come up for trial before him.

Col. Paradine had been blinded in the war and had never seen his beautiful wife, who had been a servant before her marriage. She is a Dane, who had been rescued from a life of degradation by a philanthropic American. After a short period in the United States, she had settled in London to earn her living, and had married the rich Col. Paradine after the war.

Sir Malcolm goes alone to the north of England to look over the Paradine home at Hindley. On his return he invites the Horfields to dinner and the theater, against Gay's wishes. The dinner passes off in a friendly enough spirit. Leaving for the theater Keane takes Lady Horfield in his car and Gay accompanies Lord Horfield, who makes love to her, much to her disgust.

When the Paradine trial opens, Gay goes to it with Judith Flaquer, unknown to Malcolm. Mrs. Paradine is put on the stand and testifies that William Marsh had pursued her with unwelcome attentions and that she had as a last resort complained to the colonel the afternoon before he died. Marsh is called to the stand and gives the lie to Mrs. Paradine, testifying that it was she who pursued him.

OWING to the density of the crowd outside the Old Bailey, Gay and Judith Flaquer had great difficulty in getting away. The night was very dark, rainy, and starless, and it seemed to Gay as if all London was waiting in the neighborhood of the criminal court to hear the result of the trial. She was exhausted when at last they were free of the jostling mob and Judith hailed a taxicab and helped her into it.

"Tonight I'll drive you straight home," Judith said.

"Yes—do."

Judith gave the chauffeur the address.

"Would you like me to come in with you, Gay, and stay a little while? Shall I stay until Sir Malcolm comes back?"

"No, no—please! He mustn't find any one. He'll—I don't think I'll see him tonight. No, it will be better not. Poor Malcolm! No, I won't see him. He won't want to see any one. After all he's tried to do—this!"

"There must be an appeal."

"Oh," Gay exclaimed. "I hope there will be. Perhaps then——"

She broke off.

"No," she said. "I feel this is final. I know she will die."

"But how can——"

"Judy, I know! When I looked at her just at the end I knew life was over for her, utterly over. I believe she is guilty. Yes, she is guilty. But, Judy, I am certain she had an overmastering love for that man, Marsh. And it wrecked her. I shall never forget her face when he gave his last evidence. To be hated like that by some one you love and must go on loving! Poor woman! No, Judy, she won't appeal. She knows there is nothing left for her in life."

"But we all cling to life, Gay."

"Not she—now. I am positive, Judy."

When the cab stopped in Portland place Gay pulled down the veil with the pattern, squeezed Judith's hand, and got out.

"Don't wait," she whispered.

Judith obeyed. She leaned out into the night to the chauffeur and in a moment was driven away.

A clock on the mantelpiece chimed 10 o'clock. A knock on the door announced her maid, who came in accompanied by Sausage.

"Haven't you dined, my lady?"

"No. Please bring me some tea and some toast, nothing else. I won't dine."

"Yes, my lady."

"That poor woman has been condemned to death. And I was there."

"How awful! What a way poor Sir Malcolm will be in after all he's done."

As soon as the tea was brought she bade the maid good-night.

"I shall want nothing more. Take Sausage with you. Perhaps—when Sir Malcolm comes home he may like——"

Her voice died away.

At midnight Gay lay in bed, wide awake. She had left her door unlocked. One light was on by her bed head, but she wasn't reading. Two sentences kept repeating themselves in her mind. One was:

Had Malcolm understood that accusation? With what a terrible voice the words had been spoken—like a man's voice, harsh and broken, or like a boy's voice breaking when the threshold of manhood is reached. Malcolm must have understood. Where was he? Had he come home? She had heard nothing.

A tap came on her door. She trembled. So he had returned and wanted to see her.

"Come in!" she called.

"It's I, my lady! Could I come in for a moment?"

Baker's voice! She sat up in bed. "Yes, come in!" she called sharply. The butler showed himself. He had a newspaper in his hand.

"I'm sorry to disturb you, my lady, but I felt really I ought to let you know——"

"What is it? Where's Sir Malcolm?"

"He's in the sitting room downstairs, my lady. Sausage is with him. He's been home about half an hour."

"But, then, what is it?" she asked in a different voice.

"Oh, my lady, some one's tried to murder the judge!"

"Lord Horfield?"

"Yes, my lady, his lordship."

"Give me the paper, please. Where?"

"It's the last edition, my lady. I heard a boy——"

"Where? Where? Where?"

He showed her. It was only a short paragraph in special type.

"Lord Horfield, who judged the Paradine case just decided, was leaving the Old Bailey on foot tonight and was in the midst of the dense crowd gathered to hear the result and, if possible, to see the prisoner's departure, when he was shot by some person unknown. The bullet lodged in his lordship's chest. He fell to the ground, but did not lose consciousness. There was a panic in the crowd, but eventually his lordship was carried to a cab. He insisted upon being taken to his house in Sussex square. Although suffering great pain, he remained in full command of his faculties. He stated that he had not the slightest idea who had shot him. It was dark and the crowd was dense. There is absolutely no clew to the person who made the dastardly attempt which it is thought may have been carried out by means of a revolver fired through a pocket."

Still holding the paper Gay said to the butler:

"Does Sir Malcolm know of this?"

"Yes, my lady, I told him."

"But didn't he know it when he came home?"

"Oh, no, my lady, I'm sure not. He seemed horrified when I told him. He's at the telephone now, I believe, speaking to Sussex square."

"Thank you, Baker. You can take it."

She gave back the paper.

"Shall I tell Sir Malcolm, my lady, that you are——"

"No—no. It's very late."

"Yes, to be sure, my lady. Then——"

"Stop a minute!"

"My lady?"

"Is—does Sir Malcolm look very tired?"

"Oh, my lady—yes, something terrible. He wouldn't eat, but I've opened a bottle of champagne. I only hope he hasn't taken cold."

"Cold? Why should he?"

He came home walking, my lady, and without even his overcoat."

"Without—why?"

"He said he forgot it when leaving the Old Bailey."

"D'you mean without either hat or coat?"

"O, no, my lady—only the coat! He forgot it in the hurry and excitement, so he said."

"Ah!"

After a pause, as Gay said nothing more, the butler added:

"Then good night, my lady."

"Good night."

Directly he had gone Gay got out of bed. She caught up something—she didn't know what—wrapped it about her, thrust her feet into slippers and went to the door. But she didn't open it, only stood by it for a moment. Then she came away and went to the hearth, on which smoldered the golden remains of a fire dying out in a smother of wood ash.

She waited there for some time, always listening for some sound from outside. But she heard nothing.

The gold on the hearth gradually faded away. A clock in the room chimed 1 o'clock. Just after that Gay made a movement as if to hurry to the bed. She had heard a faint sound like a door shutting. Malcolm must at last have gone to his bedroom. She checked her instinctive movement and sat down on the sofa near the hearth and again waited.

"What am I waiting for?"

She asked herself that and found no reply. But she felt that she must be up; that late though it was, something more must happen that night in which she must be concerned. Perhaps Malcolm even now would come. But he did not come. And at last, feeling driven to action, though not knowing at all what she was in the end going to do, she softly opened a door which led into a small lobby, beyond which and another shut door lay her husband's dressing room. In the lobby she listened attentively and almost immediately heard a curious sound. It suggested to her the noise of an animal scrambling about. There was a strong suggestion of violence in it. It did not die away, but continued. Sausage must be in there. But what was he doing? Something impelled her gently, very gently, to open the door. The dressing room was unlit, but from her husband's bedroom beyond some light shone in through the partially opened door and she was able to see the dark shape of Sausage furiously worrying something on the carpet, dragging it to and fro, then holding it with his fore paws and tearing at it with his teeth, shaking his narrow head frantically from side to side. She looked, stared, bending forward. It was not a cushion he had got, but a braided jacket of Malcolm's. Not a sound came from the lighted bedroom. The dog was so intent upon what he was doing that he did not see her, and after a long moment of rapt contemplation she drew away, closed the door of the dressing room softly, traversed the lobby and went back to her room. When she was there she locked the door behind her. Then she went to the door which gave onto the landing and locked that, too.

As she crossed the floor to her bedroom she was shivering.

She got into bed—but she kept the light on till morning. She was afraid if she put it out that she would see in the blackness the frantic shape of a dog worrying something on the carpet, something that belonged to Malcolm, something that he had worn that day at the trial.

Bill Would Sell Old School Tract

Property in Southwest Is Assessed at $24,311; May Bring $70,000.

A bill to authorize the sale of the old Potomac school property on the east side of Twelfth street southwest, between D and E, was sent to Congress yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The measure has the approval of the Board of Education and would rid the District of property for which it has no further use. The assessed value of the tract is $24,311, and the market value is said by the commissioners to be between $50,000 and $70,000.

The property is located in the heart of the southwest wholesale market area.

Attractive Young Matron

ADVICE IS OFFERED IN PHOTO CONTEST

Reports from photographic studios throughout the city indicate that an avalanche of new photographs will shortly join the mounting pile that has been accumulating throughout the week in the office of The Post's Queen Contest Editor. Although any type of photograph is acceptable, providing it is at least 6 inches by 8 inches in size and has been made within the past 12 months, many of the contestants are submitting elaborately tinted pictures. These pictures are difficult to reproduce in Rotogravure pictures, however, and so The Washington Post suggests that when possible plain black and white prints be entered.

Beginning Sunday, January 29, pictures of ten charming girls will be published in the Rotogravure section and The Washington Post will pay $5, a total of $500, to the original of each photograph so published. This will be in addition to the $10,000 offered in cash prizes in the final judging to select 51 girls who will formally dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago, during the first two weeks of June.

Each of these girls will enjoy a stay of two weeks at the exposition as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. Every expense will be paid by these newspapers and the selected girls also will be completely costumed by leading modistes. From this group, one girl will be selected as queen of the exposition and she also will receive $5,000 in cash. The next two girls in order of selection will receive $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

To share in the opportunities of this interesting contest entails no expense. It is only necessary to submit a photograph to The Washington Post, accompanied by the transmittal coupon, printed elsewhere in this paper, or with the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper.

There is positively no commercial interest in this great search that is being conducted by The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune; no circulation, advertising or other association of any kind. The contest is sponsored under exclusive and official authority of the Century of Progress Exposition in order to select a group of charming girls to provide an interesting and colorful background to the ceremonies that will inaugurate the great world's fair.

Upon this basis The Washington Post invites all unmarried girls, wherever they may live, to submit their photographs for the approval of the official judges. Only professionals, such as stage girls and artists' models, employes of The Washington Post and members of their families are restricted from competing.

American's Charge Denied by Briton

Col. Blacker States Aerial Trek to Mt. Everest Long Considered.

London, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Col. L. V. Stewart Blacker replied in the London Herald today to charges he had "appropriated" the plans of Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, American aerial photographer, for a flight over the world's loftiest peak, Mount Everest, on the northern border of India.

Col. Blacker was quoted as saying he believed Capt. McKinley was "misreported." Capt. McKinley, who flew over the South Pole with Commander Byrd, said he had designated Col. Blacker as his representative in London. Capt. McKinley was reported surprised when he learned Col. Blacker "switched" to an all-British expedition.

The Herald quoted the latter as saying: "It sounds as if he (McKinley) thinks we regard him as a competitor. The help we gave him should prove we welcome any such effort by a responsible person. McKinley, however, was not the originator of the idea of the Everest flight, the possibilities of which have been under consideration since 1924. When he started preparations, we were beginning following up ideas made for several years. We infringed on none of his arrangements."

Lola Lane Is Seeking To Divorce Lew Ayres

Los Angeles, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A suit for divorce in which Lew Ayres, film player, was accused of regarding married life indifferently was filed today by Lola Lane, blonde screen actress.

Miss Lane charged her husband viewed married life as "monotonous," considering it "a millstone around his neck." She said he insisted on living apart from her, and declared his work was his only interest. The couple eloped and married in Las Vegas, Nev., September 15, 1931, and separated November 5, 1932.

Legion to Protest Curb On Quartermaster Depot

A brief stating their opposition to the curtailment of operation of the manufacturing department, Quartermaster Depot, at Philadelphia, Pa., was drawn up yesterday at a meeting of the American Legion here and will be sent to members of Congress.

Rotary Picks Detroit for 1934.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The board of directors of Rotary International voted today to hold its 1934 convention at Detroit June 25 to 29. This year's convention has been awarded to Boston for June 26-30.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Tricks for the easy, convenient, but sure way of keeping our clothing neat and attractive. Says Dare.

In these days of economizing, many things have come to light which we won't forget in a hurry, will we? The most astonishing one is, I think, the economy possible in clothes.

Who isn't wearing something perfectly good—but something that has been hanging in some closet or on some shelf, for months, formerly discarded? I for one! And who hasn't discovered the possibilities in home washing and cleaning, in tinting and dyeing, in a snip here or a snip or a tuck there?

Whereas all along it was the elegant woman—and her maid—who knew and practiced all these things! Yes, and maybe that is why she was elegant! Certainly it is why she was "soignee." Which means something like this "neat, perfect in every detail, utterly irreproachable in taste and execution."

It is gratifying, the length of wearability of one's clothes, when they are cared for. Not only that, but how soul satisfyfng to know that one's clothing is always right—always neat and well, perfect—which means a lot more than just neatness.

And all this comes, not in the original choosing of them, but in their after care. Care which assures you of getting your value from them, of being happy in them, of always looking and being right in them.

Lots of this has been rediscovered lately—hasn't it?

I watched several maids for several years, noted their little habits and tricks and secrets for keeping me a lovely lady in appearance, and then I made a leaflet for you last year of all these things. The demand for a repetition of this leaflet has been steady, so I gathered up a whole lot more little ideas and tricks for the easy, convenient, but sure way of keeping our clothing neat and attractive, and prolonging its life, and have made them into another leaflet for you. Secrets, these, actual secrets, some of them known only to people in the business of clothes. You will find the leaflet interesting and helpful, even if you turn it right over to your maid—and thereby increase her value to you fourfold! Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it, then, if you would care to have it.

* * * *

Rising to the occasion is another art of the lovely lady. And one of the hardest ones! But rise to the occasion, any occasion, anywhere—you must teach yourself to do.

Not that it means an obvious effort in conversation lines, passing ash trays, &c. Sometimes just your quiet presence will do as much—but your quiet and smiling presence, not a glowering face! All this, no matter how you feel about it yourself, remember.

* * * *

Another thing that the depression has taught us is to buy more carefully. Emulating the example of the clever and always elegant and chic Frenchwoman, we will buy one entirely new and complete outfit a season—one at least, if not two or three. So the Haute Couture aren't worrying much about the success of their latest collections, knowing from experience that the private clientele at least, will not fail them.

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

STILL MORE TIC.

TRIFACIAL neuralgia is one of the most uncomfortable of all disorders. The pain is great and it radiates into all the lower half of the face, and sometimes above that zone. It causes aching of the teeth and jaws. Occasionally, spasmodic jerkings of various face muscles is associated with it. It is apt to last for years, sometimes letting up for weeks or months, but returning just as one thinks he has lost it. Sometimes it hangs on day and night, winter and summer, in season and out.

In a considerable proportion of cases relief can be had from inhalation of a few drops of trichlorethylene. When Plesser suggested this method nearly twenty years ago, he recommended a simple method of using it. Many have suggested modifications of the method, but none of the changes seem to be an improvement over the original.

Some 20 to 25 drops of the medicine are placed on a piece of gauze and held to the nose. After six to ten breaths of air have been drawn through the gauze the remedy will have evaporated and the vapor will have been carried to the membranes of the nose. No definite odor of the remedy can be detected on the gauze. This is repeated about four times daily. The medicine is absorbed by the nose membrane and, somehow, finds its way to the nearby, aching nerves, soothing their pains. If the pain is thus kept easy for a week or two it often disappears and sometimes does not return. In these cases it is a means of cure as well as a measure of relief. The vapor does not produce ordinary anesthesia or loss of sensation in the nose; it does not have constitutional effects—at least, not when used in this way and in small doses not often repeated, and it does not tend to cause a drug habit.

There are cases of tic douloureux, or trifacial neuralgia, which will not be relieved by trichlorethylene. Some of these are treated by injection of the ganglion of the large nerve. The substance injected, in nearly all cases, is alcohol. This drug is thrown directly into the nerve ganglion. The cure by alcohol injection may be only temporary. If after having disappeared and stayed away for several months the pain returns, the injection may be repeated, or some other chemicals may be injected after the same fashion.

However, there is a likelihood that operation for the removal of the ganglion may be preferred in these obstinate cases. This is not a light operation and, even though it cures permanently, it will not be and it should not be lightly undertaken.

In some cases cure can be effected by far simpler procedures. For instance, a person has pyorrhea and is trying to hold on to some loosened teeth. He is suffering from trifacial neuralgia. Pulling the affected teeth may cure him. Or some other needed attention to the teeth may bring about a cure of the neuralgia. Or it may be there is a sinus that is the cause of the neuralgic pain.

How to Be Beautiful

JOAN: Sorry, but I do not sponsor creams either in my column or through recommendation. The particular cream you mention, however, has recently been written up in the American Medical Journal as being of no benefit and actually been proved harmful. I should like you to have my bulletin on the subject of superfluous hair. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for it. (2) The clothes closet may be kept sweet smelling by daily brushing and airing of clothes. Hang the clothes that you have worn during the day before an open window, letting them air for several hours before replacing in closet. Keep your closet dusted and clean and spray with a fragrant perfume. A bag of sachet tied on every hanger is a wise practice.

W. T.: A liquid diet for two or three days will reduce an overly large abdomen and waistline by several inches. In the morning, have a glass of hot water, with the juice of a lemon squeezed in it and throughout the rest of the day have either orange juice, skim milk, buttermilk or hot consomme at three-hour intervals. Drink as much water as you wish, but at least eight glasses. After the third day, you must be particularly careful of your diet and choose well-balanced foods. A few simple abdominal exercises should be started and continued thereafter every night and morning, increasing them in number as you are able. A self-addressed, stamped envelope will bring my complete set of exercises, calory chart and new reducing diet to you.

Genevieve: Hair that snarls after a permanent should be thinned out by an expert hairdresser. Daily brushing, hot oil treatments before shampoos and vinegar rinses afterward will be found of much benefit. While the hair is still damp, it shoul be trained in wide, loose waves with a waving lotion and allowed to dry naturally. Fifth Avenue Fashions

CAN you imagine anything more full of charm and chic than this lovely day dress?

The fascinating scarf neckline is very tricky. Don't you think? Another very new idea is the puffed sleeve that snugs the arm below the elbow.

A SIMPLE PLAY.

I RECENTLY watched a hand played in a New York City club by Mr. A. H. Moorehead, one of New York City's younger experts. Mr. Moorehead successfully fulfilled a doubled game contract which can be made in only one way.

To make the play is quite simple, and yet I know many players have gone wrong on it. As a matter of fact, the hand was shown to several leading experts later, and 50 per cent of them did not get the point, simple as it was.

East—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1◇	1♠	2♡	2♠(1)
3♡	3♠	4♡	Pass
Pass	4♠(2)	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North lacks adequate trump support. However, in view of his 2 honor-tricks and the doubleton heart, he chooses to give his partner an immediate Raise.

2—This bid looks to North as though it should be a small sacrifice, at the worst, in view of which it should be worthwhile, as the opponents seem to have a lay-down vulnerable game.

On this hand West chose to open the Queen of diamonds, which East overtook with the Ace and then continued with the Knave of diamonds. Mr. Moorehead, who was playing the hand, took the trick with the diamond King. On the bidding he was sure that East had at least three spades to the Ace. In this case the only way the contract could possibly be made was if East also had two clubs, so that there would be two entries to the Dummy to lead through East's spade tenace. Accordingly, he proceeded to play the hand for this division of cards.

A low club was immediately led and taken with the King in Dummy, and then the 4 of spades was led from Dummy. East ducked, playing the 10-spot, and Declarer's Queen held the trick. At this point Mr. Moorehead made the master play. Instead of immediately returning to Dummy with a club and leading up to the spades again, he led the Ten of hearts out of his hand, a trick he knew must be lost anyway. Whether East or West took this heart trick was immaterial. East and West's cause was now completely lost, as, no matter what was returned, Declarer was able to get to Dummy again with clubs and then lead through East's spades. The last trump was drawn, and Declarer took the rest of the tricks with trumps and high clubs.

Note what would have happened if the Declarer had not had the acumen to give up his heart trick immediately. After his Queen of spades held the first round of the suit let us assume that Declarer immediately returned to Dummy with a second round of clubs. On the second spade lead, East would have played the Ace, and it would have been a simple matter for him to put his partner in with the heart King. Then West would have led the third round of clubs, which East could have ruffed for the setting trick South's very simple extra precaution in immediately leading out the losing heart forestalled any of these moves, and, as a result, the Declarer was rewarded by a doubled game contract.

What Today Means

AQUARIUS.

IF January 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 11:45 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 4 to 5 p. m. The danger hours are from 3 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7:45 p. m. to 8:45 p. m.

You may find yourself in a position on this date to execute considerable influence in a business capacity. Take care not to be swayed by personality nor by motives of personal gain, for a misstep in this connection may prove a severe stumbling block in the future. Social functions should prove gay and lively, and many good contacts will be made that may prove valuable in days to come.

Born on January 21, the child will be precipitant in his words and acts and will at times find himself in difficulties of a somewhat serious nature even before he knows it. He will not be overly popular at school, where he may be known as a tease and practical joker. These children will study hard in order to gain the acclaim that comes to outstanding students. Vain and egotistical.

If January 21 is the date of your birthday, you are in all probability a person of great charm and culture; a person who can take his place and hold his own in any social group. You have great poise and dignity. You dress in good taste and you know how to wear your clothes. Women born on this date are often striking in appearance. They are usually good conversationalists and very adroit hostesses with exceptional ability in entertaining their husbands' business friends.

If you were born on January 21, you are quite possibly a leader in business. You can vision great plans and schemes and at the same time you are sufficently practical to actually make them work. Persuasive in your speech, you are endowed with that faculty of vividly getting things "across" to those whom you seek to interest. You don't talk down to your listeners, rather you make them "listen up" to you. You would excel as a lawyer and would undoubtedly do outstanding courtroom work. Your keen interest in people and their problems would make you a hard worker in the field of medicine or in the ministry. As a representative in the Legislature you could secure the passage of many reforms and legislation that would prove helpful to your community. You are a thoroughly unselfed person.

Successful people born on January 21:

John C. Fremont, explorer and soldier.

Daniel C. McCallum, engineer.

John A. Bingham, jurist and legislator.

John C. Breckinridge, congressman and soldier.

Helen R. Gardner, author.

Stocks Continue Advances On Favorite Issues' Lead

Seven-Tenths Gain Added as Sales Mount to 702,937 Shares.

New York, Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Stocks received with quiet firmness today the word that America had agreed to discuss war debts with Great Britain.

Familiar trading favorites poked up a point or two in the morning when the market at times was fairly animated, but publication of the White House statement found quotations declining sluggishly. Toward the close, leaders plucked up more courage, as though heartened by the Washington decision, but earlier highs were not reestablished and net improvement averaged less than a point. Sales totaled 702,937 shares.

The upturn of stocks was marred slightly by rather heavy selling of certain issues, among them Chrysler and Consolidated Gas of New York, though both closed unchanged. Offerings of Gas were said to have come partly from an investment trust which maintains a trading position in the market and which had a profit in its holdings of that issue.

Railroad shares did well. There were net gains of 1 to more than 2 points for Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Lackawanna, among others. U. S. Steel issues, American Can, American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Case, American Telephone and North American showed net advances of roughly similar extent, representing moderate recession from their highs.

That the market's response to Washington developments which Wall street labeled constructive, was not more outstanding attracted some attention, though the financial community may have felt that results of the prospective negotiations could not be foreseen at this time and that Congress would have the final voice on any change in existing arrangements. Perhaps, also, more time was desired for study of this new American policy.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Fri.	Thurs.
Advances	255	215
Declines	120	135
Unchanged	135	136
Total issues	499	486

Stocks.

Firmness and quiet trading marked stocks. The advance average seven-tenths of a point. Favorite issues led the rally. Heavy selling at times marred dealing and trimmed gains. The turnover was 702,937 shares.

Bonds.

An improvement in tone failed to result in closing gains. Prices remained unchanged after early advances were lost in an increase of sales volume to $12,802,000.

Curb.

Prices moved upward from fractions to about 1 point in quieter trading. Sales declined to 90,000 shares. Washington reports on the proposed debt parley aided the market.

Wheat.

Selling orders caused losses of early gains and forced the market down. Corn and oats were mixed in quotations. May wheat sold at 47⅞@47⅛ cents.

Cotton.

Small gains of 4 to 5 points were made in spite of Southern selling and realizing. March sold at 6.18. Liverpool reported quiet trading.

Largest Knoxville Bank Is Closed

$9,922,354 in Deposits Involved; Smaller House Suspends.

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Affairs of the East Tennessee National Bank, Knoxville's largest banking institution, have been placed in the hands of the comptroller of the currency. Ben A. Norton, president of the bank, announced last night that the directors had voted to close the bank "for protection of depositors" and said the action "was taken due to constant and heavy withdrawals."

A statement of the bank, issued as of December 31, 1932, showed total deposits of $9,922,354.64. A statement issued December 31, 1930, following consolidation of the East Tennessee National with the City National Bank, showed deposits at that time of $25,128,039.67.

Sevierville, Tenn., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Bank of Sevierville capitalized at $50,000 and having deposits of $167,222.71, closed today for 15 days.

BOND PRICES STAND AT THURSDAY LEVEL

Early Gains Lost as Sales Volume Increases to $12,802,000.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The bond market apparently felt better today, but prices, as a whole, were unable to retain early gains and drifted back to around their starting point.

The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate loans closed unchanged. Further activity in the United States Government group, however, raised aggregate sales to $12,802,000, par value. The turnover of Government bonds alone was more than $3,500,000.

Most of the Federals finished at their top levels of the day, with gains ranging from two thirty-seconds to nineteen thirty-seconds of a point. Liberty 3½s reached a new 1932-33 high and Treasury 3½s were the heaviest traded. Continued strength of both Libertys and Treasurys was attributed partly to the belief that Washington's plans for nearby refinancing will involve only short-term issues.

While the market had little tangible economic support, there was an inclination to view the Hoover-Roosevelt conference today rather optimistically.

The most active rail gainers included some liens of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Burlington, New York Central, Reading, Texas & Pacific and Union Pacific. Southern Railway issues were heavy and a number of others drifted irregularly lower.

In the foreign list the Germans had their ups and downs, but most of them managed to hold gains of 1 or more points. Loans of Belgium, Austria, Hungary Helsingfors, Norway and Uruguay firmed.

50 Bank Closings Push Record Up for Week

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Fifty bank suspensions were reported today by the American Banker for this week against 48 the previous week.

Missouri was hardest hit, with 13 casualties, 11 of which were St. Louis institutions, 4 suspensions were reported each in Iowa and Kansas; 3 each in Illinois, Michigan and Texas; 2 in California, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin, and 1 in Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Louisiana, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Washington, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and Oregon. For the year to date suspensions total 134, tying up deposits of about $59,035,000.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

(Associated Press.)

London—Better Wall street and continental news caused a more cheerful tone on the stock exchange wherein a shade more business was done. Gold mining shares and foreign issues hardened, while gilt-edged securities eased. The closing was quiet.

Paris—An improved tone was registered on the bourse and prices were firmer, as a result of more encouraging advices from abroad. The market closed firm.

Berlin—Trading on the bourse was quiet and prices improved slightly.

Sisson Opposes Inflation Of Currency to Aid Trade

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Francis H. Sisson, president of the American Bankers Association, today condemned currency inflation as a cure for the depression and advocated a more equitable redistribution of taxes as aid in the revival of business.

Mr. Sisson, speaking at the mid-winter meeting of the New York State Bankers Association at the Federal Reserve Bank, also declared the assumption that present money and credit mechanisms are not functioning and can not be made to function to bring about the "stimuating effects deemed necessary by the inflationists to start a revival of business," was a "misconception common to all inflation schemes."

"As a matter of fact," he stated, "if mere volume of money and credit were all that is needed to raise the prices of commodities, securities and real estate, stimulate industry and trade and create employment, we have ample supplies either in actual existence or potentially available to finance enough expansion in business activity to satisfy the most ardent inflationist."

The speaker warned that "business troubles will not be ended, profits will not be assured and the confidence of investors in securities will not be restored" as long as billions of taxes are being collected mainly out of the earnings of the "relatively narrow economic circle against which the present income tax exemptions are aimed."

"Business confidence and ambition and the spirit of enterprise will not revive," he added, "so long as there hangs over the Nation the question of how great a portion of the legitimate earnings of industrial and commercial effort will be expropriated to support Government activities that do not add to either security of business or the real welfare of the public.

"The real contribution of the Federal Government to business recovery, therefore, can not be by a program of currency inflation, but by one of sound public finance through reductions in expenditures, and equitable redistribution of the load of taxation upon all benefiting classes so as to produce ample revenue and release productive wealth and enterprise from the repressive influence of the present system, a real balancing of the budget and an end to the present incubus of fear and uncertainty as to what the future may bring forth."

Pound Leads Rise In Foreign Money

Francs Close With Loss; Danish Krone Is Up 12 Points.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Most foreign exchanges, led by the British pound sterling, recorded gains today in relation to the American dollar.

The British currency reflected hopes of constructive developments from the Hoover-Roosevelt conference at Washington on war debts. The pound advanced more than a cent at one time and closed at $3.35⅝ for cables, up ⅞ of a cent.

The Danish krone, recently heavy when the Bank of Denmark withdrew its support, rallied 12 points. Improvement was also shown by the other Scandinavians, German marks, Dutch guilders, Swiss francs, Spanish pesetas, Canadian dollars, Japanese yen and Mexican pesos. French francs were easy most of the day and ended with a loss of 1-16 of a point at a cable rate of 3.90 3-16 cents.

Trade Influences Called Favorable

Low Inventories Cited as Potential Markets for Goods.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—While noting the continuance of certain adverse factors, the weekly mercantile reviews today were in agreement that favorable trade influences were in the ascendance. Bradstreet's commented that on the debit side were such unfavorable items as an increase in bank failures, disinclination of the security market to break out of its narrow trading range, and the failure of Congress to take steps toward balancing the budget. This agency, however, viewed developments of the past week as constructive on balance.

"By all odds," it asserted, "the most significant development is the sharply declining trend in cold storage holdings of frozen and cured meats and dairy products. Butter stocks are 58 per cent below the five-year average and eggs on hand are less than half the amount in cold storage a year ago."

Dun's said that "low inventories, with potential markets for spring commitments, and more stability in the prices of commodities have strengthened the prospect for improved business conditions during the second quarter." While the weekly reports covering trade conditions in various parts of the country are marked by conservatism, it added, "they enumerate more factors than during the first two weeks of the month calculated to contribute to progressive advancement. The hesitancy apparent at the first of the year is losing some of its force."

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for January 18 were $81,486,754.76; expenditures, $84,413,641.95; balance, $395,267,406.40. Customs duties for 18 days of January were $11,174,884.35.

Chadbourne Sees Advance in Sugar

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Thomas L. Chadbourne, lawyer and author of the Chadbourne sugar restriction plan, arrived from Europe today feeling decidedly optimistic on the sugar industry outlook. "I expect to see sugar prices 50 to 100 per cent higher before the end of the year," he said.

There were reports in England, he asserted, that Java sugar production would be cut to less than 1,000,000 tons in 1934, and Chadbourne said he considered such a reduction probable in view of the country's large carryover.

He declined to comment on the sugar situation in Cuba on the ground that he had not kept himself fully informed on developments there during his vacation abroad.

Corning Grade Oil Higher

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A decrease of 15 cents in the price of Corning grade crude oil in Buckeye Pipe Lines was announced today by leading purchasing agencies.

The new price is 70 cents. Other grades are unchanged.

CURB PRICES HIGHER IN QUIETER TRADING

Advances Up About 1 Point Made as Sales Drop to 90,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Prices moved upward from fractions to about a point in a quiet professional curb market session today. Transfers totaled 90,000 shares against 100,000 yesterday.

Principal sustenance for the improved price tone was drawn from Washington reports, which indicated that an early exchange of official views on the British war debt question would be arranged. In addition the report that the incoming national administration favors the bankruptcy reform legislation now before Congress was intrepreted favorable. A number of financial leaders holding that enactment should speed up impending corporate reorganizations.

The industrials appeared to benefit more than the utilities. Deere was steady. Glen Alden Coal and Montgomery Ward A gained about a point. Parker Rustproof, Cord and Stutz were a shade higher.

In the utility group, Electric Bond & Share common gained slightly, following publication of that company's 1932 report showing 99 cents a share earned on the common, but the $5 preferred broke more than 3 points in light trading. American Gas & Electric, American Superpower and Cities Service were steady. Niagara Hudson Power and United Light & Power A were fractionally higher.

Aluminum gained more than a point although buying was light. The Ford issues were steady. Woolworth Ltd. gained a shade. The oils were steady with Standard of Indiana and Gulf advancing fractionally.

New York Cuts in Half Deposits Interest Rate

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—With idle money continuing to pile up in New York, sending member bank reserves to high levels, the New York Clearing House Association today cut in half its interest rates on deposits.

Effective next Wednesday, it was announced, interest on demand deposits will be reduced to one-quarter of 1 per cent. The present rate is one-half of 1 per cent. Time deposits, on not less than 90 days, will draw one-half of 1 per cent against 1 per cent formerly.

The last previous downward revision in Clearing House interest rates was made on May 13. The Clearing House is an association of leading New York banks and its action covers virtually the entire commercial banking structure of the city.

Canada's Wheat Crop Estimate Now Lower

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Dominion bureau of statistics today estimated Canada's 1932 wheat crop at 428,514,000 bushels. This is slightly under the 431,200,000-bushel estimate made in November.

WHEAT VALUES SINK ON SELLING ORDERS

Early Advances Give Way to Losses; Corn and Oats Mixed.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Selling orders predominated in the grain pits late today, and price advances made earlier failed to hold.

"Spread" dealings in wheat, sales here against purchases at Kansas City, were largely responsible for Chicago market setbacks. Houses with connections southwest led the selling movement in Chicago. Weakness of the Winnipeg wheat market was also an unsettling factor.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsteady, ⅛ to ⅜ under yesterday's finish, with corn at a shade decline to a shade advance; oats, unchanged to a shade higher, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Corn Jump Explained.

Almost a cent a bushel quick early jump in corn prices had a good deal to do with transient strength shown by wheat. There were reports that half the corn crop of Cordoba Province, Argentina, had been destroyed by locusts which were also menacing the corn in Santa Fe Province. These reports were construed as sensationally bullish in regard to corn, owing to the fact that Cordoba and Santa Fe, with Buenos Aires Province adjoining, represent the bulk of corn acreage in Argentina.

Further signs of export business in United States corn were an additional stimulus to grain price upturns, with Denmark named as a purchaser, and inquiries from Ireland also for corn from this country. Corn price bulges, however, ran into profit-taking sales, and reactions followed that affected wheat. On the other hand, drought complaints were persistent from domestic hard winter wheat territory southwest, and there were predictions of freezing and thawing in soft winter wheat States to the east.

Corn arrivals in Chicago today were scantier—75 cars, compared with 144 a week ago and 138 at this time last year. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were easy, owing to likelihood of larger receipts of hogs next week.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—New State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $5,912,600 compared with nearly $25,000,000 this week, says the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest prospective offering is a $4,032,000 issue of Metropolitan Water District, Los Angeles, aqueduct construction bonds.

The Associated Business Papers' review of trade trend says street railways are starting maintenance and replacement purchases that should reach $50,000,000 in this quarter and four times that amount for the whole year. The trend of business generally, the survey finds, is "faintly upward."

New corporate bond issues offered in the New York market this week totaled $18,050,000 against $20,160,000 last week and $104,400,000 a year ago.

The Kansas City Southern Railway will move for a rehearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission on its appliction for authority to lease the Texas lines of its subsidiary Texarkana & Fort Smith Railroad, according to Leonor F. Loree, chairman of the former road. An earlier hearing before a special division of the commission resulted in an order approving the proposed lease except as to a clause relieving Kansas City Southern from any obligation to conform to Texas laws requiring maintenance of general offices for the Texarkana & Fort Smith system within the State. The purpose of the lease, it is said, is to save some $81,000 annually through consolidation of operations and offices with those of Kansas City Southern.

WALL STREET SEEKS LIGHT ON GOLD CUT

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Wall street showed keen interest today in the latest daily gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, showing a reduction of $25,101,200 in its foreign gold holdings.

Presumably this reduction was in gold held for the American bank's account in the Bank of England. The British Treasury, on December 15, set aside $95,800,000 gold for American account in making the British war debt payment on that date.

The gold statement also showed the receipts of $6,527,000 gold from England. Consequently, it was assumed that the Bank of England had repurchased $18,574,200 gold from the New York bank—or the difference between $25,101,200 reduction in American holdings abroad and the day's receipt of $6,527,000.

The Federal Reserve Bank declined to comment on the transaction, strengthening Wall street's belief that it was intergovernmental.

When the British government elected last December to pay in gold, there was some surprise in banking circles. It was pointed out that Britain, which had the alternative of buying U. S. Government bonds and applying them at their par value, could have effected a saving of $3,500,000 by so doing.

By payment in gold, a colossal shipping transaction was made necessary, involving the expense of sending 150 tons of the precious metal across the Atlantic, at a season when storms are frequent, thus causing further delay in the shipment and adding to costs.

On December 14 the Bank of England had gold holdings of £140,305,000, about $700,000,000. In its latest statement, as of January 19, they totaled £120,570,000, or about $600,000,000. In the same period the bank's reserve ratio dropped from 33.3 per cent to 27.2 per cent.

Payment for the new purchase of gold could readily be made, it was stated, for the British government has dollar balances in New York, and a portion of these could be drawn on to pay the Reserve Bank.

Bill Is Backed to Bar Charity Realty Limit

A favorable report was made yesterday by the District Commissioners to the House District Committee on a bill to remove the limitations on the amount of property held by benevolent, charitable and other nonprofit corporations in Washington.

The measure would place benevolent corporations on the same plane with respect to the amount of property they may acquire as corporations created under the general law.

Step Taken to Get Data Of 2 Cooperative Units

The books and records of both the National Cooperative Association and the National Cooperative Stores, with joint offices in the Homer Building, were subpenaed last night by Assistant United States Attorney William Gallagher.

Both organizations are composed of Federal employes, who have paid membership fees of from $2 each to $5.75. It is estimated that approximately 5,000 memberships have been sold. No reason for the issuance of a writ was forthcoming from Mr. Gallagher. He said he had not examined the documents last night and was unable to say what they contained.

RITES TODAY FOR BOY WHO SLEW HIMSELF

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Funeral services for Linwood C. Dodson, 13-year-old student who shot and killed himself Thursday because he was afraid to tell his parents he had been sent home from school, will be held at 11 a. m., today, at the funeral home of Warner E. Pumphrey, at Rockville, Md. Burial will be in Forest Oak Cemetery, Gaithersburg, Md.

The boy was told Wednesday night not to return to school until he brought his parents along to confer with the principal, L. Fletcher Schott, regarding his mischievousness in school. He had done nothing particularly bad, the principal said, but had been reprimanded several times for failing to maintain proper deportment in school.

He went to his home and Thursday morning was found dead with a bullet in his heart and a .32 pistol in his hand, by his father, John Dodson, proprietor of a gasoline filling station at Montrose, Md.

Funeral services for S. Lee Hicks, 71, who died Thursday at his home near Dickerson, Md., will be held at 2 p. m., today, at the chapel in Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md. Burial will be in the nearby cemetery. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Hattie Walker, of Tazewell, Va., and a brother, Dr. J. Robert Hicks, of Dickerson.

Farmville College Forms Fraternity

Gamma Psi, Local Group for Artists, Makes Appearance.

Farmville, Va., Jan. 20—(A.P.)—Organization of Gamma Psi, Local honorary art fraternity at Farmville State Teachers College, was announced here today.

Leaders of the fraternity, which replaces the Palette Club, said they hoped to expand the organization into a national society. They pointed out that State Teachers College in the past has originated several national social and honorary fraternities.

Hyattsville Fire Units Decide Against Clash

Possibility of a physical clash between members of the original Hyattsville fire company and a new department formed by the town council faded yesterday as the chief of the new unit said he would make no effort to take over the fire house and equipment from the old company.

W. B. Harrison, appointed chief by the council, said that in case of a fire he and others appointed by the council would go to the fire house to make sure the alarm was answered. He would take no other action if the old company went to the fire, he said. Noble F. Rushe, chief of the original unit, has already said that his men would function in the future as they have in the past, and would be ready for any alarm. They are living in the fire house, both to be ready for a fire and to make sure of keeping possession of it.

Latest U. S. Warship Anchors Off Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20.—The 10,000-ton cruiser Indianapolis, latest addition to Uncle Sam's sea fighting forces, dropped anchor in Chesapeake Bay 6 miles southeast of Annapolis this afternoon to remain until Monday.

The Indianapolis, which is under the command of Capt. John M. Smeallie, is on her shaking-down cruise, having recently been placed in commission. Midshipmen of the Naval Academy will inspect the warship tomorrow and Sunday, and it is understood other visitors also will be permitted to go aboard. The Indianapolis came here from Hampton Roads. Leaving here Monday, she will cruise along the Atlantic Coast, visiting other cities.

James Kellar, Missouri Murderer, Is Executed

St. Louis, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—James W. Kellar, 30, confessed murderer of Mrs. Etta Sauer, wife of his employer, at Maplewood, St. Louis suburb, was hanged in the St. Louis County Jail at Clayton at 6:07 a. m. today.

Gov. Guy B. Parks yesterday refused to grant executive clemency to Kellar, as he had to David A. Miller, who was to have been executed at St. Charles this morning for the murder of Miss Pauline Deubbert on her farm near Femme Osage, Mo., in 1929.

Virginian Gets 20 Years For Murder of Cousin

Covington, Va., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Glen Hardiman, 22, was convicted of second-degree murder in the death of his cousin, Dennis Hardiman, and his punishment fixed at 20 years in the penitentiary by an Allegheny Circuit Court jury today.

The Commonwealth charged that the defendant shot his 16-year-old kinsman after a row over alleged moonshining operations in a section of the county known for its illicit liquor feuds. The shooting occurred January 9 at Alleghany station.

Huntingtown Man to Face Jury.

Edward Cox, of Huntingtown, Md., was held for the Federal grand jury yesterday on two liquor charges after a hearing before U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Farran, in Marlboro. Cox was charged with sale and possession after Federal agents made a raid near his home, and was later charged with sale, possession and transportation after he is alleged to have delivered liquor to other agents.

The New Cinema Offerings

LOEW'S FOX

"TONIGHT IS OURS." Paramount picturization of Noel Coward's play, "The Queen Was in the Parlor," adapted to the screen by Edwin Justus Mayer, featuring Claudette Colbert and Fredric March, with Alison Skipworth, Paul Cavanagh, Arthur Byron and Ethel Griffies. Directed by Stuart Walker. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Whatever shortcomings may have been discernible in Claudette Colbert's portrayal of the Empress Poppaea in "The Sign of the Cross," their memory is wholly eradicated by the superlative excellence of her performance of the role of the romantic young queen in this beautifully executed picturization of one of Noel Coward's breezy continental dramas, wrought in the Graustarkian mood and colors.

From the opening scene at the gay masquerade ball in Paris to the final reunion with her lost lover in the palace of the reigning monarch of a mythical European kingdom, Miss Colbert is alluringly lovely, poised, charming and authentic. There comes to mind no earlier role in which she has been one half so enchanting, so thoroughly en rapport with the requirements of a part that is engagingly regal, in the story book manner, or so effective in its dramatic moments. "Tonight Is Ours" is distinctly Miss Colbert's picture rather than Frederic March's.

This is not to say, however, that Mr. March falls short of the demands of a part that boasts both warmth and color. His is an earnest, an intelligent and a picturesque assumption of a character that is courageous, intense and aflame with burning devotion. Such a role might so easily be ruined by overemphasis and the laying on of a saccharine and sticky sentimentality. Of neither of these offenses is Mr. March guilty. He plays, as always, with an eloquent and sound restraint.

These two, it should perhaps be known, meet at a gorgeous bal masque and fall immediately in love. The ardor engendered by a night of Parisian gayety leads to a betrothal. The day before the marriage is to be solemnized, Gen. Krish arrives in Paris to inform Nadya that she has succeeded to the throne of her country. Departing without seeing her lover again, she assumes the responsibilities of state and plights a royal troth dictated by her ministry. What happens when the revolutionary unrest of her people moves them to storm the castle to lay their demands before their queen is, of course, the crux of the play—an insouciant climax that might be just a little too daring less adroitly and discreetly played.

Miss Colbert and Mr. March find their most reliable support in the splendid individual and collective performances of Arthur Byron as Krish; Alison Skipworth, the Grand Duchess Emilie; Paul Cavanagh, too long absent from the screen and here especially well cast as Prince Keri, the intended Prince Consort, and Ethel Griffies, who plays Zana, the maid, with both sensitiveness and humor.

Stuart Walker has given the story a production of truly royal magnificence and directed it with fine perception and skill.

In the stage portion of the entertainment, the interest of yesterday's first audience, at least, obviously centered in the appearance of Mary Garden, grand opera and concert artiste of international renown and one of the most brilliant actresses the lyric drama has known. Miss Garden for her first appearance upon any motion picture theater stage in the world chose to sing long-cherished numbers that placed no great strain upon a voice that still retains trueness and clarity of tone, if not its original brilliance and operatic power. "Annie Laurie" was her first number, followed by Cadman's "At Dawning" and the "Habanera" from Bizet's "Carmen," with "Comin' Through the Rye" as an encore.

This brief program was greeted with tremendous applause—so much, as a matter of fact, that it is a little surprising additional encores were not sung. Miss Garden received a sheaf of roses over the footlights and may well be gratified by the warmth of her reception as a star of popular-priced entertainment.

The vaudeville bill is opened by Janet May, a youthful gymnast, after the fashion of the late Lillian Leitzel, who was followed by the familiar melodies and hillbilly comedy of the Radio Rubes—Rufe Davis, Arty Hall and John and Neal Leby, from the broadcasting studios.

Sidney Marion and Marie Duval scored prodigiously with a sidewalk skit, during which Miss Duval won instant acclaim for a rousing display of the brilliant soprano voice the audience evidently had inexplicably expected to hear from Miss Garden's more famous throat. Parker & Sandino, dancers extraordinary, assisted by the O'Connor Sisters, vocalists, and Bob Davis, pianist, close the show in a riot of rhythm to Ravel's "Bolero."

Phil Lampkin's "Schubert Fantasy" overture won a storm of applause, despite its insistent reminiscence of a "Blossom Time" medley, and the newsreel completed a three-hour diversion rather richer than usual in artistry.

Andrews Deplores Horizontal Pay Cut

Virginia Auditor Declares It Would Destroy Best of Organization.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—T. Coleman Andrews, State Auditor of Public Accounts, today said horizontal salary cuts will destroy the best organization in the world.

The statement was made in a letter to William T. Reed, chairman of the Virginia State committee of the National Economy League.

The State auditor further asserted that he fears Virginia is entering "a period of administration by incompetent office seekers who would be overpaid at any salary."

G.O.P. Backs Quenstedt For Reelection as Mayor

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20.—Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt and City Counselor Roscoe E. Rowe, both Republicans, were indorsed for renomination and election at a meeting of the local Republican Club. Mayor Quenstedt is serving his second term and Counselor Rowe his first. Neither has made known his intentions.

The municipal primaries will be held in May and the election in July. Meanwhile, Democrats are marshaling their forces in an effort to regain control of the executive office, that party holding a majority in the council, the line-up being 7 to 3.

RKO-KEITH'S

"THE PENGUIN POOL MURDER." RKO-Radio filmization of the original story by Lowell Brentano and Stuart Palmer and the later novel by Stuart Palmer, featuring Edna May Oliver, James Gleason, Mae Clark, Clarence Wilson, Robert Armstrong and Donald Cook, with Edgar Kennedy, Guy Usher, Joe Hermano and William Le Maire. Directed by George Archainbaud. Reviewed Friday night by M. A. McKavitt.

Unless we are very, very much mistaken, this movie will be one of the big "hits" of 1933. Discerning critics will in all likelihood place the laurels of outstanding achievement in comedy over the proudly tilted head of one Edna May Oliver and classify her the ranking comedienne of the American silver sheet. When an actress can so completely lift an audience into unbridled laughter as did Miss Oliver at Keith's last night, these adulatory phrases carry weight.

Furthermore, we wish to report that this experienced comic actress, who did much to enliven "The Conquerors" and "Cimarron," comes by these encomiums not entirely by virtue of her ability to dislocate her nose in a most admirable and haughty sniff, but because she delivers her lines with a crisp surety that leaves not a modicum of doubt as to her integrity as an actress.

Of course, without the splendid cooperation of Mr. James Gleason and the clever dialogue that characterizes this enjoyable farcical mystery, we doubt if Edna May would have risen to such heights of comicality, for grinning Gleason is a perfect foil for the stream of wisecracks diffused throughout "The Penguin Pool Murder."

Here are a few bits of the plot to put an edge on your cinematic appetite. An Iowa school marm is visiting an aquarium with her class when an observant Hebrew lad in her flock calls her attention to the queer antics of one of those waddling aquatic birds constituting the order Sphenisciformes. She attempts to drag the excited boy away from the glass-encased tank when, to their horror, a dead man drops into the selfsame tank before their very eyes.

Detective Chief Gleason soon arrives on the scene and immediately hears some pungent criticism concerning the inferior mental equipment of police sleuths from the tall school-mistress. He is not slow in returning his ideas anent old-maid school teachers. As the investigation proceeds Gleason discover that Hildegarde Martha Withers, although an advanced type of meddler, really possesses a deductive faculty that is uncommon. Together they solve the crime after many breath-taking situations.

The five remaining parts of this vastly entertaining bill were an unusually frolicsome Mickey Mouse cartoon, "The Mad Dog;" a very amusing Aesop's Fable, "Bugs and Books;" a unique and beautifully colored selection of John Hix's "Strange As It Seems," the Masquers' "The Snake in the Grass," and the Pathe News.

This program is what we term complete movie satisfaction. Don't miss this Edna May Oliver person.

COLUMBIA

"ROBBERS' ROOST." Fox picturization of the story by Zane Grey, adapted to the screen by Dudley Nichols, starring George O'Brien and Maureen O'Sullivan, supported by Walter McGrail, Maude Eburne and Reginald Owen. Directed by Louis King. Reviewed Friday night by J. F. Brady.

Zane Grey has given us a story in "Robbers' Roost" which you will not want to miss. It is a perfect Western, with all its thrills, dangerous to the extreme in many cases, with sufficient comedy to temper the hair-raising stunts, and with a love story interwoven to satisfy the taste for romance. There are a number of new thrills introduced, new to this reviewer, or intensified ones of past pictures, including the jumping of the chasm between two high cliffs and the mode of rescue in the midst of stampeding herds of cattle.

George O'Brien is the "Jim" in the story who falls heir to that famous saying, "Let George do it," and he certainly does, for he is out front always with his daring deeds. His bronco-busting is one of the high spots, amusing and thrilling.

Maureen O'Sullivan makes a fine teammate for O'Brien, is a perfect horseback rider, has a most pleasing personality and is pretty in her many changes of garb.

"Robbers' Roost" gets off to a swift start and keeps moving right through to the end. Beginning with gun play, it almost ends with it. Jim Wall (George O'Brien) shooting them up in a card game makes his getaway and en route to nowhere in particular meets up with Brad (Walter McGrail), a leader of a cattle-rustling group of cow punchers, heading for a ranch on which this bunch is marking time. Introduced to the group, Jim joins them in the plan to rustle the cattle of the wealthy Englishman, Herrick (Reginald Owen), owner of the ranch which harbors them as employes.

To make the story more interesting Herrick's sister, Helen, arrives, with her Aunt Ellen (Maude Eburne) and Wall is made her bodyguard on her many rides through the rough country of Oklahoma. It is then the real thrill of action comes.

PALACE

"HOT PEPPER." Fox picturization of a story by Dudley Nichols, featuring Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, Lupe Velez and El Brendel. Directed by John Blystone. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

What! Will this line stretch out to the crack of doom?

Apparently, Mr. Shakespeare, it will; for although Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt leave the Marines, "Hot Pepper" closes with them back together again directing the military forces of the Chinese. And so on, far into the night.

Yes, you have guessed it; that inseparable duo created by Lawrence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson seem fated to go on and on, like Tenny son's brook, and in the identical form of "What Price Glory?" "The Cock-Eyed World," "Women of All Nations" and a couple of others whose names are not now readily brought to mind.

It is the same old story which Quirt and Flagg traipse through, the only difference being the locale and the excuse for the continuation of their apparently interminable feud. Here Flagg is a speakeasy proprietor and Quirt is living on his wits (and what wits!), but the amorous (?) interests of each converging on Pepper, a hot sketch who stowawayed on one of Quirt's rum boats from South America.

No further details of the story are necessary; for, with these data it is quite easy to fabricate in one's own mind what the tenor of the action is. Suffice it to say, however, that, while things proceed along in their expected course, the roles of the "friendly enemies" have lost some of their original blustery and raucous interest, due, probably, to repetition.

Of course, Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen are the principals in the current episode, with Lupe Velez taking the titular part, and El Brendel adding his own especial brand of humor to various situations. Add Boothe Howard, as a big-shot gambler, and Lillian Bond and Gloria Roy, as a couple of gals who knew what they wanted and how to get it, and the list is complete.

Excelling the feature picture in drama and casting is the Silly Symphony, "Babes in the Woods," a delightful fairy tale, with Lilliputian gnomes and a broom-riding witch, which tells the connected story of the Witch Rock. Done entirely in Technicolor—and here the process reaches the height of achievement to date—"Babes in the Woods" goes in for story-telling in a big and colorful way.

Completing the bill are "Wild People," a song and dance revuelet done in Technicolor, with Harry Jans and Howard Whalen; "Microscopic Mysteries," depicting the struggle for existence in the insect world," and a release of the Metrotone News.

METROPOLITAN

"CENTRAL PARK." First National picturization of a story by Ward Morehouse, featuring Joan Blondell, Wallace Ford and Guy Kibbee. Directed by John Adolfi. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

The magic words are no longer "open sesame," "hocus-pocus," or even "abacadazer." Now all one, any one, has to say is "nothing ever happens here" (any here), and straightway everything under the shining sun happens without the genii even bothering to appear. In fact, his appearance, savoring of the supernatural, would be embarrassing, for this, they tell us, is realism.

There were "Transatlantic," "Grand Hotel" and "Street Scene," with lots of people for things to happen to in a very short time, and "Union Depot," with more things happening to fewer people, and now "Central Park," with most things happening to fewest people. If they didn't so determinedly preserve the dear old unities, having the things happen at almost the same time and almost the same place, we'd be back to our penny-dreadful serial days, which, you must admit, is some sort of progress—mostly crawfish!

Dot is a would-be chorus girl, out of work and hungry. Rick is a stranded rodeo cowboy, also hungry. And to give them lots in common, he came from Peach Creek, Ariz., she from Three Rivers, Ill., to meet in Central Park one fair morning. And ere came the next dawn, as we say in cinemanese, there are five fights, a dead policeman or so, an animal-torn animal keeper, arrests galore, an auto wreck, an escaped lunatic and an escaped lion—all in Central Park.

Joan Blondell is right enough as Dot; Wallace Ford, with his naturalistic, unadorned and slightly awkward delivery, is very much at home as Rick; Guy Kibbee works hard and obviously for sympathy as Charlie, the old copper, but it's a violent and vocal lion and a 200-pound baby hippo which we don't see, which we like best of all—though we don't quite see, either, why the animal kingdom had to be lured into the tragedies of the big city.

J. E. Williamson has found the necessary magic to take him and us to the bottom of the sea for its strangeness and beauty, all too little of his interesting film being shown in vivid and startling color. True, as much seems to happen 50 fathoms down when Mr. and Mrs. Williamson and little Captainess Williamson are around as did in Central Park when Messrs. First National strolled through with a cameraman. But almost every bit of what happens in Davy Jones' locker is thrilling and the swaying and swirling of the waters give it the reality of a very real dream, which on nightmare nights is rather real.

A musical short, "Hot Competition," with hot dogs as its hottest item, and a newsreel complete the bill.

EARLE

"EMPLOYEES' ENTRANCE." First National picturization of a play by Dana Bosham, adapted to the screen by Robert Presnell, featuring Loretta Young, Warren William, Wallace Ford and Alice White, with Albert Gran, Hale Hamilton, Allen Jenkins, Marjorie Gateson, Ruth Donnelly, Frank Reicher, Burton Churchill and Charles Sellon. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

This should be a great hit with the efficiency experts!

Concerning itself solely with the romance, the comedy and the tragedy, real or imagined, that is to be found in the behind-the-scenes operation of a huge metropolitan department store, "Employees' Entrance" primarily teaches a lesson in cold-blooded business management, predicated upon the assumption that there is no heart in merchandising and that the one sure rule for success is summed up in the words, "the survival of the fittest."

Kurt Anderson, general manager of the Franklin Monroe Department Store, doing a business of $100,000,000 per year (it dropped off to $45,000,000 later, as a concession to the depression), is a man of acid and iron. The role affords Warren William a rare opportunity to recover something of the prestige as an industrial whip-cracker he built up to a high point in "Skyscraper Souls," and almost entirely lost in "The Match King." Warren is himself again. Lightning shoots from his eyes, flames burst from his lips and sparks fly when he brings his fist down. But he couldn't break up the love affair between Loretta Young and Wallace Ford!

To be sure, he caused Loretta to drain an 8-ounce bottle of rough-on-rats, or something, in an attempted suicide, and rlled Wallace to the point where he took a shot at him at close range and only managed to nick his forearm, but in the large view, Kurt was a bust as a romance wrecker.

And that is about all there is to the story, barring a few comic sidelights, contributed principally by Alice White and the late Albert Gran, with minor impetus to the laughability emanating from the peculiar mental processes of Marjorie Gateson, Allen Jenkins and Hale Hamilton. Among the casualties of Mr. Anderson's rule of iron are Frank Reicher and Charles Sellon, one a fighter who snaps back; the other, a defeatist who drops himself out of a nine-story window and does himself no good whatsoever.

Extravagant as it is in many of its aspects, and played throughout its length in a high and exaggerated key, "Employees' Entrance" still provides lively and interesting entertainment for all but the most fanatical of the realists.

The principals acquit themselves with credit—especially, as already intimated, Mr. William, Loretta Young, Wallace Ford and Alice White. Miss White manages a comeback that finds her not so much the petulant beauty as she was, but an infinitely better actress than when she left the screen one leap ahead of the Warner boys' flying wedge of bouncers.

The widely heralded Three X Sisters, headlining the vaudeville portion of the program, prove to be a blonde, a Titian and a brunette, whose harmonizing starts out to be strangely like that of the Boswell Sisters and ends by being entirely different. They deliver their sprightly songs in a variety of dialects and interpolate instrumental effects wholly with the voice, after the manner of the Mills Brothers. Their "Little German Band" and the imitation of the bagpipes are among their best. An acrobatic dance by the brunette member of the trio adds a touch of novelty to an act that scored heavily yesterday afternoon.

Next in favor among those ingenuously introduced by Miss Maxine Doyle, were Clara Barry and Orval Whitledge, pianist and vocalist, in an interval of stinging banter called, "He doesn't know the music; She doesn't know the words"—neither of which proved to be true! Eddie Garr does a group of impersonations of movie and stage stars and the Harris Twins and Loretta (not Miss Young) complete the vaudeville in gymnastics and clever acrobatic dances.

Bing Crosby is star of a tuneful short-reel, "The Blue of the Night," during which he sings numerously, supported—but not vocally—by "Babe" Kane and Franklin Pangborn. This Crosby fellow is quite a lad.

FRIES WARNS REDS MENACE TO FAMILY

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, U. S. A., retired, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Division of the Army, was the guest speaker last night at a meeting of the Maj. James E. King Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, in Gadsby's Tavern. He was introduced by C. Philip Heishley, who acted as toastmaster. Dr. Thomas B. Cochran, commander of the camp, presided.

Gen. Fries spoke of the insidious influence of Communism and the danger to this country of such influence, which he said is making itself felt in the schools, as well as in every city in the country. He deplored the fact that many members of the United States Senate are considering recognition of the Russian Soviet government, and quoted statistics showing what that government has done and is now doing toward the destruction of the home and family, and the ruthless manner in which the principles of Communism are being carried out.

He analyzed at length the war-debt situation, giving figures as to the cost to this country of carrying these debts, citing the fact that the people of the United States are paying a much higher interest on the war loans than foreign governments are required to pay, and showing that even if both interest and principal payments are collected, this country will still be paying huge sums in interest, which will never be repaid.

An attractive musical program was given by the Domino Orchestra, of Washington, under the direction of Miss Margaret Ogden, of Alexandria. There were piano solos by James Walters, and vocal solos by Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey.

Beartine Entwisle, 48, of 435 North Columbus street, was seriously injured Thursday night when, while walking in his sleep, he fell from a second-story window on a concrete walk in the yard. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital and treated by Dr. S. B. Moore.

Miss Frances Murry Burke, aged 71 years, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Burke, of 208 Wilkes street, and a well-known local artist, died yesterday at the Alexandria Hospital after an illness of several weeks following a fractured hip, received in a fall at her home. Miss Burke is survived by two brothers and two sisters, Harry R. Burke and Miss Virginia Burke, of Alexandria; Edmund J. Burke, of Boston, Mass., and Mrs. Charles B. Eddy, of Plainfield, N. J.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Christ Episcopal Church, conducted by the Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, and burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

John U. Reardon, of the Mutual Ice Co., Alexandria, has been elected president of the Virginia Ice Manufacturers Association, in annual convention in Norfolk, Va. O. Ashby Reardon, of the same company, is secretary-treasurer of the State body, and Harry Hammond, president of the Mutual Ice Co., is a member of the executive committee.

A meeting of the executive board of the Missionary Federation of Alexandria held yesterday at the home of Mrs. George T. Klipstein, 607 Prince street, selected March 3 as the day of prayer for the international interdenominational group.

Mother and Child Saved From Blaze

Winchester Firemen Take Ill Matron Out of Burning Home.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 20.—A mother and her small son were rescued from their blazing home by firemen here today after the house had caught fire from an overheated hot-air furnace.

Mrs. Lula C. Capper, wife of E. B. Capper, Winchester jeweler, and their son Edward, 2 years old, were the pair rescued. The mother was ill in bed and although her daughter, Jane, 8, fled the home on her mother's request when it caught fire, Edward refused to go and stayed by his mother's side and was found by firemen, who donned gas masks to search for persons in the home.

TAXPAYERS LEAGUE FORMED AT MEETING

County Economy Objective of Group in Arlington; Woodward President.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Tel. Clar. 909. Clarendon, Va.

Having as its objective economy in local government with a reasonable reduction in taxes, the Taxpayers League of Arlington County was organized at Clarendon last night with the election of W. W. Woodward as president. Other officers are W. Thomas French, vice president, and Boardman Munson, secretary-treasurer.

With the county board busy preparing the budget for the coming year, the tentative draft of which will be presented at the first meeting in February, there should be no time lost in crystalizing sentiment for a reduction in taxes, declared W. W. Wright.

"There is a grave question in my mind whether the county board knows just how far it can go in the reduction in salaries," declared J. Locke Green, member of the committee from the Bar Association. "Our committee has received a letter from one member of the county board commending our efforts and assuring his support, while two other members say salaries can not be reduced."

The president announced appointment of the following committee to gather necessary data showing salaries paid and other data to be presented at a mass meeting soon: Lawrence Michael, W. Thomas French, W. W. Wright and Charles Darr.

If the county board carried out salary reduction recommendations of the Arlington County Bar Association the total saving would be less than 2 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, declared Harry A. Fellows, chairman of the board, last night. The present rate, he pointed out, is $2.45 per $100.

Reducing the salaries of the commissioner of revenue and treasurer from $6,300 to $4,500, Chairman Fellows said, would result in a saving of approximately 1½ cents in the present tax rate. There would be no saving in cutting the salary of the sheriff, since he now only received $1,300 from the county. His other compensation comes from fees over which the county board has no jurisdiction.

As to the salary of the clerk of the circuit court, he only receives $1,000 from the county, and the law provides that this can not be cut below $900. It is evident, Chairman Fellows said, that if there are to be savings effected they must come from some other sources rather than salary reduction of officials.

The Arlington County Board will meet at 9 a. m. today at the courthouse instead of the usual hour of 10, according to County Manager Roy S. Braden. He says that in the future all regular meetings of the county board will be at 9 o'clock.

A special meeting of the Arlington Citizens Association will be held next Tuesday night in the auditorium of the Patrick Henry School. Tax reductions will be discussed.

Sheriff and Deputies Go To Extradite Crawford

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 20.—Sheriff E. S. Adrian, of Loudoun County, and Deputies D. H. Cooley and S. F. Alexander, left Leesburg this afternoon for Boston to bring back George Crawford, 34, colored, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Mina Buckner, at their home in Middleburg, January 13, 1932.

Crawford will be lodged in the Alexandria Jail until the opening of February term of court in Loudoun County, Monday, February 13, when he will be brought to trial. Crawford, who was arrested in Boston a few days ago on a burglary charge, had been the object of a Nation-wide search since the murder. Birdie Deneal, colored, of Middleburg, is under bond to appear as a material witness against him.

Income Tax Rules Contain Disappointments for Payers

New Regulations Permit Deduction by Individuals of Only Few of Minor Levies in Billion Dollar Revenue Measure.

(Associated Press.)

There was disappointment aplenty, probably, for many in the preliminary analysis of income tax payments regulations which the Internal Revenue Bureau made public yesterday with relation to March 15 payments.

For one thing, those who had visions of being able to reduce the amount of their payments by deducting from their gross income all of the taxes levied in the billion-dollar tax bill were referred to the regulations which permit the individual to deduct but few of the minor taxes.

The only taxes which the individual can deduct are those he pays himself and the remainder are deductible from gross income by the manufacturer, the importer or the person who actually pays them. Taxes are deductible from gross income in determining net income upon which the tax is due the Government.

The new taxes which the individual can deduct are those on electrical energy, bank checks and drafts, telephone conversations, telegraph dispatches and messages, leased wires and talking circuits, admission, on leases of safe deposit boxes, the tax on motor boats and club dues.

The individual in some States can deduct the amount of tax paid on gasoline if the State law levies the tax on the consumer, but he can not deduct it if it is levied on the distributor or manufacturer. The individual also can deduct other State, city and county taxes from his gross income.

The taxes which an individual can not deduct are the stamp taxes and the manufacturers' excise taxes. These include the tax on tobacco, issues' sales, and transfers of stocks and bonds, sales of produce and conveyances or real estate.

The manufacturers' taxes levied under the bill are deductable from the gross income of the manufacturer except that where the tax is included as part of business expense it can not be separately deducted as a tax. These taxes are those on lubricating oil, brewers' wort, liquid malt, malt syrup and malt extract, grape concentrates, &c., crude petroleum, gasoline, paraffin, tires and tubes, toilet preparations, furs, jewelry, automobiles, motorcycles, &c., radio receiving sets and phonograph records, mechanical refrigerators, sporting goods, firearms, shells and cartridges, cameras, matches, candy, chewing gum and soft drinks. An importer of any of those articles, as well as importers of coal and coke, copper bearing ores and concentrates and lumber may deduct those taxes from gross income.

The tax on transportation of oil by pipe line is deductible by the carrier, the gift tax deductible by the donor unless statute provides the donee is liable for the tax, in which case the donee may deduct it. The estate tax is deductible from gross estates.

The income tax regulations have not yet been drawn up by the bureau, but the list of the permissive deductions have been sent to collectors to inform them what may be deducted by individuals, manufacturers and other persons interested.

1,000 Applaud 'The Mikado' At Brilliant Performance

With brilliant staging, beautiful costuming and excellent singing, the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group presented "The Mikado" last evening at the Roosevelt High School before an audience of more than 1,000.

The immortal work of W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan was the second of the group's offerings, and, like "H. M. S. Pinefore," sung last fall, was under the auspices of the Communnity Center Department.

Raymond Baine and Betty Thornberry, in the roles of Nanki-Poo and Yum-Yum, held the center of interest throughout most of the performance, but they had to yield to the ebullient buffoonery of Ira Meyer, as Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner, whose effective rendering of "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring" necessitated four encores before the enthusiastic audience was satisfied.

The Lord High Everything Else, Poo-Bah, played by Elliott Button, and His Highness the Mikado, sung by Harry Crow, are by no means to be left unconsidered in any enumeration of creditably delineated parts. Harry Yeide, as Pish-Tush; Alma Harris, as Pitti-Sing, and Ella Neuland, as Peep-Bo, all gave good account of themselves in their relatively minor parts.

Katisha, "with a caricature of a face," was sung by Helen Mark as her debut in light opera. A notable occasion, for it has seldom been that this especially difficult role has received so excellent treatment.

To Miss Wentworth should go unstinted praise, for it was through her direction and piano accompaniment that the presentation was so shining a success. A difficult task even to direct such a production, but when it falls upon the director to furnish the entire accompaniment for a public performance, then her real worth is emphasized. A truly magnificent accomplishment! W. A. WHITNEY.

SATURDAY JANUARY 21, 1933 SPORTS

G. U. BOWS TO BRILLIANT ST. JOHN'S FIVE, 31-24

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

EVEN the Yankees' announcement that Babe Ruth is expected to accept a $25,000 reduction in salary does not disturb the theory that the Babe is no longer paid for his ball playing ability, but for his magnetism at the gate.

As comparative values go, few can say that Ruth was as valuable last year to the Yankees as Lefty Gomez, the rookie pitcher who won 24 games and lost 7, and who is squawking because his new contract calls for only $12,000, despite the fact that this figure represents a $1,000 raise.

The Babe may not be responsible for losing seven games, the number credited on the wrong side of Gomez's ledger, but neither was he directly responsible for winning 24 games, as Gomez can prove by the statistics. Thus with the Babe squawking at receiving nearly five times as much salary as Gomez, there must be a reason, and the reason as we all have known for many years is his ability to make the turnstiles hum their merry tune.

Ruth's Greatest Feat Was in Chicago.

Ruth is the author of probably more records than any other individual in baseball, but to this department his greatest feat and the greatest commentary on his drawing power was demonstrated two years ago at Chicago. The White Sox were hopelessly mired in last place. The Yankees were in third place behind the Athletics and the Nats and there was no reason to suspect that they could win the pennant.

It was on a Sunday. The Cubs long before had supplanted the White Sox as the favorite of Chicago fans. The American League games in the Windy City were drawing no more fans than could fill the G. W. U. gymnasium. And then Ruth and the Yankees put in their appearance. Fifty-two thousand customers turned out that day. Not to see the Yankees, they weren't going anywhere. Not to see the White Sox, they were nothing to look at. But to see Ruth the 52,000 came to Comiskey Park.

Babe Is Slow In Field.

As long as the Babe can drag a bat to the plate, the Yankees will be paying him fancy salaries. There is even the suspicion that when the Bambino becomes so decrepit that he is no longer a threat, he'll still be a drawing card for the fans who never liked him, and a place will be found for him in the line-up.

But the fact does remain that in the field the Babe has slowed down pitiably. No longer can he go back for fly balls, or to his left and right. He still can come in fast and make those shoe string catches for which he is famous, but it is noticeable that the Babe hangs out close to the foul line to protect that territory while Earl Combs in center takes care of many of the flies that any other right fielder but Ruth would catch, or be fined for not catching.

2-Sport Bill Tonight at Maryland

Old Liners to Battle V.P.I. Teams in Ring and on Court.

Keener Faces Tyler in Feature Bout of Dual Meet.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY BOXING TEAM'S first appearance at Ritchie Coliseum under its new coach, Lieut. Harmony, will be staged tonight at 9:30 o'clock when a ring will be pitched on the gymnasium floor that probably still will be warm from the basket ball game between the Maryland basket ball team and V. P. I.'s set of courtmen. V. P. I. also offers Maryland boxing competition.

Trained down to the minute, Maryland's boxing team more or less expects victory to crown its efforts tonight. In the last two days it has effected two changes in the line-up which it believes will improve the team down the line. The newcomers are Guy Downs and Orlin Jones, 155.

Maryland Juggles Keener.

Besides this there has been a little juggling in the weight classifications. Bernie Keener, rated the classiest boxer on the squad and a consistent winner last year, steps down from the 155-pound class to the 145-pound division, his old category. He will have plenty of competition in Bill Tyler, 145-pound expert for the Engineers. Keener has suffered only two defeats in college boxing.

V. P. I. lost to North Carolina last week, but Maryland's tie with Washington and Lee is not causing them to lapse into overconfidence.

The Old Liner-V.P.I. basket ball game, which opens tonight's twin bill at 8 o'clock, should produce fast competition from start to finish. Maryland took the Gobbler basketers into camp early in the campaign, but comparative scores since that time would indicate that the Virginians are an improved team.

Admission to the double bill is $1.

Santa Butts Maloney, Given Technical K. O.

Boston, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Jose Santa, ponderous Portuguese heavyweight, tonight gained a five-round technical knockout over Jimmy Maloney, veteran Boston heavyweight, after they clashed heads in a clinch during their contest, scheduled for ten rounds. Santa's unintentional butt opened a wide cut over Maloney's eye and Referee Johnny Martin refused to permit him to continue after the fourth. Santa weighed 245 pounds and Maloney 205.

C. U. Gridmen Play Detroit Here Nov. 11

Catholic University's 1933 football team will meet the University of Detroit at Griffith Stadium on November 11, Arthur J. Bergman, head coach of the local school, announced yesterday upon closing negotiations with Gus Dorais, Detroit coach.

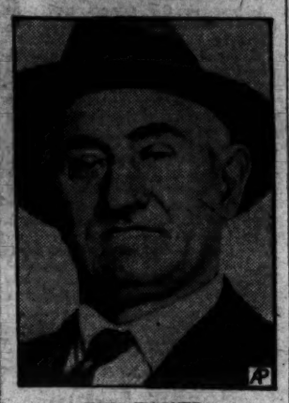
Not So Fast

Hans Wagner Ridicules Picking Flag Winners During Winter.



HANS WAGNER.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A lot of people very emphatically naming this year's major league baseball champions are leaving themselves open for some long and loud horse laughs in October.

At least John Wagner thinks so, and he used to play the game. John—more easily recognized as Hans, or Honus, though the real name is Johannes, which is German for John—Wagner says the 1933 world championship may be predestined, but he doesn't see how anybody can know it.

Suppose Babe Ruth Breaks an Arm.

"The loss of one or two particular men can make a great deal of difference in any team," said the old-time Pittsburgh Pirate shortstop today. "The Yankees? Of course, that's a great team. But suppose Babe Ruth breaks an arm and Lou Gehrig gets sick, eh?

"And even if something more drastic happened to the New Yorkers, you still can't tell. The Senators look good, but I tell you, you can't tell at this time of the year anyway. Maybe some youngster has just been signed from off in the sticks somewhere that will burn up either circuit.

"Pitchers are a great part of any team, of course. Washington has a good staff now, and Washington also has Clark Griffith. That fellow can make good pitchers out of ordinary ones. I faced a lot of pitchers in my day, and he was the smartest one in the lot. But no, I tell you, I'm not predicting what they'll do. It's too early for that."

Refuses to Name Favorite.

The veteran, who will be 59 years old next month, won't be induced even to name a favorite in either league.

"Cubs? Certainly the Cubs are good, but didn't I say it will be a long time yet before you can tell what they're going to do?

"No, don't you worry about Connie Mack, either. That fellow is smart. And he's broken up the best baseball teams in the world and then shown up again with another best team."

Cubs Buy Los Angeles Outfielder for $75,000

Los Angeles, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Sale of George ("Tuck") Stainback, 20-year-old Los Angeles Angel outfielder, to the Chicago Cubs for $75,000 and three players was announced today by business officials of both clubs after a conference here.

The three players involved in the deal will include Marvin Gudat, Cub outfielder, Ed Baecht, pitcher, and one other pitcher, as yet unnamed.

Landis Reinstates Shires and Johnson

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis today granted the reinstatement petitions of First Baseman Arthur Shires of the Braves and Pitcher Henry Johnson of the Boston Red Sox, who had been voluntarily retired.

Pitcher Chester Nichols of the Philadelphia Nationals, who was on the ineligible list, also was reinstated.

Chicago Stadium Receiver Named

Friendly Action Follows Bondholders' Petition on $5,000,000 Plant.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Chicago Stadium Corporation, owner of America's biggest indoor sports arena, today surrendered its four-year fight to beat general economic conditions when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson placed it in equity receivership.

The huge $5,000,000 building, scene of two great political conventions last summer, will continue to operate, however, with no radical change in policy and with hockey games, boxing, and other sports going on as usual.

Judge Wilkerson's action regarded as entirely friendly, was taken on a petition of Charles E. Ferry, of Milwaukee, who holds $4,000 worth of the corporation's bonds.

Ferry's petition set forth that the bonds of the corporation defaulted January 1, 1932. Outstanding are $1,679,000 in first mortgage bond notes and $183,000 in second mortgages, the petition recited. Total current obligations, including bonds now due, was fixed at $328,000.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

BILL BURKE and Carroll Shore, heroes in the eyes of their classmates, but rated public enemies Nos. 1 and 3 among the high school basket ball players, turned their deadly fire in Western's direction yesterday afternoon, and when the rat-a-tat-tat of basket balls bouncing into the basket finally subsided, Central had scored its fourth consecutive series victory, a 51-24 triumph. The win represented also the Blue's nineteenth consecutive triumph of the season.

There were two other teams in action on the program, Tech and Roosevelt, and though the boys went through all the motions they did not quite succeed in making much of a game of it. Tech rolled up a substantial lead in the first half and managed to protect its holdings in the final periods to gain a 40-32 decision. Roosevelt's defeat dropped it to fourth place, leaving its opponent in undisputed possession of third place. The games marked the conclusion of the first half in the race for the high school court championship.

Western Easy for Central.

As has been expected, Western fell easy prey to the double-barreled attack of the leaders. Bert Coggins permitted his charges to amass a 39-10

Loughran and Cobb Matched for Feb. 13

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Arrangements for a 10-round match on February 13 between Tommy Loughran, former world's light-heavyweight titleholder, and Walter Cobb, New York heavyweight, were completed today, the Arena Corporation, promoters of the match, announced.

La Barba Is Given Bout With Watson

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Fidel La Barba, Pacific Coast featherweight, today was signed to replace Kid Chocolate against Seaman Tom Watson, British featherweight titleholder, in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden, January 27. The winner will meet Chocolate in February.

The fighters signed to weigh in at 128 pounds, two over the class limit, so Watson's title will not be at stake.

La Barba, who recently lost a disputed decision to Chocolate, was substituted for the Cuban bonbon after the latter had been ordered deported from Key West. The Garden is attempting to have the ban lifted on Chocolate but even if successful felt the time was too short to allow Chocolate to train properly for the January date.

HANS BIRKIE WINNER.

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Hans Birkie, stolid German heavyweight, and Jimmy Braddock, once the clouting pride of the light-heavyweights, plodded through ten weary rounds of a "feature" 10-round bout tonight with scarcely half of the meager crowd of 4,000 that saw the start, lasting through to hear the decision.

It went to Birkie, apparently as a reward for being the less futile of the pair who substituted on short notice for Billy Petrolle and Bep Van Klaveren, after the "Dutch Windmill" cracked a hand in training.

St. John's and G. U. in Scrimmage Under Basket

The rival centers, Hill, of St. John's, and Connors, of Georgetown, are pictured off the floor during a scrimmage under the St. John's basket last night at Tech High School. Other players in the picture are, left to right, Hargaden, of G. U.; Lazar, of St. John's, and Crowley, of G. U. The ball seen above the basket failed to drop through.

HERMAN NOW IN FOLD OF CUBS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Floyd (Babe) Herman, baseball's perennial holdout, in a sharp reversal of form, made a surprisingly quick flourish of his pen today and signed his contract with the Chicago Cubs.

The former Cincinnati outfielder, by way of Brooklyn, went into a huddle with William Veeck, president of the Cubs, here this afternoon and was induced to affix his name without hesitation. The salary was not announced.

Herman annually was one of the last to sign up when he played for Brooklyn and, after a determined stand for more pay last year, he was sold to Cincinnati. The Cubs bought him last fall.

All in all it was a big day for the Cubs. Veeck bought George Stainback, 20-year-old Los Angeles outfielder, from the Angels for 1934 delivery. The price was an unnanounced sum of cash, Marvin Gudat, outfielder; Ed Baecht, pitcher, and another pitcher as yet unnamed.

The players will be delivered to the Angels this spring. Stainback came to Los Angeles from a local high school. He was farmed in the Arizona-Texas League for a year and hit .356 with the club last season.

Cleveland, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The first of the Cleveland Indians' 1933 contracts was opened today by Joe Vosmik, who found himself well satisfied.

It was understood unofficially that Vosmik, a star of only two seasons with the Tribe, was given an increase in salary, contrary to the general run of baseball contracts this year, but neither he nor club officials would comment on the amount. Vosmik said he would sign at once.

New York, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—The New York Giants announced today they had signed Hughey Critz, veteran second baseman, for the 1933 season.

Critz, a brilliant second-sacker, is understood to have been reduced from about $15,000 for 1932 to less than $10,000 for 1933.

The big right-hander, who was a holdout for many weeks last season, came to town unexpectedly from St. Louis on some other business and called on President W. E. Benswanger of the Pirates as a matter of courtesy.

Benswanger invited "The Duke" to talk terms and a half hour later Pitcher and president announced they had come to an agreement. The terms were not announced, but the contract is known to involve five figures and is for one year.

G. W. Is Host to St. John's; Gallaudet at C. U. Tonight

WHAT Georgetown missed doing last night, George Washington University's elongated basket ball squad will attempt to do tonight when it encounters the unbeaten St. John's College five, from Brooklyn, N. Y., at G. W. gymnasium, 2010 H street northwest. The game starts at 8 o'clock.

If ever George Washington's highly touted team had its work cut out for them, it is tonight. The New Yorkers are speeding down the winning roadway with an eleven-game victory streak and stopping them will be a terrific upset, even though last year, against pretty much the same line-up, G. W. lost out only by 41-38 at Brooklyn.

Tonight's game shares local interest with the meeting between Catholic University and Gallaudet, one of those rare intracity collegiate games, at Catholic University gymnasium. Maryland University also seeks a measure of the night's spotlight with the twin attraction of boxing and basket ball at Ritchie Coliseum. Georgetown plays Temple in Philadelphia in an Intercollegiate Basket Ball League tilt.

Coaches Jim Pixles and Ted O'Leary, who viewed St. John's brilliant victory over the Hilltoppers last night, stated that tonight's greatest problem for G. W. is defense. G. W. is not worrying about its offense. In Wick Parrack and Forrest Burgess it has the acknowledged two best shots in Washington. In nine games this season Parrack, 6-foot-5 ace forward, has scored 121 points, or an average of 13.4 per game. Burgess has flipped in 81 points in seven games.

St. John's shooting strength is much more evenly divided than G. W.'s. Every man on the team is an accurate shot. The team goes in for much long shooting.

G. W. will not announce its center position until game time. Ty Hertzler, 6-foot-5 regular, is being pushed by Bill Noonan, 6-foot-4 local boy, who may get the call. Capt. Otts Zahn and Wayne Chambers will hold down their customary guard positions.

Notre Dame Series Rejected by Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The University of Michigan football coaching staff has said "thumbs down" on the suggestion that Notre Dame be scheduled for a series of games.

Following agitation for a Michigan-Notre Dame football series, begun after the annual Rambler football banquet at South Bend this week, Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost called a meeting of the varsity coaches to learn their attitude toward such a game.

While what was said at the coaches' meeting, held Thursday afternoon, was kept secret, it was learned today on good authority that the football teachers did not favor scheduling Notre Dame. It was their consensus that only "continued hard times" and "worse financial condition of the Michigan Athletic Association than at present" should be allowed to alter Michigan's attitude.

1,500 Watch Georgetown Succumb

G. U. Checked After Tying Rough Game at 18 to 18.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TWO-FISTED basket ball, the most virile the college boys have produced in an otherwise listless collegiate court season, broke out last night at Tech High Gymnasium where the hard-bitten and experienced St. John's College Five, of Brooklyn, N. Y., added the unwilling scalp of Georgetown to its collection of ten fine toupes by a score of 31-24.

Playing well-nigh perfect basket ball, as if they had played together all their lives, instead of about half of them, St. John's rebuked the Hilltoppers when the momentum of the local team threatened to carry them to a brilliant and unexpected victory.

Georgetown tied up the count at 18-18 with half of the last period gone, but the drive showed instantaneous signs of petering out, once it gained that peak, and the visitors strode forcibly into victory.

Real Hard-Fought Basket Ball.

It was rough and tumble basket ball from the start with a couple of split lips, a cracked dome or two and numberless sprawls on the floor telling the story of the hardest fought basket ball game of the year. Georgetown seemed to play above its head to keep in the wake of the Gotham flyers. It was only when St. John's tightened every rivet in its defense and pepped up its offense that it was able to tear itself away.

Georgetown led once. That was in the early moments of the game when an unbelievable "Frank Merriwell" shot by Tom Carolan gave his side a 5-3 lead. The two teams hung within a basket of one another until just before the end of the first half, when a long potshot by Nat Lazar (who seemed to irritate the Georgetown stands very much), and a brilliant left-handed peg through the

Pari-Mutuel Beaten in Feature

One-Two Horses Suffer Bad Racing Luck in Early Running.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 20 (A. P.).—With all the bustle and fanfare of opening day written into history, the Miami Jockey Club's meeting settled down to a normal routine here this afternoon with the Arcadia Purse, a 1-mile test for 4-year-olds and upward, serving as the chief magnet. The good-sized crowd was treated to a bitterly fought finish in the feature. Chief John, making his first start for John A. Marsch since last November, survived a thrilling stretch drive to win by a neck.

Pari-Mutuel made a noble but futile effort to win for Joseph E. Widener, taking the place by another neck from H. P. Headley's Big Beau. Chief John, ridden by Charlie Corbett, the boy whose mount was disqualified in the previous event, ran the mile in the fast time of 1:37 3-5 and paid $5.80.

Winner and Pari-Mutuel Have Bad Luck.

Both the winner and Pari-Mutuel suffered bad racing luck. Chief John was carried wide at the turn for home, while Pari-Mutuel was bumped off stride by Big Beau as the three horses bore down the stretch heads apart. Hibala, Barcelona Pete and Porter's Dream settled themselves vying for early lead. Chief John moved up with a rush on the outside at the stretch turn, coming from last place, and outgamed his rivals in the final furlong.

Conventional, with Mills up, was supposed to be the certified check in the 3-year-old maiden event which opened proceedings, but the Wheatley Stable's colt wound up a poor third. Gold Basis proved best, scoring by a length and a half over Ondott, with Conventional six additional lengths behind. The winner took an early lead and held Ondott safe in easy fashion to return $7.80 for $2.

Shilly Shally Lucky To Win by Head.

Shilly Shally, a son of Chilhowee, racing for J. Snedecor, raced to a rather lucky triumph in the baby event, second on the program. After bearing over and interfering with Salaam and Appear at the start Shilly Shally showed fine speed and gameness to hold on to a head advantage through the final furlong. Big Dipper, paying $84.20 for place, threatened the winner to the end and held on courageously to beat Salaam by a half length. The winner returned $7.10 and was grouped in the field.

The first disqualification of the meeting occurred when Lady Legs, which finished third, was set back in the fourth race. The stewards believed Corbett struck Smith with his whip. The placed horses were bunched at the end, with E. R. Bradley's Algeria taking the purse by a head from Zorana. Lady Legs and Perchickety were next in line, the latter being awarded the show through the disqualification. Zorana opened up a wide lead after the first quarter mile, but, while holding on gamely in the drive, was not equal to staving off Algeria's powerful bid. The winner paid $26.90.

Kneesi Scores With Stealingaway.

"Hotcha" Kneesi rode a cool, capable race aboard Stealingaway to get that colt home a winner of the sixth race at odds of $16.10 for $2. The son of Ed Crump beat Bank Shot by a length, while another single span behind came Polar Brush to annex the show. Daudet, the choice, was buffeted about considerably by Polar Brush and wound up fourth. Kneesi rated the winner off Bank Shot's pace and took command in the stretch to move away in a drive.

The stewards announced that Jockey C. Corbett was suspended for ten days for striking Jockey J. Smith with his whip in the fourth race.

Hoyt to Try Out At Pirates' Camp

New York, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Waite Hoyt, veteran pitcher, who was released by the New York Giants since the close of the 1932 season, will try out with the Pittsburgh Pirates at their Paso Robles, Calif., training camp.

Hoyt started last season with the Brooklyn Dodgers, but was released and joined the Giants. He was not very successful with them, having lost his famous fast ball.

Although only 33, he has been pitching professional baseball since 1916, and has been in the major leagues for the last twelve seasons.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, JANUARY 20.

Well, pal, I've got a lot more fight in me tonight than some of those favorites had today. True, I was held to one winner, but I was well represented in the pay on a number of occasions. I sent Mike out tonight with instructions to dig up something at 10 to 1 or better and he came back with Yancey, which goes in the sixth tomorrow. I couldn't see it that way, so had to withhold the Bennings stamp of approval. However, I promised Mike I'd pass it along to you. Mike likes Fair Image at Havana. Personally, I'll have to concentrate on Hialeah Park. BILL.

FIRST RACE—IDLE STEPHAN proved a reliable sort in Maryland last fall and has shown excellent form in trials here, I am informed. RALLY ROUND appears to be the one to beat. IDEALIST to show and may be closer if either of the top fellows make mistakes.

SECOND RACE—Baby fillies get their first airing at 2 furlongs in this. EASY COME, FLAGHORN and SUN CELTIC is the order in which I like them. Mike reports the works excellent on the first named.

THIRD RACE—KATE has flashes of speed to her credit and won at considerable odds in Maryland as a 2-year-old. Seems to be as well placed as anything in this race. LEBRUYERE and ST. CHRISTOPHER to chase the filly home.

FOURTH RACE—DYAK exhibited fine form in the Inaugural of last Thursday and should bring the Everglade Stable a purse tomorrow. This fellow was closing fastest of all and was beaten only two lengths for the chief money. Drops 2 pounds here. PROTRACTOR and BROWN WISDOM to make the top one hustle.

FIFTH RACE—THE PELICAN prefers 5½ furlongs, but if reports are true, should be able to step this 7 furlongs. They say he has improved with rest. There can be no doubt of his early speed. I think he'll stick it out. BOLILEE and HELIOS for the rest.

SIXTH RACE—DAILY NEWS was in excellent shape when he left Bowie and is ready for a race now. This is the kind of a field he takes. HAGGERSON and TOTEM are the most serious of the other contenders.

SEVENTH RACE—TRY IT will have his favorite distance tomorrow and is in splendid condition as the result of racing at Jefferson Park. Should pick this field up in the stretch. BRASS MONKEY and COME ON for the place and show.

Denton and Kieckhefer Advance at Billiards

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, and Augie Kieckhefer, of Chicago, the defending champion, moved into challenging positions in the world three-cushion billiards tournament today by conquering Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., and Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, N. Y., respectively.

Denton, showing improvement in every start, won his third victory in four matches in defeating Layton, 50 to 39, in 56 innings, while Kieckhefer staged a red-hot finish to overcome Scoville, 50 to 49, in 55 frames. The defeat was Layton's first in his two matches, and for Scoville it was three beatings in a row.

Layton picked up a 6-to-2 lead over Denton in four innings, but Tiff tied it in the ninth and from that point steadily increased his advantage.

PESEK FACES VASSELL ON MAT CARD

THE least known of America's four "world's wrestling champions," Johnny Pesek, who is universal champion of Ohio, some parts of Missouri and Nebraska, will make his first appearance in Washington next Thursday night, meeting George "Schnozzle" Vassell in one of three feature bouts on an ambitious mat card.

Pesek is a wrestler of the Joe Turner type, except bigger. Fast as a streak, he has been bowling over headliners for about fifteen years. None of the other three world champions—Jim Londos, Strangler Lewis or Henri De Glane—will have anything to do with him.

Savoldi Held Londos To Draw.

Joe Savoldi's latest achievement in his chosen profession is a draw with Jim Londos. The thing happened on the Pacific Coast. They collided head on with simultaneous flying butts and both went down and, ostensibly, out. It was called a draw.

Frank Judson's quick return to Washington sees him pitted against a pretty responsible rassler in Jim Clinstock, the 220-pound Indian of Tiny Roebuck proportions, who held Rudy Dusek to a draw not long ago at the Washington Auditorium.

Two more bouts will be added to the card today by Promoter Joe Turner.

2 Mt. Rainier Teams Triumph in Basket Ball

Mount Rainier teams scored a twin victory on the court yesterday, the boys' team winning over Maryland Park High School by a score of 34-14, while the girls turned in a 32-15 triumph over Hyattsville High School girls.

Scott and Bud Mathias led the assault on the cords that carried the boys to victory over Maryland Park. Mount Rainier ran up a comfortable lead in the first half and coasted in to victory.

MANN ADDS 4 FIGHTS TO PROGRAM

Barefoot Green Will Face Hollingsworth at Portner's.

FOUR preliminary matches were added yesterday by Promoter Frankie Mann to the feature eight-rounder between Frankie Genaro, former world flyweight champion, and Joe Fino, Mexican titleholder, and the semiwindup between Young Van and Billy Vermillion, of Baltimore, scheduled next Tuesday night at Portner's Arena in Alexandria.

Cary Wright, unbeaten in his professional fights since abandoning the simon-pure ranks a few months ago, and Jack Britton, 140-pounder, will clash in one of the four-rounders. Eddie Compton, of Philadelphia, and Joe Copera, of Baltimore, a newcomer, both 125-pounders, have been matched.

Barefoot Green, pride of Fredericksburg, whose three professional fights have resulted in victories, will return for a joust with Bob Hollingsworth, Alexandria athlete, who lost by a technical knockout to Green in the first round a few weeks ago. Young Calb, Baltimore featherweight, who gave Izzy Caplan, a hot fight recently, will oppose Young Gentile, local taxicab driver.

The Genaro-Fino fight bids fair to lure a large crowd to the reformed brewery, while considerable interest has been smoked up in the return to the ring of Young Van, 1932 sensation. Van had eight knockouts to his credit last year before being stopped twice in the first round by Sammy Britt.

Gonzaga 27-17 Victor Over Hyattsville High

Showing a vast improvement over its last public appearance, Gonzaga defeated Hyattsville High School by a score of 27 to 17 before a large audience last night at the Gonzaga Gym. It was the Purple's first victory of the season.

The Irish exhibited a smooth passing attack that brought the ball in close to the Hyattsville basket for numerous shots. Hall, Folliard and Lilly were outstanding for Gonzaga. Quantrille, center, played the best game for the visitors.

Md. Group Bans Public Golf Clubs

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 20.—After nearly an hour of debate, the Maryland State Golf Association, at its annual meeting tonight at the Baltimore Country Club, adopted an amendment to its by-laws qualifying membership in such a manner as to force withdrawal of public golf clubs. The vote was 14 to 6, two more than the necessary two-thirds required.

It was pointed out that the net result of the action excludes the municipal golfers from only the State association handicaps, since with proper handicaps the public linkamen are eligible for United States Golf Association tournament qualification.

The slate of officers prepared by the nominating committee was adopted unanimously. The new officers follow: William Parker Hall, Baltimore Country Club, president; Robert Stead, jr., Chevy Chase Club, first vice president; William D. Waxter, jr., Green Spring Valley Hunt Club, vice president in charge of tournaments; George P. James, Columbia Country Club, vice president in charge of Washington district; M. W. Crane, Fountain Head Country Club, vice president in charge of Western Maryland district; Nathan H. Kaufman, Suburban Club, vice president and treasurer; John E. Hurst, of W. Elkridge Hunt Club, secretary.

COMEDALIST DEFEATED.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The last of the comedalists, Don Soccoli, of New Britain, Conn., was knocked out of the Glenn B. Curtiss amateur golf trophy competition today as the veteran Lee Chase, of Buffalo, N. Y., defeated him, 2 and 1, in the semifinal round.

CLAUDE DEBUSSY'S opera, "Pelleas et Melisande," will be heard on the air for the first time from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City, with Lucrezia Bori and Edward Johnson singing the title roles, this afternoon (WRC, 2:30 o'clock). "Pelleas et Melisande" is a mystic drama based on Maeterlinck's romance of the same name.

Louis Hasselmans will conduct and the cast will be as follows:

Melisande, Lucrezia Bori, soprano.
Pelleas, Edward Johnson, tenor.
Golaud, Ezio Pinza, basso.
Genevieve, mother of Pelleas and Golaud, Ina Bourskaya, contralto.
Little Yniold, Golaud's son, Ellen Dalossy, soprano.
King Arkel, Leon Rothier, basso.
Physician, Paolo Ananian, basso.

STATION WOR, Newark, N. J., will try to send a two-hour musical show around the world via Australia the latter part of February. The program will be heard in this country from 4 a. m. to 6 a. m., which is dinner time in Sydney. The program was requested by the DX Club, of Sydney, and broadcasting will cease on the entire Australian continent while WOR attempts to get through clearly.

The works of two young composers, Philip James, an American, and Jaromir Weinberger, a Czech, will be the highlights of the Boston Symphony Orchestra concert over the WJZ network including WBAL, at 8:15 o'clock tonight. This will be the first concert presentation of "Station WGBZX," the James composition with which he won the N. B. C. orchestral award in 1932. Weinberger's opera, "Schwanda der Dudelsackpfeifer," gained international fame for the young Czech composer. It was first performed at the Metropolitan in 1931, but has been heard more than 2,000 times in Europe. Compositions by Bach, Mozart, Tschaikowsky and Delius complete the program, which will be conducted by Albert Stoessel.

Rufe Davis, "rubiest" of the Radio Rubes, appearing on the stage of the Fox Theater this week, hails from Mangum, Okla. He played stock with the DeBinsky Brothers and appeared on the radio with the Weaver Brothers. He tries to imitate every noise he hears. He boasts that "I never wore a pair of shoes until I was 16 years old and the first time I had the shoes on I walked backward 4 miles to look at my tracks." His most prized possession is a celluloid collar. He doesn't like New York night clubs because the only dance he can do is the old-fashioned "square."

ATTENTION, children! Aunt Sue and Polly and Arthur Godfrey are going to have another party next Saturday morning, January 28, beginning at 10 o'clock, in the auditorium of the National Press Club, to which all their little listeners are invited. Mr. Godfrey will tell you all about it over WRC at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Radiotelephone service between trains and ferries was recently inaugurated in Germany by the National Railroad Co., enabling passengers on these transportation services to carry on conversations while en route. Express trains operating between Berlin and Hamburg and ferries plying from Warnemuende to Gjedser are now equipped with short-wave radiotelephone apparatus which permits direct telephone connections between the two services.

The centenary of the birth of Johannes Brahms will be commemorated in an all-Brahms program to be broadcast over WJSV from 11 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra. Assisting artists will be Hulda Lashanska, soprano; Michael Piastro, violinist, and Alfred Wallenstein, cellist.

Mme. Lashanska will offer three of the Brahms lieder: "Die Mainacht" (May Night), "Sapphische Ode" (Sapphic Ode) and "Vergebliches Staendchen." Piastro and Wallenstein will play the andante from Brahm's double concerto for violin and 'cello. Orchestral features of the program will include a group of the spirited Hungarian dances and the "Academic Festival" overture.

If you were about to make your first appearance before the microphone would you forget your lines? Well, that's what George Hicks, the announcer, did at his mike debut.

"It was in 1928," George recalls, "and I had just won my way on to the payroll of Station WRC in Washington. I was to announce Dvorak's 'Songs My Mother Taught Me' on a musical program. One of the veteran announcers told me how to pronounce Dvorak. I kept repeating it, over and over, but when it came time to say it, I just couldn't say a word. The program went on without announcement and I was mortified, but no one seemed to mind, and fortunately I found my voice on the next broadcast."

Edwin G. Nourse, director, Institute of Economics of the Brookings Institution, and Charles G. Ross, Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will be the principal speakers on the Economic World Today program over WRC at 8:30 p. m. The subject of their discussion will be "The Farmer Never Quits." The program is presented by the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education.

MADELINE SHEPPARD, the Sunshine Girl, accompanied by Sidney's music will sing "A Boy and a Girl Were Dancing," "Willow Weep For Me," and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" (WRC, 7 o'clock) tonight.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler will talk about "The High Cost of Government and Its Consequences" (WJSV, 10:15 o'clock) tonight.

Marguerite Cromwell, accompanied by Rudolf Schramm's Orchestra, will again be heard in the Wilkins Quarter Hour (WRC, 6:30 p. m.), singing "I Called to Say Good Night," and a medley of German songs.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A Federal grand jury late today indicted Wesley Davis, of South Bend, Ind., and Elmer Boucher, of Chicago, on charges of possessing and passing stolen and forged money orders, and conspiracy.

The defendants, who were arrested January 7, after they allegedly had passed several of the money orders in New York hotels, will be arraigned next week.

All of the blanks recovered from the two men had been taken from the St. Louis postoffice, substation No. 42, from which 200 in all had been reported stolen.

Stranded Ship's Crew Saved.

Eureka, Calif., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The lumber schooner Tiverton, which went aground a mile south of Humboldt Bay early today, was gradually breaking up under the incessant pounding of waves after all 17 members of the crew had been brought ashore by the Coast Guard over a breeches buoy.

Gov. Rolph Has Influenza.

San Francisco, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Gov. James Rolph, jr., of California, was ill with influenza in a hospital here today. His physician, Dr. John Galwey, said he would not be able to return to his office in Sacramento for at least ten days.

TECH BEATS ROOSEVELT IN SERIES

lead in the first half, evidently unwilling to risk a sudden rally by the enemy. Coggins was half way correct in his surmisal, for the Red Shirts offered more resistance in the last half than the heroine of a dime novel about to be kidnaped by the heavily mustached villain. Central succeeded in scoring only 11 points in the last two periods.

Big Reds Daly was the ringleader in an assault on the Roosevelt basket at the start of the game that netted Tech a 19-6 advantage at the intermission. Nine minutes elapsed before Joe Sherman managed to rid Roosevelt's scoreboard of its goose egg with a snowbird.

Roosevelt's Rally Is Late.

After a rough ride for three quarters of the fray, the Rough Riders rallied and in less time than it takes to tell sent their score sky-rocketing from 18 to 28 points. Two long pot shots by Rube Hayman, and baskets by Sherman, Harris and Huck Cavanaugh were prominent in the attack. Cavanaugh and Sherman shared scoring honors for the losers, they being the only ones to hit the rim consistently.

But the rally had its beginning too late in the game, and although the last quartet of field goals made were registered on the Roosevelt side of the book, the team couldn't overtake its opponent. Roosevelt adopted tactics similar to those used on the gridiron during the game. On one occasion the boys huddled, apparently attempting to work the hidden ball trick, and on another three of them stood on the foul line, resembling backfield men getting set for a try at left tackle. Tech stuck to its zone defense throughout the contest.

Washington-Lee High Wins State Game, 29-24

Staving off a rally by its opponents in the last period, Washington-Lee High School scored a 29-to-24 victory over Fredericksburg High School in a thrilling game last night at Ballston. It was the first game for both teams in the State championship series.

The Little Generals forged ahead in the early moments of the fray and were leading by a score of 14-to-7 at the half. But Fredericksburg came back with a will and almost succeeded in overtaking its host. Good, who led the scoring, was outstanding for the winners, with Bowler and Briggs best for Fredericksburg.

Friends School Wins Overtime Fame, 18-17

The teams were tied at 12-12 at the end of the regulation game. Eakin, star center of Friends, enterd the game in the overtime play and promptly sank two field goals which won his team the decision. Baker's field goal as the final whistle blew reduced the lead to 1 point.

Emerson Wins, 35-30, Over St. John's Team

Clinging desperately to its slim lead in the waning minutes of the game, Emerson Institute defeated St. John's, 35-30, in a hotly-fought game yesterday. Emerson boasted a 22-8 advantage at the half and went into the final period on the long end of a 30-17 score. St. John's rallied in the last quarter, holding Emerson to 5 points and boosting its own total 13 before the whistle halted play.

Hitting the Headpin

LONNIE KRAUSS' younger brother, Bill, won the sweepstakes at Convention Hall yesterday, conducted as a warm-up to today's Howard Campbell Stakes, which get underway at Lucky Strike. The younger Krauss, who isn't a duckpin fanatic, rolled games of 129, 116 and 140, for a set of 385. Ten pins behind was Tony Santini, whose scores were 125, 127, 123. Reds Megaw and Ollie Pacini, both of whom got off to flying starts, lagged behind in their last two games and tied for third with a total of 369. Reds rolled 126, 135, 108, while Ollie's scores were 150, 119 and 100.

Convention Hall massaged the maples for games of 565, 596 and 593, a 1,756 set, to win all three from Rendezvous in their District League match at Convention Hall. The losers' games were 533, 530 and 517. "Whip" Litchfield's 390 topped the Hall crew, while Welsh, with 349, was high for Rendezvous.

Awards led the teams in the Veterans' Bureau loop at Convention Hall with scores of 596 and 1,673. Ruche's 150 game and 367 set took the individual honors.

Nebel's 394 set and Shumate's 144 game led the scoring in the Building Contractors League at Areadia. Minte Paint rolled 612 and 1,730 to lead the teams.

Ott's 127 and 316 scores were high in the Federal Trade Commission loop at Arcadia. Cardinals, with a 513 game, and Falcons, with a 1,448 set, outdistanced the teams.

Ryan's 134 and Oligeri's 351 copped the bacon in the I. C. C. League at Arcadia. Mails and Files bagged team honors with 570 and 1,610.

Beaver Dam bowlers walked off with everything but the bowling alleys in the Country Club League at Silver Spring. Fisher rolled 156 and 389 to lead the individual scoring, while the team was high in its class with a 610 game and 1,805 set.

Youngblood's Hardware established a new set record for the season at Silver Spring last night with a score of 1,822. Its games were 618, 614 and 590. Ouncie Harrison's 393 set was high, with Eddie Keith's 378 second.

Jimmy Dulin topped the Quartermaster Men's loop at Columbia with scores of 135 and 349. Design had a 558 game and 1,571 set to lead the teams.

In the Quartermaster Ladies' loop Miss Lasell rolled a 303 set and Miss Watts a 118 to garner individual honors. Executives rolled home ahead of the other teams with its 478 game and 1,361 set.

Catherine Fortney won the tournament at Columbia to select an entrant in the Ladies' Dixie Sweepstakes which will be rolled today. Miss Fortney rolled 102, 105 and 119 for a 326 set. Second, was Margaret Leaman, with a 324 set, and third, was Rena Levy, with 319. Annette Mathew, who rolled 319, and Marie Whalen, whose score was 298, rounded out the first five.

Although it received a forfeit over B. & O. in the National Capital League, King's Palace copped the high-scoring honors at Lucky Strike with a 640 game and 1,859 set. Individual honors were accorded Cox, who turned in a 172 game and 419 set.

Miss Clark's 317 set and Miss Bechtold's 120 game were high in the C. & P. Ladies' League at Lucky Strike. North Potomac No. 1 had a 1,457 set, and Columbia No. 1 a 518 game.

Jesse Thomas Named Alexandria A. C. Head

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 20.—Jesse Thomas was elected as president of the Alexandria Athletic Club last night.

The new organization will sponsor baseball for the incoming season and two teams, the Celtics and Alexandria Police, will perform under its colors. The Celtics will play Sunday baseball, while the Police will perform in week-day games.

Other officers elected were: Charlie Corbett and Eddie Harlow, directors. Theodore Beach was appointed business manager of the team.

Three games of basket ball will be dished out to followers of independent teams at Armory Hall Saturday night, with the initial game presenting the Centrals and the St. Rita's, starting at 7 o'clock.

The next battle, beginning at 8 o'clock, will find the Methodist Boys' Club and the Virginians hooking up, while at 9 o'clock the Praters will tackle the Ballston A. C.

Manassas Five Bows To Alexandria, 42-21

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 20.—The Alexandria High quintet moved a step up the State championship ladder here tonight by defeating the Manassas five, 42-21, before a crowd of 900 at the Armory. After the first period, which found the visitors ahead by 10-9, the local boys stepped into the lead, never to be headed, although it was only in the closing quarter that they had anything resembling a commanding lead. Moore and Chilcott led the attack for the winners. In a preliminary, the Alexandria High girls defeated the Buddies, 35 to 25.

FINALS IN "LEFTY" GOLF.

NEW TALENT NOW WITH RED SOX

Much Competition for Jobs; Jolly May Go Behind Bat.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—Should the Boston Red Sox take all the players now upon its roster to the training camp at Sarasota, there will be plenty of competition for jobs in the infield and outfield.

Dale Alexander, of course, has the first-base berth cinched, as Manager Marty McManus would not think of displacing the champion batsman of the American League. Until Boston made its recent trade with Chicago, Olson was scheduled to play second base, but now that Greg Mulleavy and Johnny Hodapp have been acquired, the situation is more complicated. Mulleavy, because of his batting ability, is expected to be a regular, but whether he will play short, the position he played at Oakland last season, or second base will be up to McManus.

Hodapp Aspires To Come Back.

The acquisition of Hodapp gives McManus a problem. If Johnny comes back and shows his 1930 form, he may be placed at second or third. McManus, who had an off year at the bat in 1932, will be available at either second or third. Warstler is Boston's best defensive infielder, but he batted but .211 last campaign. Another player who must be considered is Andrew Spoghardi, Boston College boy, who batted .294 in seventeen games late during the last season. If Hodapp stages a comeback, the best batting infield that McManus will be able to place upon the field will consist of Alexander, Spognardi, Mulleavy and Hodapp.

Boston now has nine outfielders upon its list, but it is reported that McManus will send Smead Jolley behind the bat just as Lew Fonseca did at Chicago last spring.

BETHESDA FIREMEN WIN.

The Bethesda Volunteer Firemen brushed aside their fifth consecutvie Montgomery County rival last night by defeating the Glen Echo Cardinals, 40 to 26, in a fast game, Melton, with 21 points, led the scoring. Bethesda pulled away from its rival in the last five minutes of play, after a nip-and-tuck battle, to gain the decision.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

BLONDIN, the famous French acrobat who for many years thrilled his audiences with feats of daring on the tight rope, was born Jean Francois Gravelet in 1824. He started training as an acrobat at 5, and when he was 25 years old climaxed a successful career by crossing the Niagara Falls on a tight rope.

Blondin later gave this same performance with variations, and among his feats on the rope above Niagara are: Crossing blindfolded, in a sack, pushing a wheelbarrow, and on stilts. He even carried his manager over the falls on one occasion, and on another carried a little stove with him, with which he cooked an omelet. During his long career he performed in England and throughout continental Europe. He retired in 1896 and died a year later.

• • • •

The story of a toad killing a full grown dog was brought to light by M. E. Musgrave, of the United States Biological Survey, who witnessed the death of one of his dogs, which had attacked a Colorado River toad only a few minutes before. Another dog that had sniffed the toad suffered ill effects but recovered.

The strange occurrence is explained by the Smithsonian Institution by the fact that the toad, the Bufo alvarius, has a skin excretion that is poisonous when brought in contact with the mucous membrane of the mouth. The dog was poisoned when it bit the toad.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SONG TO A KINGFISH.

THEY call him the Kingfish in Louisiana
Where he dunks corn pones in the native manna;
He once was a salesman selling soap
(And he will be again pretty soon, I hope).

* * * *

Gave a wonderful wash and a wonderful lather;
"I can sell anything," was his famous cry,
For he was a modest lad and shy.

* * * *

One morning he tired of soap, they say,
And decided to wash up the U. S. A.

* * * *

He became a politician
And a sort of State magician,
With the talents of a showman
In the toga of a Roman.

* * * *

"Be you against me or be you for me,
I don't care, but you can't ignore me!"
Thus did the Kingfish spread the alarm
To every Louisiana village and farm.

* * * *

And that, my friends, would not have mattered,
If his ambition hadn't spattered
Until it took in all the Nation
To the country's deep aggravation.

* * * *

When the Democrats got power,
Huey spouted by the hour.
Sending poison gases higher
Like a worn-out leaky tire.

* * * *

Huey showed he was no busher
As a spouter, as a gusher;
On he talked while Uncle Sammy
Groaned and said, "It's rather hammy!"

* * * *

"Is it soap he still is selling?"—
Asking, "Say, who is this Huey?
Do you think the guy is screwy?"

* * * *

Farmers starved to death in Kansas
While he quoted silly stanzas;
In Iowa farmers battled
While Our Huey's molars rattled;
While the Senate sat in coma,
Farmers swooned in Oklahoma;
Chain stores closed in scores of cities
While the Kingfish quoted ditties;
Business sank back in the traces
While the orator made faces;
While the Nation faced a crisis
Huey talked of orange ices!

* * * *

The election in November
Mr. Long did not remember;
He believed the people's voices
Were a cry for louder noises.

* * * *

There he stood emitting static
With his gestures acrobatic—
Soapman, Kingfish and Loud Speaker
Making weak spectators weaker.

* * * *

Shades of Washington and Jackson!
Why this animated Klaxon?
Shades of Nathan Hale and Lawrence!
Why these words in gushing torrents?
Shades of Cleveland and Wilson!
Why does no one throw a Stillson?

* * * *

Shades of Fort Ticonderoga!
Why this showman in a toga?
Shades of Valley Forge, why do we
Have to listen to such hooey?
Shades of Daniel Boone and Custer!
Why these gases? Why such bluster?

* * * *

Hark! An offer rings out loudly;
He would rescue us, and proudly!
In this hour of our trouble
He would blow us gaseous bubbles;
He would be our willing savior

* * * *

Three loud cheers for Dauntless Huey
And the old Red, White and Blooie!

THE ACID TEST.

George Bernard Shaw will make an appearance here in April, but public tastes being what they are it is questionable whether he will outdraw Gracie Allen, Harry Richman and Col. Stoopnagel.

Glover Park Citizens Seeking Bathing Pool

Plans for a bathing pool in the Glover Park district were initiated last night by the Glover Park Citizens Association. The proposal was formally indorsed by the meeting and an effort will be made to enlist the support of the Burleith, Foxhall Village, American University Park and Massachusetts Heights Association for the project.

It was suggested that the pool should be located at the base of the hill west of the Benjamin Stoddard School at the end of Calvert street.

Dr. Williams Tells of Travels.

Surprising contrasts encountered in a 7,300 mile journey from Beyrouth, on the Mediterranean, across Syria, bandit-ridden Afghanistan to northern India and through the lonely Gilgit trail to the Chinese plains, were described to members of the National Geographic Society last night at the Washington Auditorium by Dr. Maynard Owen Williams. Dr. Williams was the only non-French member of the Citroen-Haardt transasia expedition, with which the society cooperated.

Clothing Stolen From Car.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Drivers of milk wagons, bread wagons and other early morning vehicles have a disconcerting habit of stopping their vehicles in the middle of the street while making deliveries to apartments and residences.

This is a very bad practice as early morning motorists usually drive faster than in the daytime, due to the lack of road congestion, and dangerous collisions can easily result from the custom. It also is in direct violation of the traffic regulations and should be dealt with accordingly by the authorities.

Deaths	8	2
Injuries	218	177
Accidents	409	341

CONFEREES ON WAR CAUSE AND CURE TO SEEK 5 OBJECTIVES

8th Annual Meeting Asks Miss Woolley Be Sent to Geneva Again.

The four-day session of the eighth annual Conference on the Cause and Cure of War closed last night with five objectives outlined for 1933. They are:

Immediate ratification of World Court proposals, declaration of an embargo on shipment of arms to nations at war, continued fulfilment of the treaty of Paris by nonrecognition of situations, treaties and agreements brought about by means contrary to its covenants; definite results from the Geneva disarmament conference and entry of the United States into the world disarmament conference.

Following the suggestion of Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran leader of the cause, the conference voted to instruct its national board to send letters to both President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt asking that Miss Mary E. Woolley be returned as a delegate to the disarmament conference.

The delegates also voted protest meetings should be held against the slowness of disarmament proceedings in Geneva, and reports of them sent to Arthur Henderson, conference chairman.

Committee Elections.

Resolutions were passed urging added support to the Department of State "as an instrumentality of peaceful international intercourse," and recommending that initial steps be taken toward reorganizing all peace efforts into a coordinated national movement.

Elected to the executive committee for 1933 are Carrie Chapman Catt, honorary chairman; Miss Ruth Morgan, Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, Mrs. William D. Sporborg, Miss Josephine Schain, Mrs. May Bell Harper, Mrs. Fred S. Bennett, Mrs. Albert Lytle Deane, Miss Esther G. Ogden and Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes.

Declaring that Russia has increased her armaments because she is afraid other European nations are arming to attack her, Mrs. Israel Zangwill, of England, addressed the 600 delegates last night at the Hotel Washington on world armament conditions.

Since the Disarmament Conference has been in session there has been an arms truce and nations have pledged themselves for a short time not to increase their armaments, Mrs. Zangwill said.

Duce "Has Two Voices."

"The effect in Great Britain was instantaneous; it suddenly stopped the rising fear of Russia. It has been one of the most striking arguments as to the value of all-round disarmament," she said.

Mrs. Zangwill declared that the attitude of Italy on disarmament "is most puzzling." She accused Mussolini of speaking with "two voices," one for war and one for peace.

Declaring that "fear of Germany has become a habit in France," Mrs. Zangwill said that France will not reduce her armaments unless she obtains, or thinks she obtains, security from the threat of Germany.

She said that the greatness of America today is the supreme greatness of her opportunity to forward the question of disarmament.

Dr. William Allen Neilson, president of Smith College, told the conference that the creation of a means of obtaining justice by peaceful means precede the demand to lay aside the "cruder method of attempting to obtain it by force."

Other speaker's on yesterday's program were Mrs. Vera Micheles Dean, of the Foreign Policy Association, "Russia Plans a New Order;" Dr. Nathaniel Peffer, "The Situation in Asia," and Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, "Present Pacts of Peace."

Man Is Held for Jury After Fatal Car Crash

Herman Lyles, of 320 D street southwest, was held for grand jury action by Magistrate F. H. Billingsley, following an inquest at T. B., Md., yesterday into the death of Raymond Voorhees, of 1014 Kearney street northeast, who was fatally injured Saturday night in an automobile collision at Floral Park, Md.

Voorhees died at Providence Hospital.

Soviet Relations Urged Before Women Voters

Stating that the Russian government had ceased its intensive campaign of propaganda, Mrs. Vera Micheles Dean, of New York City, expert on Russian affairs of the American Foreign Policy Association, favored recognition of the Soviet before members of the District League of Women Voters meeting last night at the home of Mrs. Gardner Jackson, 6 West Kirke street, Chevy Chase, Md.

American Toreador Host At "Bull Throwing" Party

An unusual situation for both bull and man. The bull, a pedigreed sire of the Chestnut Farms Dairy herd, never faced a matador before, and Sidney Franklin said he seldom faces such a docile animal.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

Sidney Franklin, the Americano toreador, and the only United States citizen outside Congress who is paid for throwing the bull, spent yesterday afternoon at the Shoreham in company with newspaper reporters, cameramen, three or four of his managers and a somewhat docile mister cow, loaned by the Chestnut Farms Dairy. He didn't wear his old Spanish cotume.

Ernest Hemingway, the staccato author, was supposed to be in the party, as a punishment, I guess, for writing "Death in the Afternoon," the love-life of a bull fighter, but he got out of it by the simple expedient of not showing up, leaving the lady reporter limp with despair.

The features of the afternoon were Franklin, the Mister Cow, who looked like he resented his name of "Kenilworth's Fascination," and the brand-new Southern Maryland rye the promoters doused the members of the press with before the show. Franklin and the Chestnut Farms entry were late in appearing, so late, in fact, that when they did arrive the cameramen, in particular, were all out of focus and their comments, if they could have been properly recorded, might have sounded very funny in print.

Franklin has had a fantastic life. He's a Jewish gentleman, about 32, born in Brooklyn, named Frumpkin, learned bullfighting in Mexico, gained fame in Spain and came back to America for a ticker-tape parade. His job at present is with United Artists, for whom he acted as both performer and technical adviser in Eddie Cantor's educational movie, "A Kid From Spain," soon to be committed in Washington at the Palace. On the side he is trying to stir up a bloodless bull fight for the Chicago world's fair, which is still another reason why you should send in your girl's picture to The Post's Chicago Fair contest.

On Excursion Vacation.

To begin somewhere near the beginning of Franklin's life as a steer sticker, he went on an excursion-vacation to Juarez ten years ago. Near the end of his two weeks' leave with pay, as he was preparing to return to his job as a commercial artist (he graduated from Columbia University as one of these when he was 17 years old) he attended a bull fight. He didn't like it, particularly the first scene when the horses get rammed. But he stuck it out, sneaked down to the matadors' dressing rooms and struck up a friendship with the hero of the day, Rodolfo Goano, greatest of Mexican bull fighters and one of the best of all time.

I suppose they had a couple of beers, for the talk turned to the financial end of the racket and Sidney was startled to learn that Rodolfo that afternoon had made $6,500 profit out of his artistic hacking. Sidney decided to stay in Mexico. He took daily lessons from the great master and inside of a month or so was being used by him as a banderillo. A banderillo plays about the same part in bullfighting as a defensive left guard. He does a lot of the dirty work.

You see, bulls, even as you and I, are left or right handed. Some can turn on a dime when turning to the right, but it takes them 20 feet to turn around to the left. The banderillos let the bull slip under their arms and as he lumbers by (if he is a right-handed bull) they stick long darts in his left side, so that he won't be able to arch his back and turn suddenly to the right and thus embarrrass the matador.

The matador puts on the finishing touches. They give him 20 minutes to do it, and, in Mexico at least, he is allowed only three jabs. He tries to stick the bull at the base of its neck with a 2-foot saber. The bulls they use (known to the profession as Box Toro L) will charge any moving object. It is pure fancy that they rush only red flags. Bulls are colorblind; they charge anything that moves, regardless of age, sex religious leanings or material.

Conceals Pig Sticker.

The matador, that's Franklin, conceals his pig sticker behind a cape and muleta, which looks about like the flag the freight car boys wave at the engineer in the Washington Terminal yards.

All this Franklin explained in the fastness of his room, but by this time the photographers were looking under divans for the bull and it was decided to take them out in the air. We all traipsed out to the back yard and sure enough, down at the tradesman's entrance, there was a bull in the back of a truck. The bull had a ring in his nose like the luck brass ring in the merry-go-round slot and attached to this ring was a sort of shovel handle and attached to the handle was an attendant, named Ole. Mr. Kenilworth's Fascination seemed far from fascinated with the prospect of lending himself to the gathering. In fact, he refused to leave the truck, so Franklin vaulted a hedge and ran down to the road and rubbed his nose. The bull reconsidered.

Up on the lawn he had to be shifted around to get the proper light and there was a lot of turning this way and that. "Kenilworth's Fascination" was the first to lost his temper. He wheeled very suddenly on Franklin, who was holding the nosering handle and nicked him lightly on the back of his hand, making a nasty scratch. He (the bull) shook himself fiercely and made a pass or two at the lined up photographers and they did considerable damage to one another trying to escape.

Only Soothing Words.

Only Franklin's soothing words to both bull and cameramen brought them back. One of the photographers suggested that Franklin pose astride the steer, but the move was vetoed firmly. Another suggested that he sit side-saddle nd appear to be writing a letter home to Brooklyn.

With a great sigh of relief on the part of spectators and bull, the latter was led from the impromptu arena and Franklin came back to the reporters long enough to say that the largest crowd he ever played before was 31,000, at Bogota, Colombia; that the most money he ever made at one appearance was $18,243; that the art goes back to Carthage and 238 B. C.; that nine countries have regular bullfighting seasons, just as we have our baseball; that Spain is still the major leagues of the game; that spectators cheer the bull if he puts up a better exhibition than the spangled tormentors; that the United States will never tolerate a real bull fight and that a personable fellow from Brooklyn, N. Y., U. S. A., was the best damn toreador in the world.

Autopsy Set Today In Death in Bathtub

Not being satisfied with the apparent reason for the death of E. Warren Wall, 60-year-old Richmond, Va., lawyer, who was found dead in the bathtub of his suite at the Parkside Hotel, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, acting coroner, will perform an autopsy on the body at 11 a. m. today at the District Morgue.

The man was found by Mamie Little, a maid employed by the hotel, when she went to the room to clean up. He was submerged in the water.

At first it was thought the man was stricken with a heart attack and was drowned in the tub, but Dr. MacDonald said last night this theory may be wrong.

POSTOFFICE STRIKE LAID BEFORE A. F. L. FOR EARLY DECISION

The jurisdictional dispute between hoisting engineers and steamfitters which has halted the work of 600 men on the new Postoffice Building, at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue, will be submitted for adjudication on Monday to the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

There is little likelihood, officials of the Steamfitters and Hoisting Engineers Unions said last night, that the differences would spread to other members of the unions engaged on other units in the Government building program.

Dispute Over Motor.

The strike at the Postoffice Building was precipitated when the Hoisting Engineers Union called 15 men off the job, which placed 600 other building tradesmen, mostly bricklayers and stonemasons, into enforced idleness.

The basis of the dispute is the inability of the steamfitters and hoisting engineers unions to agree as to which union should operate a motor generator machine. This machine furnishes electric power to weld steam pipes and other pipes in the building. The steamfitters have been operating the machines, while the hoisting engineers claimed that this job is the function of their union.

Company Is Blameless.

Arguments will be presented by the officials of the International Union of Operating Engineers and the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters. There was a mutual attempt to adjust the difficulty without appeal to the American Federation of Labor, but it failed.

D. G. Scott, representing McCloskey & Co., contractors, which is erecting the structure, said the dispute was purely "jurisdictional" between the unions and that the company is in no way involved. The dispute, he said, will virtually put a stop on all work on the building, with the exception of about 200 workers whose materials do not have to be hoisted.

Cabman Held as Drunk After His Theft Story

A taxicab driver, identifying himself as C. E. Lancaster, of 314 Sixth street northeast, was held last night by Maryland State police at Brandywine substation on a charge of driving while drunk, following an investigation of his story of being held up and robbed of $2.60 near Deantown, Md., by two men who stole his cab.

The driver called the substation from Deantown and reported the robbery. About the same time the police learned that a taxicab had been wrecked near Floral Park, Md. The man is said to have admitted that the wrecked cab belonged to him.

Move Is Taken to Get Beard's '32 Tax Return

Samuel Beard, convicted in Baltimore last week of evading income tax payments, yesterday was cited by Justice Joseph W. Cox in District Supreme Court to show cause on February 1 why he should not be compelled to furnish the District Government with a personal tax return for the present fiscal year.

The rule was issued at the request of the District Commissioners, who declared they had been unable to estimate Beard's tax because he had failed to supply them with the proper personal property tax.

Narcotic Peddler Gets Terms Totaling 9 Years

Samuel Killian, 43, was sent to jail for nine years yesterday when he was taken before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District Supreme Court following his conviction Tuesday on eight counts charging violation of the Harrison narcotic law.

Justice O'Donoghue gave Killian three terms of three years each, and he specified that they should be served consecutively rather than concurrently. Killian, it was brought out, is suffering from tuberculosis and is in need of constant care.

Man Hurt When Hit by Car.

Roscoe C. Barnes, 22, of 867 Van Buren street northwest, received cuts and bruises yesterday when struck by an automobile at First and D streets northeast. He was treated at Emergency Hospital. Police said the car was driven by Richard E. Sears, 34, Leonardtown, Md.

FIRE DAMAGES CLUBHOUSE

B. H. Graham, manager of the Rock Creek Public Golf Course, showing a portion of the damage done by a two-alarm fire to the clubhouse yesterday morning. The fire, caused by an overheated furnace pipe, spread through the walls and under the ceilings and floors. Damage is estimated at $10,000 by Mr. Graham.

FIRE HITS CLUBHOUSE AT ROCK CREEK LINKS

Fire of unknown origin did considerable damage to the clubhouse at Rock Creek Park golf course yesterday morning.

The blaze broke out shortly after 8 a. m. in the ceiling of the furnace room and was discovered by B. H. Graham, manager of the concession. Golfers and attendants made a futile attempt to extinguish the flames and the fire department was notified. Because of difficulty in getting water from Sixteenth street plugs, a second alarm was sounded. The hose had to be stretched almost half a mile and several booster pumps were required to get enough pressure.

The two alarms and the dense smoke attracted a large crowd, some of whom were drenched when a hose line burst. Damage was confined to the building, which was fully insured. Furnishings and golfing equipment was removed when the flames were discovered.

Mrs. Alice Quigley, 56-year-old invalid, was rescued from her home by her husband, Daniel F. Quigley, when a two-alarm fire broke out in their home yesterday morning and spread to two adjoining houses in the 3300 block of Eighth street northeast.

Detecting smoke in her room, Mrs. Quigley called to her husband downstairs. He picked her up and carried her out of the smoke-filled house to a neighbor's, where she was attended by her two daughters, Helen, 19, and Mary, 22.

A second alarm was sent in as a wind carried the flames to the roofs of 3310 and 3314. The entire roof, part of the upper story and a section of the rear wall were burned away at the Quigley home, while only slight damage was done to 3314, the home of J. R. Powell, and 3310, the residence of T. T. Roddy.

The fire was believed to have started from a spark igniting the shingle roof. Quigley said he was fully insured.

Citizens Seek Taxi Data.

In furthering its endeavors for a satisfactory regulation of taxicabs in Washington, the Citizens Joint Transportation Committee yesterday sent telegrams to other metropolitan areas asking for data on taxi rates and regulations in those cities. This information will be compiled for submission to the subcommittee of the House District Committee on Appropriations at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

HILLTOP DEBATERS DEFEAT YALE TEAM

Georgetown Students Uphold Negative in Argument on Free Trade.

The Gaston Debating Society of Georgetown University, composed of freshmen, defeated a freshman team from Yale University in its first intercollegiate debate last night in Gaston Hall. A large group of alumni from both institutions attended.

The local team took the negative on the question, "Resolved, that the nations of the world should adopt a policy of free trade by the gradual reduction of tariff." Members of the Yale Team, which is remaining over the week-end in Washington, are Peter K. Wickham, of Springfield, Ohio; August Heckscher, of Long Island, and Oscar W. Dennis, of Fort Wayne, Ind. The Georgetown Team was composed of Thomas F. Quinn, of Albany, N. Y.; Thomas J. McCarthy, of Rochester, N. Y., and Newton A. Free, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Woman's Slayer Gets Life.

Butler Settles, colored, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, in the District Supreme Court. Settles had been convicted of second-degree murder in connection with the slaying of Eva Martin, colored, last September.

TWO JUSTICES FIGHT M'CARL RULING THEY MUST TAKE PAY CUT

The justices of the District Court of Appeals and the District Supreme Court yesterday launched in the United States Court of Claims their fight to overcome a ruling by Comptroller General J. Raymond McCarl that classified both courts as legislative rather than constitutional judges.

The difference between the two types, it was explained, was that a legislative court is one established through legislation while a constitutional court is one that owes its existence to provisions of the Constitution.

If it is held that the two courts are legislative, they will, as was ruled by Mr. McCarl, be subject to the pay cuts decreed for Government employes last year. This means that they will be subjected to 10 per cent cuts and will have seriously curtailed a positive right to retirement at full pay at the age of 70 years.

New Issue in High Court.

The pay cut fight, launched for the justices of the District Supreme Court by Associate Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, and for the justices of the District Court of Appeals by Associate Justice William Hitz, pointed out that heretofore it had always been held that the courts were constitutional.

This gave the justices permanent positions with a guarantee against pay cuts, and full pay upon retirement. No definite ruling has ever been obtained from the United States Supreme Court on the matter, and the Court of Claims was informed that an adjudication by the highest court in the land was desired.

The Court of Claims was asked by Justice O'Donoghue to award him a $500 judgment against the United States because of the deduction from his pay of $10,000 a year. Justice Hitz, who is higher paid, asked for a judgment of $1,250. Both disclaimed any intention of attempting to avoid a pay cut. Their petitions set forth that the status of the courts was the main objective.

Constitution Cited.

The petitions submitted by both justices were similar. They held that under article 3 of the Constitution, the court received constitutional origin. Therefore, they contended, under the Constitution their pay could not be cut. In 1903, it was shown, the Court of Claims had held that the District Supreme Court was one of the inferior courts of the United States, permanently established under section 1, article 3, of the Constitution.

Under this, the justices were held to be entitled to constitutional guarantees of judicial independence as to tenure in office and permanence in salary.

Schlosser Gives Bond On Hit-and-Run Charge

Learning that a warrant charging him with being a hit-and-run driver had been issued, Policeman William T. Schlosser, of the Ninth Precinct, yesterday went to Police Court and posted a $500 bond. He will be arraigned Tuesday.

The charge against Schlosser is that he failed to stop his car after the machine allegedly struck Mrs. Matilda King, a 60-year-old cook, on Massachusetts avenue last November. The woman died en route to a hospital. After the accident Schlosser informed Lieut. Dennis Cullinane, of the Ninth Precinct, that he had been involved, and at a coroner's inquest was held for the action of the grand jury on a manslaughter charge, but that body refused to indict him.

R.F.C. Cash Sought For District Needy

The District Commissioners yesterday took under advisement a proposal that they introduce legislation which would enable the municipal government to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the relief of Washington's unemployed.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, who attended a hearing yesterday morning, will draft a proposed bill, as suggested, after which the Commissioners will decide whether to submit the measure to Congress.

Among those who urged such legislation at the hearing were: The Rev. John O'Grady, Catholic Charities; Newbold Noyes, Community Chest; Mrs. Louise Roberts, Washington Council of Social Agencies; Coleman Jennings, Associated Charities; Arthur C. Moses, Travelers Aid Society, and Clarence Dodge, Community Chest.
